AUTO OFF A BRIDGE; THREE MEN UNDER IT

A Fourth, Though Badly Injured, Brings Help from a Long Island Roadhouse.

BURIED IN MUDDY CREEK

Rescuers Take Them to the Belmont Hospital at Hempstead—Driver Lost Control of the Machine.

Special to The New York Times.

HEMPSTEAD, L. I., May 22.—A man whose face and hands were covered with blood and his clothing with mud staggered into the Lakeview Hotel on the Lynbrook Road, about two miles from this place, shortly after 9 o'clock to-night and cried out to George W. Morman, the proprietor:

"For heaven's sake, send some one to the creek. Our automobile has jumped the bridge and is bottom up in the mud. There are three chaps under it, and I'm afraid they'll be smothered to death if they're not dead already."

The creek is a few hundred feet from the hotel, and around a sharp curve. Morman called to several men who were in the bar, and started on the run toward the place. The man who had brought the news trailed after them, too hurt and exhausted to keep pace with the rescuers.

Morman and the others, when they reached the bridge, saw the automobile lying upside down, thirty or more feet away from the bridge, in the soft mud of the creek bottom, the stream being almost dried up. Under it were the three men, pinned into the soft ooze by the weight of the car.

The rescuers managed to lift the car so that the victims could be drawn from beneath it, and they were carried then to the hotel. Morman telephoned to the Belmont Hospital here for an ambulance. While the motor ambulance was making the run of two and a half miles Morman and the others tried to revive the injured men. But when the ambulance reached the hotel, all except the one who had brought news of the accident were still senseless.

All four were put in the ambulance, which made a fast run back to the hospital. There the men were revived sufficiently to give their names. Harris Rosenthal, Samuel Goldstein, M. Levy, and F. X. Miller were the names they gave. Goldstein and Rosenthal were too badly hurt to do more and relapsed into a semi-conscious condition without giving their addresses.

Levy and Miller were too excited to do so, and hurried away from the hospital as soon as their cuts and bruises had been dressed to carry news of the accident, they say, to the friends of the other men, they said.

The hospital authorities learned, however, that the car belonged to Harris Rosenthal, a clothing manufacturer of 92 Bleecker Street. It was learned, too, that his automobile, a large touring car of high horse power, recently had been overhauled, and that the four men were giving it a try-out over the Long Island roads when the accident occurred.

Rosenthal, the hospital people say, was driving the car along the Lynbrook road in the direction of this village at a fairly high rate of speed. The roadway was dark, and heavy storm clouds obscured the moon so that Rosenthal had to depend entirely on the lamps of the car to see his way along the road. Just before the road reaches the bridge it turns sharply, so that the approach to the bridge across the creek is a sudden one.

Apparently Rosenthal did not realize that there was a curve ahead until he was almost upon it. Then he sent the car spinning around and out upon the bridge, onto which it leaped as soon as it had turned the bend in the road.

The road was muddy from the rain of yesterday, and the sudden turning sent the car skidding sideways, so that before Rosenthal could straighten it out the rear wheels had crashed against the guardrail at the side of the bridge, torn through it, and slipped over the edge.

The heavy car toppled over, but landed in the creek bottom right side up. The power was still on, and it ran along for several yards before finally upsetting and turning over and over twice. When it settled down the men were pinned beneath it.

It was said at the hospital to-night that Rosenthal and Goldstein had no broken bones, but were badly bruised and cut. Probably they may leave the hospital in a week.

HALTED FIFTH AV. AUTOS.

Young Man with a Queer Missive Is Sent to Bellevue for Observation.

A young man, dressed in black, carrying a Bible and a bundle of religious poems, took his stand at Fifth Avenue and Twenty-ninth Street early last night with a set purpose. The first automobile he saw coming down the avenue he ran out into the roadway, waved his Bible, and exhorted the occupants wildly about motoring, raving about children and "juggernauts."

The chauffeur threw on his emergency brakes, the women occupants screamed, and then the automobile went on.

The automobilists heard so few of his words that they paid no heed to him. But his occasional dashes into the avenue from the sidewalk caused a crowd to collect. While he wasn't exhorting the automobilists he talked to this audience. He said he was leading a crusade against all automobiling for the sake of children.

Policeman Keifer of the Tenderloin Station arrested him after a while on the charge of being a suspicious person and also with interfering with traffic. At the station the young man said he was Clare L. Thompson of Clearfield, Penn.

In the Night Court Magistrate Breen asked him where he lived in the city.

"Live?" he said. "Well, you tell me what live means, and I'll tell you my address."

He was sent to Bellevue for observation.

TURNED AUTO OVER BANK.

Two May Die Because Chauffeur Saved Children from Harm.

CATSKILL, N. Y., May 22.—Two persons were seriously hurt in an auto accident near Glasgow to-day. The machine was driven by Frank Kerbert, and in it were Fred Lewis, Mr. Decker, a druggist of Catskill; Mrs. Nettie Naylor, her daughter, Miss W. E. Naylor, and Miss Mabel Van Valkenburgh, all of Catskill. The car was running rapidly when the driver turned out quickly to avoid running down two children. The car skidded and went off an embankment of about twenty-five feet, carrying the occupants with it.

Kerber, Decker, and Miss Van Valkenburgh were thrown out and escaped with some bad cuts about the head. Lewis and Miss Naylor were caught under the car. Lewis's skull was fractured. Miss Naylor's spine was injured, and her skull fractured. Neither is expected to live.

SEES ROOSEVELT IN 1912.

Ex-Assemblyman Bedell Predicts His Election if Nominated by Any Party.

Ex-Assemblyman Louis Bedell of Orange County, who has always been one of ex-Gov. Odell's strongest supporters in this State, returned from Europe on the White Star liner Cedric yesterday, asserting that Theodore Roosevelt would be reelected if any political party nominates him for the Presidency in 1912.

Mr. Bedell, who went to England two months ago on personal business, denied a story cabled from London several weeks ago that he was coming back to this country with the deliberate intention of starting a Roosevelt third-term Presidential boom.

"I made no effort to see Col. Roosevelt while abroad, and had no communication with him," said Mr. Bedell on the pier. "But I am sure that if he is nominated there is no question about his election. I sincerely believe that it would be impossible to defeat him if he were nominated."

ROOSEVELT'S NEW TITLE.

The King of Earthly Kings, Says Dr. MacArthur at Memorial Service.

Theodore Roosevelt received a new title last night from the Rev. Dr. Robert S. MacArthur at a memorial service for King Edward VII. held in Calvary Baptist Church by the Canadian Club of New York. In speaking of the funeral pageant Dr. MacArthur told of the Kings and Ambassadors who were there.

"And," said he, "our own great country was represented by our own great man, that king of earthly kings, Theodore Roosevelt."

The church was crowded with the members of the Canadian Club and its friends to hear Dr. MacArthur, chaplain of the club, preach the sermon. The pulpit desk was decorated with the American and British flags draped, in the centre of which was the Canadian symbol.

Of King Edward Dr. MacArthur said he was a dutiful son toward his mother, and would go down in history as the royal peacemaker, for he was a lover of justice and peace in all its relations to all nations.

Great Britain and the United States, he continued, stood together for the peace of the world. Then pointing to the entwined flags he cried: "Paralyzed be the arm that would tear these flags asunder! Paralyzed the tongue that would try to make trouble between the two nations!"

This was greeted with warm applause.

In the party will be both Republicans and Democrats. Among them, Mr. Herrick says, will be Charles H. Grosvenor, Senators Dick and Burton, Congressmen Taylor, Douglass, Goebel, Cassidy and Joyce, and Mayors Baer of Cleveland, Marshall of Columbus, and Leeper of Marietta.

RETURN THEIR BATTLE FLAGS.

Survivors of "Beecher's Regiment" Give Colors to Plymouth Church.

In Plymouth Church, on Brooklyn Heights, nearly 2,000 persons witnessed last night the return to the Church of the four flags and a banner presented in the same church by Henry Ward Beecher on the third Sunday in May, 1861, to "Beecher's regiment" before it went to the front.

Less than two dozen of those who went to the front that day sat in the pews last night. Among them was Capt. Miles O'Reilley, who is now in the Police Department in charge of the Prospect Park Police Station. He was 17 years old when he joined the regiment. He and the other survivors were the youngsters of the organization then. Capt. O'Reilley in behalf of the men, returned the flags and banner, which so much showed the wear of time that to preserve them they have to be kept in their cases.

The Beecher regiment, the first Long Island regiment to go to the war, was organized under the auspices of the church, and while the recruiting was in progress the volunteers slept in the lecture room of the church. It was known as the Sixty-seventh New York Volunteers.

During the services last night the flags remained on the pulpit with a picture of Col. Nelson Gross, the first commander of the regiment. The flags will be placed in cases on the church walls.

In accepting the flags the Rev. Dr. Newell Dwight Hillis, the pastor, chose the same text as did Beecher when he made the presentation nearly half a century ago, "For a banner shall be given thee," from the Sixty-first Psalm. An original poem entitled "The Phantom Column" was recited by Gen. Horatio C. King.

The congregation joined in singing "Tenting To-night on the Old Camp Ground," "Tramp, Tramp, Tramp, the Boys Are Marching," and the "Battle Hymn of the Republic."

BOMB NEAR A JERSEY STABLE.

Neighbors Awakened by the Explosion Thought It Was the Comet.

The Jersey City police are investigating what they believe was an attempt to destroy the stable of the Fleckenstein Brothers Company, provision dealers at 62 Cambridge Avenue.

Late on Saturday night Mrs. Pauline Waterman and her son and two daughters, who live at 60 Cambridge Avenue, were awakened by a loud explosion, presumably in their rear yard. They looked out, but could not see anything except excited neighbors, with their heads out of windows. Some thought the comet had hit the earth and rushed out of doors.

Early yesterday morning Mrs. Waterman went into the yard and found an infernal machine. It had been made of a tin coffee can that had contained cement, powder, small bits of metal, and kerosene oil, and through a small hole in the top was a fuse made of telegraph insulation tape. It was taken to the Central Avenue Police Station.

About a year ago there was a strike in the sausage factory of Fleckenstein Brothers, opposite the stable, and the police were on guard for about two months. Thirty horses are kept in the stable, and in the apartments over it the stablekeeper and his family live.

FIND MURDERED MAN IN BROOKLYN WOODS

Body Covered with Knife Wounds Was Hidden in a Clump of Bushes.

HARD FIGHT FOR HIS LIFE

Police Think the Victim Was Killed Elsewhere—One Man Arrested on Suspicion.

Sunday strollers gathering wild flowers near the Paedergat Basin, in a remote section of Brooklyn, late yesterday afternoon, stumbled on the body of a man who had apparently been murdered. The dead man—an Italian, as he appeared to the police—lay in a clump of woods at Paedergat Avenue and East Forty-first Street, bearing fifteen stab wounds and with his features mutilated.

There was nothing to aid in establishing his identity, but an ambulance surgeon who was called was of the opinion that the crime had been committed not more than two hours before the discovery. The condition of the ground and other circumstances led the detectives to believe that the man was not killed at that spot, but that his body was carried there after the murder. Last night the police were searching the so-called "Pigtown" neighborhood—an Italian quarter some distance to the northward of the Paedergat section—for a clue.

The place where the body was found is an unfrequented spot on the border of Flatbush and Flatlands. At 5 o'clock in the afternon Frederick Andres and Hampton Andres, brothers, both living at 718 East Thirty-fifth Street, Brooklyn, were walking along a path leading through a thin wood and across the meadows when they saw what they at first thought to be a man asleep in the bushes.

A second look revealed to them that they had stumbled across a dead body. The man lay on his back, knife wounds showing everywhere on his body. The brothers hurried to the nearest telephone and communicated the news to the police.

Immediately detectives and uniformed policemen were sent to the scene from the Flatbush station. They scoured the woods and the neighborhood, but failed to find any trace of the murderer. There were fifteen stab wounds in the dead man's body. Seven of these were in the abdomen and others in the head and breast.

After giving him the death stabs the murderer had slashed off the man's nose, his right cheek and part of one of his ears. That he had made a desperate fight for life was evidenced by the condition of his hands. The left was split in the middle and part of the other cut off, as if he had seized a knife blade directed at him.

The police found nothing in the man's clothing. The condition of his clothes was such that they could not have been out in the rain of yesterday morning or Saturday night. There was no blood on the grass around the body, nor was there any appearance of a struggle having taken place there. These circumstances led the detectives to believe that the man had been killed elsewhere and then carried to the woods, probably in a wagon, but no one could be found who had seen a wagon there during the day.

Several persons out for a Sunday ramble had passed through the woods during the morning and afternoon, some of them over the spot where the body was found. Among them were Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Glynn of 3,508 Avenue F. They said that they had passed along the path picking wild flowers less than two hours before the discovery of the body, but had seen nothing unusual.

The dead man was apparently about 30 years old. He was about 5 feet 11 inches tall, well built, and muscular, and because of the strength he seemed to have possessed, the police feel certain that more than one man did the killing. The man wore no hat or shoes, and no such articles of apparel were found near him.

The Paedergat woods have been the scene of several murders and other crimes. About eighteen months ago a man, also an Italian, was found slain there, with his body mutilated. It was in a clump of woods near this spot that the two burglars, Giro and Schliemann, who shot and killed Mrs. Sophie Staber while robbing her home in Flatbush, took refuge and were captured. One of them had been wounded by the woman's son.

Besides the precinct men, District Inspector McCafferty, Inspector Russell, head of the city detective force, and Italian detectives from Brooklyn and Manhattan headquarters were seeking the murderers last night.

Lieut. Vachris, head of Brooklyn's Italian Detective Squad, was searching through the Barnegat woods an hour after the body of the unknown Italian had been found there. He heard a scuffling under some bushes and found under them an Italian, who at first pretended to be drunk, though he straightened up considerably when he was taken to the Flatbush Station, where he was looked up as a suspicious person.

The prisoner said he was Giovanni Ciparelli and that he worked in South Orange, N. J., although he lived at 223 Mulberry Street, this city, with Antonio Cuppa. He said he had got up yesterday morning, gone to Brooklyn, and was wandering around in the woods when arrested.

On his person the police found a pistol with two exploded shells in it and a green slip of paper having on it the number "1,521 Greenpoint," evidently a telephone number.

GIRLS ESCHEW HAT DISPLAY.

Smith College Students Decide on Simplicity on Baccalaureate Sunday.

Special to The New York Times.

NORTHAMPTON, Mass., May 22.—In order that graduation may be made as inexpensive as possible the senior class at Smith College has agreed not to wear any hats on Baccalaureate Sunday, June 12. This has hitherto been the great day of the year for millinery display for the college girls, and has been a trial for the less well-to-do seniors. The no-hat decision is the result of two months' agonized deliberation by the committee of three appointed to frame dressing rules. One of the committee told to-day how they made the decision, saying:

"We came to the conclusion that we could not institute any sweeping dress reform. But we have done one thing. We have decided that no hats shall be worn on Baccalaureate Sunday—the last occasion on which President Seelye is to address us. Last year it was dreadful. The hats made a sea of millinery that drowned not only the faces of the girls, but effectually swamped President Seelye himself. So no hats this time."

MOON ECLIPSED TO-NIGHT.

Yet May Be Seen Dimly in Reflected Sun Rays While in the Earth's Shadow

In lieu of the rapidly waning comet, there is another celestial attraction to-night.

The moon will go into total eclipse, and it is promised that the familiar satellite will present the interesting phenomenon of showing itself dimly while in the full shadow of the earth from 12:09 to 1 A. M. Astronomers in making up advance notices for the eclipse offer assurances that the phenomenon of a visible moon in eclipse will be possible through the fact that the light of the sun will bend around the earth and shine upon the moon in spite of all the earth can do to shut it off.

The eclipse will begin at 10:46 o'clock, when the moon enters the earth's shadow. At 12:09 A. M. it will become total, and at 1 o'clock the moon will begin to emerge. At 2:22 the eclipse will be over.

Comet parties wishing to take in both events are assured of a pleasant evening, provided the sky is clear, as there will be an intermission of only twenty-two minutes between the setting of the comet and the beginning of the eclipse.

PATENT MEDICINE KILLS TWO.

Children Die as a Result of Drinking from a Bottle of So-Called Tonic.

Special to The New York Times.

ELIZABETH, N. J., May 22.—As a result of taking an overdose of a patent medicine, which they found in a refrigerator while their mother was shopping, Alfred and Louise Couch, aged 3 and 6, respectively, children of Mr. and Mrs. John Couch of 532 High Street, died this morning.

The children found the bottle containing the medicine about 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon. They had been left in charge of their sister Rosa, 11 years old. When the mother returned the girl told her that her brother and sister had taken the medicine, which has been used as a tonic. The children showed no ill effects, and after eating a hearty supper were put to bed.

They awoke in great pain about 4:30 o'clock this morning. Dr. O. D. Agostos was summoned. He said the boy was beyond help and advised the mother to send the girl to the hospital. Mrs. Couch declined to do this, it is said, and about two hours afterward her daughter died. The Couches have lost four children by accident. Two were burned to death by playing with matches.

FAMOUS PONY PUNCH DEAD.

Lived Forty-five Years and Was Woodbury Kane's Mount.

Special to The New York Times.

POUGHKEEPSIE, May 22.—The late Woodbury Kane's famous polo and tandem pony, Punch, died Friday, at the age of 45 years, at the farm of A. T. Jones, in Hyde Park. He was buried yesterday in the front yard of Mr. Jones's home with all the care that could be accorded the interment of a human being.

Punch passed his 45th birthday on May 17. Woodbury Kane, his original owner, was a dashing polo player, and Punch the favorite mount. He was the best known horse in Newport. After Punch retired from the polo field, Mr. Kane sent him to the country home of an uncle, Walter Langdon, at Hyde Park, where he remained until the Langdon property was purchased by Frederick W. Vanderbilt fifteen years ago. Mr. Jones then took charge of Punch and he had not had a bit in his mouth for twenty-three years.

Woodbury Kane often visited his pet pony. He died two years ago. Mrs. Kane, who is in England, has sent checks regularly to Mr. Jones, and has expressed solicitude for Punch's welfare.

Several wealthy New Yorkers who have country homes at Hyde Park attended Punch's burial yesterday. They knew the old horse's history, and sentiment appealed strongly to them. The monument to be erected will say Punch was the oldest horse in the world.

CUT OFF A GIRL'S HAIR.

Some One in the Suffragist Union Square Crowd Was the Thief.

Miss Jeannette Toeplitz, the sixteen-year-old daughter of Dr. Max Toeplitz of 123 East Sixty-second Street, attended the suffragist meeting in Union Square last Saturday, and while being jostled in the crowd some one snipped off about twelve inches of her hair, presumably with a keen-edged pair of shears.

Miss Toeplitz's hair, which is a rich chestnut brown, was worn in a long braid down her back. It was fastened with a ribbon at her neck, and the end of the braid hung below her waist. She did not discover her loss until she was about to retire for the night.

She is a student at the Normal College, and had been asked to go to the suffragist meeting by the mother of one of her school friends. When the crowd in Union Square was breaking up she became separated from her companions and went home alone. She and her parents believe that the person who clipped her hair was either a practical joker with a perverted conception of humor or some one who wished to sell the hair.

SEE ANTI-BEVERIDGE PLOT.

Fairbanks Men Said to be Planning to Defeat Him.

Special to The New York Times.

INDIANAPOLIS, May 22.—Friends of Senator Beveridge are greatly aroused on the eve of the primaries by circumstantial charges of a conspiracy on the part of certain Republicans to defeat him for the Senate.

Joseph B. Keating, who was United States District Attorney for three years by courtesy of Mr. Fairbanks, is charged with being at the head of the conspiracy. It is said that he has held conferences with outside Republicans on plans for the Senator's defeat. W. D. Headdrick and his law partner, S. K. Ruick, declare that a meeting in furtherance of the conspiracy was held in their office.

Keating, it is charged, seeks to put Republicans on the legislative ticket here who would not vote for Beveridge, and this plan is to be followed in other districts. The men engaged in the conspiracy are all members of the old Fairbanks machine.

STEAL $10,000 GEMS FROM UNDER PILLOW

Mr. and Mrs. Vogel Not Awakened by Burglars, Who Also Get $600 Cash.

CONTAINED IN HANDBAG

Watches, Rings, Brooches, Pins, and Cuff Buttons, All Set with Jewels, Were the Accumulation of 21 Years.

Detective Sergeants Ryan and Ferrell of Newark are investigating a strange robbery at the home of Samuel Vogel, a Springfield Avenue shoe dealer, who resides at 190 Fairmount Avenue. The burglars, who are supposed to have entered after 2 o'clock yesterday morning, carried off $600 in cash and jewelry valued at $10,000, which the family had been accumulating for the last twenty-one years.

The stolen articles include a gold bracelet set with eleven diamonds, a gold watch with three large diamonds encircled with rubies, a butterfly brooch with five emeralds, one opal and seventy-five diamonds, a crescent brooch with three large diamonds, surrounded by eight smaller diamonds; a gold ring with diamonds, a platinum ring with diamonds, a marquise ring with twenty-five diamonds, a gold ring with a diamond and turquoises, a gold cigar cutter with diamonds, a gold owl-head fob with solitaire in back and diamond eyes, a pair of diamond cuff buttons, and several gold and diamond stickpins.

With the exception of $15 or $20 and a gold watch and chain taken from the vest of Mr. Vogel, all the money and jewelry was taken from a small handbag under the pillow of a bed on which Mr. and Mrs. Vogel were sleeping.

After closing the store, instead of putting his money and jewelry in a safe, as usual, Mr. Vogel slipped it into his wife's handbag. At 12 o'clock they left the store, and after reaching home ate a luncheon and retired. The servant, who arrived home at midnight, found the back door bolted on the inside and had to climb in a pantry window. The police believe the thief entered through this same window and concealed himself until the family were asleep.

When Mrs. Vogel awoke yesterday morning she reached for her husband's watch, but discovered that his vest and trousers were not on a chair where he had left them. She aroused her husband, who at once exclaimed that burglars must have been in the house.

Mrs. Vogel then discovered that the bag of money and jewelry was gone from beneath the pillow. The coat, vest, trousers, and a wallet of Mr. Vogel and the empty handbag were found in the dining room, the door of which was locked, but there was nothing to indicate how the thief had entered.

Despite careful questioning of every one in the house, the detectives found little on which to work. They say there are several peculiar features which first will have to be unraveled before the thief can be traced or the property recovered.

ATTACK SCHOOL; TWO DEAD.

Gang Interrupts Closing Exercises and Starts Pistol Fight.

Special to The New York Times.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., May 22.—Two are dead and three are wounded as the result of a revolver battle in Grand Prairie, near Opelousas, La., last night. The affray took place at the closing exercises of the High School there.

A gang led by Odre Vidrine attempted to enter the hall with drawn guns. The ward constable, C. Doucett, intercepted them, and was immediately fired upon by Vidrine. Doucett returned the fire, killing Vidrine instantly. The others of the gang then opened a fusillade on the officer, who had in the meantime been joined by his brother Regile. The two Doucetts were shot down, but Homer Solineaux, another of the gang, was killed before the brave officer and his brother were rendered helpless.

Constable Doucett is seriously wounded and his brother fatally. Three of the gang engaged in the shooting, but who escaped injury, were brought to jail this morning. All are members of well-known families. The Doucetts are among the best people of that county, and wield much influence in political and business affairs. The tragedy is the result of an old feud, to which six men have now been sacrificed.

STATE LOANS FOR WORKERS.

Father McQuaid Would Have Them Cultivate Idle Land.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, May 22.—The Rev. William P. McQuaid, pastor of St. James's Church, which is in one of the poorer parts of the city, advocates State loans to working men or women that they may cultivate the unoccupied land in outlying sections and thereby solve the problem of overcrowding in the tenement-house districts.

"It is the duty of the State to do this," he said to-day. "The theory is not Socialistic, but is a remedy for Socialism. The Socialists contend that we do not properly care for our working men and women of ordinary means.

"Outside of our cities is plenty of land which is lying idle and needs cultivation. People are looking for such an opportunity, contrary to the general opinion, and will go back to the land which in many cases has been deserted by the sons of farmers, who have flocked to the cities.

"Those who would seize on the chance to open up the land would, in my opinion, decrease in a great measure the overcrowding of the cities. The loans could be made on a reasonable basis as regards interest, and I feel sure that it would be only a short time before they would be paid back by the average workingman."

BOSTON, May 22.—Julia Ward Howe will be 91 years old Friday. On that day a portrait of her by her son-in-law, John Elliott, will be hung in the New Art Museum. At her home, 241 Beacon Street, this afternoon Mrs. Howe talked for a time about the picture and herself.

"This likeness is as I want to be known to my many friends, whom I have not been able to see for some time," she said, "and I want it to be considered official."

Mrs. Elliott said: "It is not the picture of Julia Ward Howe, the public woman, but a likeness of my mother. The work was done in the morning, just after we had all had our breakfast and were [illegible]

EARTHQUAKE AT SALT LAKE.

SALT LAKE CITY, Utah, May 22.—Sunday morning slumber of the residents of this city was disturbed by a violent rocking of the earth, the seismograph at the State University recording a disturbance of thirty seconds. The earthquake was sharp and caused considerable damage to crockery, chimneys, and old adobe houses. The shock occurred at 7:28 A. M., and was followed by two other shocks, one at 8:39 A. M., and the other at 11:24.

The tremor was local, being confined within a radius of fifty miles. Slight damage is reported from the towns of Bingham and Garfield.

TORNADO STRIKES CAIRO.

Plays Tricks with Some Houses, but Kills Nobody.

CAIRO, Ill., May 22.—A tornado which struck Cairo at 6:40 P. M., demolished four homes, damaged a dozen more, and destroyed several barns, besides tearing many large trees up by the roots. One woman was severely bruised and several persons slightly injured.

The house of Henry Smith was lifted bodily from its foundation, carried about fifty feet northward, and landed bottom-side up. Mrs. Smith and three children were in the house, and the former was painfully bruised, while the children were slightly injured.

The home of Arthur Linguest was carried 100 feet away and landed right side up badly twisted. The occupants escaped with slight injuries.

While members of the family of William Wise were at supper the storm lifted the roof suddenly. A large barn was carried 200 feet, and landed on a coal shed. The tornado appeared to be about 100 feet wide.

ELKHART, Ind., May 22.—The plant of the C. G. Conn Company, said to have been the largest manufacturers of brass band instruments in the world, was destroyed by fire early to-night, entailing a loss of $500,000.

One of the night watchmen, Roy Edgerly, was burned to death. His body was recovered from the ruins of the buildings. The amount of the insurance is not known.

MAIL CARRIER ARRESTED.

Accused of Robbery for Four Years—Acquitted Once Before.

CHICAGO, May 22.—Albert C. Gordon, for nineteen years a Chicago mail carrier, was arrested to-day by order of Post Office Inspector James E. Stuart, who says Gordon has confessed to robbing the mails for more than four years. Complaints from all over the country in the last four years of the loss of money from registered letters had baffled officials.

Gordon was arrested five years ago on a similar charge, but there was not enough evidence to convict him, and he was continued in the service.

HAS WEALTHY MAN ARRESTED.

Van Sciver Resents Buckhout's Interest in His Family Affairs.

Special to The New York Times.

STAMFORD, May 22.—John F. Buckhout, a wealthy real estate dealer, was arrested last night on a charge of assaulting Herbert Van Sciver and his 17-year-old daughter, Gladys.

Van Sciver and the girl say Buckhout is infatuated with her, and that is the cause of the trouble. Buckhout says he is actuated solely by a fatherly interest in Miss Van Sciver. He holds a mortgage on the Van Sciver home which Van Sciver says gives him the idea that he has the right to regulate the conduct of the whole Van Sciver family.

Buckhout lives with his wife, near the Van Sciver home. He is 63 years old and has three married children.

THE PLAZA HOTEL, SUMMER GARDEN and Terrace will open Wednesday evening, May 25th. Special music. Table reservations by appointment.

HIRE TRAINS AND SHIP CATCH MAURETANIA

Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Chalmers, Chicagoans, Make Record Time Toward Daughter's Bedside.

SUMMONED FROM CARLSBAD

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, May 22.—There boarded the Mauretania at Queenstown this morning two American passengers who had made a record journey from Carlsbad, using a special steamer and two special trains in order to catch the fast Cunarder. These two Americans were W. J. Chalmers of Chicago, of the firm of Harrison & Chalmers, and Mr. Chalmers's wife, and they were called home by the sudden illness of their daughter. Mr. and Mrs. Chalmers were at Carlsbad when the news reached them Friday by cablegram that their daughter, Mrs. Herman Williams, Jr., had been taken suddenly ill of appendicitis at her home in Chicago, and that an operation was imperative.

Mr. Chalmers cabled back that he and Mrs. Chalmers would start for America at once, and he determined to catch the Mauretania at Queenstown this morning.

They took the Vienna express to Paris and thence traveled to Calais. After the voyage from Calais to Dover Mr. and Mrs. Chalmers traveled to Reading where a special train was awaiting to cover the next stage of the journey to Fishguard. A special turbine steamer had been ordered to be in waiting at Fishguard and another special train to be ready at Rosslare, County Wexford, Ireland.

On their arrival at the Welsh port, therefore, only a few minutes elapsed before Mr. and Mrs. Chalmers went aboard the fleetest of the Great Western Railway Company's ships. Lines were cast off instantly and the voyage across the Irish Channel commenced. During the crossing the Mauretania passed them on her way from Liverpool to Queenstown, steaming at twenty-five knots an hour.

At Rosslare a powerful engine and a saloon carriage were in waiting, and at 1 o'clock this morning the Americans were off for Queenstown. Three hours and seven minutes later the train had sped over the Irish portion of the journey, and Mr. and Mrs. Chalmers reached Queenstown three hours before the Mauretania sailed from that port. They should reach New York Thursday night.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, May 22.—The serious illness of their daughter, Mrs. Herman Williams, Jr., caused Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Chalmers to cut short their stay in Europe and return in haste to Chicago. At the Chalmers residence, 1,100 Lake Shore Drive, this evening it was said they would reach Chicago this week. Mrs. Williams is suffering from an attack of appendicitis, and her physicians have said that she must undergo an operation. Her father and mother were notified, and the operation will be performed as soon as they reach Chicago.

SPECIAL TRAINS TO A TRIAL.

Hundreds Going to Hear the Testimony in the Jane Adams Murder Case.

Special to The New York Times.

MAY'S LANDING, N. J., May 22.—Special trains will be run from Atlantic City to-morrow to take to the Court House at this place hundreds of curious spectators who will attend the trial of William Seyler for the murder of Jane Adams, his sweetheart.

As there is nothing in the law to justify such a course, Sheriff Johnson has been obliged to refuse scores of applications for passes to the trial, and the first persons at the door will be admitted. Farmers for miles around will drive in at daylight, and many Atlantic City people will come in automobiles.

Seyler was closeted to-day with relatives and his counsel, Edmund C. Gaskill, Jr., who visited him in his cell. What the defense will be has not been made known. How Jane Adams met her death on the Million Dollar Pier on the stormy night of Feb. 4 only the accused man knows, and the prosecution must prove his story of the girl's death false or give the benefit of the doubt to the prisoner.

On the night of the tragedy Seyler, with his younger brother Orvis, took Jane and Alice Adams to the pier to see a moving picture exhibition and to dance. During the night Seyler and Jane Adams seemed much wrought up over something. Finally they left the hall and went out toward the end of the pier, which is unused during the Winter months. A high gale was blowing, dashing the spray over the railings. Orvis Seyler and Alice Adams followed a short distance into the inky blackness, but soon turned back, and when Seyler returned half an hour later he was alone.

When Jane Adams did not return the next day Mrs. Chalmers Adams, the mother, went to Seyler's home and begged him to tell her where her daughter was. Seyler denied all knowledge of her disappearance. A few days later he, too, disappeared. About a week passed before the body of Miss Adams was washed ashore. There was a jagged wound in the head, which the physicians say caused death before her body reached the water.

Search was begun for Seyler, who was caught at Petersburg, Va., with his brother Orvis, and brought back to face the charge of murder. Seyler broke down and made a voluntary confession, admitting that he was with the girl on the end of the pier and knew she was killed, asserting, however, that it was through an accident.

Armour Gift of $70,000.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, May 22.—A gift of $70,000 from J. Ogden Armour to the Armour Institute of Technology was announced to-day by President Frank W. Gunsaulus. The gift was made just before Mr. Armour's recent departure for Europe, but had not been made public. In addition to the gift of Mr. Armour, announcement was made of three new scholarships in the Departments of Mechanical and Electrical Engineering endowed by Bernard M. Sunny.

THE COMET HIDDEN; ITS GLORY DIMMING

Will Only Rank with Third-Rate Stars If It Should Be Seen Again.

AURORA IN THE HEAVENS

And Moonlight in a Golden Glow Behind Varied Clouds Console Disappointed Comet Watchers.

	To-day.	To-morrow.
Sun sets	7:14	7:15
Comet sets	10:24	10:35

Not even as a blur behind the clouds did Halley's comet show itself to Manhattan last night. As on the night before, the weather was to blame. Storm clouds thick and dense fog lower down prevented both a view early in the evening or as the time approached when the comet was due to set.

In spite of the weather conditions, however, comet parties gathered on many apartment house and hotel roofs, their members hoping that the clouds that shut out the moon and stars would lift a little in the west before 10 o'clock and let a glimpse of the heavenly vagrant through. In this, however, they were disappointed.

There was not breeze enough to stir the clouds at any time through the evening. Had the comet appeared it would have been, according to schedule, eighteen times as bright as it was on April 20, when it first appeared. On May 20, when a view of it in the west was first expected it was scheduled to be twenty-seven times its initial brilliance, and it was on seeing it at that stage of its career that the astronomers counted in predicting that it would startle the world with its splendor. In brilliance now it would rank only with third rate stars if seen in a clear sky.

It should have appeared last night to the left and a little below Castor and Pollux, the twin guide stars that hang half way up the heavens, a little south of the point where the sun goes down. To-night, with a brightness of only ten times what it first displayed, the comet should appear almost even with Castor and Pollux, to their left, and in line with the constellation of the Sickle.

The comet from now on will rapidly lose both in size and brilliance. On Wednesday it will be only half as bright as to-night, and will rank among the faintest of the stars. While it will remain visible after that for a week or more, its brightness will steadily diminish, until on May 30 it will be only twice as bright as on April 20, when it could barely be made out.

The comet may therefore be said to have come and gone amid a maze of free advertising and advance notices without making the world in any sensational manner really aware of its presence. None of those who forespoke big things for it would admit last night that there now remains any chance for it to stir the populace with glory.

The people who turned out to watch the sky last night were not left without a compensating spectacle, however, in spite of the absence of the central attraction. The sky was perhaps more beautiful and varied than on any night this year. The clouds that spread across the zenith were very heavy, and the moonlight shining from the back of them lit the whole heavens with a golden glow that seldom has been seen. Auroral lights in the north added to the spectacle, while in the east and south, along the horizon, flashes of lightning constantly sent up brilliant hued bands of light.

Only such a night as would have inspired the crowd as much as the comet would, had it occurred on Wednesday when the "vice sinuous tail" of the recent appearance notices was due to "brush the earth in side-swiping fashion." The lights at Sandy Hook and at other points along the ocean front were caught up by the cloud banks and reflected in lively colors until the whole heavens were a constantly changing panorama of color.

In Brooklyn a fire of some kind started about 10 o'clock, and light from this, reflected over a large sky patch, caused several persons to telephone THE TIMES that the comet's tail had reappeared, and was in the southeastern sky.

Along the Battery water front several thousand people gathered to see the comet and watched the skies until long after it had set behind the cloud banks at 9:58 o'clock.

Has the Comet Two Tails?

ANN ARBOR, Mich., May 22.—Prof. W. K. Hussey of the University of Michigan Observatory said last night that the cablegram from Johannesburg, in connection with photographs made at the Michigan Observatory, explains the hitherto contradictory reports as to the presence of the comet's tail in both the east and west.

"Our photographs," said Prof. Hussey, "indicated two tails, one a short bright one superimposed above a less distinct horizontal appendage, both extending southward away from the sun.

"In view of the reports that one tail is now visible at night in the west and the other in the morning in the east, it is probable that the earth is between these two tails, having passed through one of them."

Made a Comet to Order.

PLAINFIELD, N. J., May 22.—A manufacturer of searchlights has satisfied the curiosity of the comet gazers who for the last few nights have searched for the wanderer in this city. He has mounted a thirty-six-inch electric searchlight—battleship size—on the roof of his factory. In the misty atmosphere of last night the tail of the fake comet shooting upward into the sky was an impressive spectacle.

TWO SEE COMET AND DIE.

White Woman and Negro Succumb to Excitement.

TALADEGA, Ala., May 22.—The appearance of the comet this evening caused intense excitement here. Congregations of several churches left their pews and hundreds of persons stood excited in the square and gazed at the celestial visitor.

Miss Ruth Jordan, daughter of a farmer living two miles from here, was called to the door of her home to see the comet and immediately fell dead, physicians assigning heart failure as the cause. An unknown negro on the depot platform was shown the comet and instantly dropped dead.

BAKER BUYS TEXAS CENTRAL.

Organizing Company to Take Over Property Next Month.

Special to The New York Times.

AUSTIN, Texas, May 22.—R. H. Baker of this city, former President of the Trinity & Brazos Valley Railroad, is the purchaser of the Texas Central Railroad, and not Edwin Hawley, present owner of the Missouri, Kansas & Texas and other large railroad properties.

The first authentic news of the acquisition of the road was received here to-day in a telegram from Mr. Baker, who is in New York, to his secretary, Roy Taylor. According to the telegram, Mr. Baker completed the deal on May 13, and will organize a company to take over the property early next month.

Woman Gambler Rearrested.

EL PASO, Texas, May 22.—In the custody of United States Marshal Fletcher of Washington, Mrs. Josephine Dehis, a woman of advanced age, was taken through here to-night. She was arrested in Washington, D. C., in March, charged with running a gambling house, but forfeited her bond of $3,000. She was traced to Clifton, Ariz., where she was arrested yesterday.

WIND STOPS PLANE FLIGHTS.

Thousands Disappointed by Halt of the Hempstead Trials.

Special to The New York Times.

HEMPSTEAD, L. I., May 22.—Thousands of sightseers who came out to the Hempstead Plains this afternoon to see the aeroplane flights of Clifford Harmon and Capt. E. C. Baldwin were disappointed owing to a stiff wind that blew from the ocean, making flying dangerous. Both aeronauts were at their camp and waited until after sundown for the wind to drop.

Hundreds of automobiles came from Brooklyn, Manhattan, and all parts of Long Island, and the scene about the Hempstead Plains took on the air of a Vanderbilt Cup race.

Thousands of visitors also came out from Manhattan by train and stayed about the headquarters of the various machines all the afternoon, hoping to see a flight. Many in society came from the Meadow Brook and Rockaway Hunt Clubs, and from Westbury, Wheatley Hills, Oyster Bay, Woodmere, Lawrence, Cedarhurst, and Great Neck. Among the visitors were Thomas Hitchcock, Jr., Mrs. A. Scott Burden, W. B. Cocks, Mrs. Oliver H. P. Belmont, the Misses Wright of Hempstead, and Mr. and Mrs. W. Bourke Cockran. Flights by Harmon and Capt. Baldwin will be made to-morrow evening. The damaged machines of Mr. Harmon and Joe Seymour have been repaired.

NO RETURN CHANNEL FLIGHT.

High Winds Prevent de Lesseps from Flying Back to France.

DOVER, England, May 22.—On account of the high winds prevailing Count Jacques de Lesseps, who crossed the Channel yesterday in an aeroplane, being the second man to perform the feat, abandoned his intention of flying back to Calais this morning.

When M. de Lesseps started from Calais yesterday afternoon his intention was to cross the Channel and recross it without alighting, and thus win the Ruinart prize of $2,500. The fog forced him to give up this plan of doubling Bleriot's achievement and descend near here, and prevented him also from attempting the return flight, now again postponed, the same day.

BUSY IN QUEENS STAMP GRAFT

Grand Jury Takes Up Case To-day—Fosdick Gets Gresser's Books.

The Queens County Grand Jury, which convenes in Long Island City this morning to consider the postage-stamp graft charges against Municipal Court Judge John M. Cragen, is expected to report on the case within a few days. Subpoenas have been issued for those who are supposed to know most about the twenty-one instances in which bills for stamps were raised from $5 to $50. Borough President Gresser's letter books have been seized by Commissioner of Accounts Fosdick to demonstrate to the Grand Jury, it is said, how many letters actually were sent.

Friends of Judge Cragen, during whose incumbency as secretary to President Gresser irregularities occurred, say that stamps were purchased until the amount reached $50 and then a voucher was raised from $5 to $50 to cover the entire amount used, the irregularity being a mere matter of department bookkeeping.

Commissioner Fosdick plans to shatter this defense, and his next move may be to send in a report on President Gresser himself.

Gustave Newman, formerly a Sewer Department Inspector, testified that he was summoned by President Gresser and asked in his office to sign a false inspection report on a sewer, but his memory failed him when he was asked who asked him to do so. That is a point which Commissioner Fosdick hopes to clear up.

Newman was in the Commissioner's office several times last week, and after one lengthy session he said that Commissioner Fosdick had received from him "all the evidence necessary for him to have."

While he refused to state what this was, he indicated that he did not expect to be called before the Commissioner again.

The graft hunt, which to a large extent has stripped President Gresser of his official family, is not yet through its preliminary stages. Five indictments, two resignations, and four bureau clerks dismissed is the toll to date.

YOUNG ARTIST IS ANGRY.

Declares Instructors In Art Students' League Sought to Harm Him.

Special to The New York Times

WATERBURY, Conn., May 22.—Joseph Trott, some of whose paintings were recently kept out of an exhibition of the Art Students' League in New York, has come home, and is angry.

He denies that he was dismissed from the league for insubordination and trouble he made, and says he quit, leaving his scholarship unfinished because he could no longer bear with instructors whom he was certain were planning to exclude him from deserving honors. He will finish his studies in Rome. His real grievance is that he had to remove some of his best paintings because he took the subjects from the streets instead of models.

NO DISPUTE LIKELY OVER WYMAN GIFT

Princeton Authorities Think Recent Graduate School Controversy Will Not Be Revived.

GIFT LESS THAN $10,000,000

But Considered Ample for the Purpose—President Wilson Declines to Discuss the Matter.

Special to The New York Times.

PRINCETON, May 22.—News of the bequest of the Wyman fortune for a Princeton Graduate School did not reach here until this morning. The first question it brought up was what effect it would have on the Graduate School controversy, which resulted in the withdrawal of William Cooper Procter's offer of $500,000 for the same purpose. Owing principally to the lack of funds necessary for the new school the controversy has remained rather a dead issue for the last two months. The two parties have had much time to think the matter over, and it is generally thought that it will not be revived.

One of the Faculty, who has been conversant with the situation all along, said to-day that matters pertaining to the location, size, and supervision of the projected school would be left entirely to the Board of Trustees of the university, and that the decision of that body would be accepted by all harmoniously.

Those who have hitherto supported Dean West in his difference of opinion with President Wilson, are especially inclined to this opinion. It is believed by many that in the planning of the new institution, which will now be on a much larger scale, owing to the larger sum of money at hand, a harmonizing of the ideas of President Wilson and those of Dean West will be possible.

It is believed here that the amount of the bequest, reported as $10,000,000, will be not more than between $2,000,000 and $3,000,000. This sum was named by Trustee Raymond of Salem, in answer to an inquiry from the university as a conservative estimate of Mr. Wyman's fortune. This, however, would be sufficient to erect and endow a graduate school, which would rank with the best in the country.

President Woodrow Wilson, when seen to-night, said he had received no official notification of the bequest, and could make no statement. Dean West, who was named as a trustee of the Wyman estate, left on Friday for Salem. He will be gone for a week.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, May 22.—In the will of Isaac C. Wyman, which bequeaths practically his entire fortune to the Graduate School of Princeton University, Princeton alumni here find the reason for the mysterious withdrawal by William C. Procter of Cincinnati last January of his offer of $500,000 and the resultant withdrawal of a similar sum raised conditionally by the alumni for the same purpose. They also understand now how Dean Andrew S. West, who favored a segregated site for the Graduate School, has been supported in his long controversy with President Wilson, who with all his power and influence as the executive head of the university has been unable to bring about the selection of the college campus as the site for the institution.

That Dean West had a private understanding with Mr. Wyman, and at least since July 1 of last year, when the Salem recluse made his will, knew that the Wyman millions would some day come to the university and make the Graduate School one of the greatest in America, is now apparent.

John M. Raymond, an attorney of Salem, one of the trustees under the Wyman will, said to-night that Mr. Wyman and Dean West had a complete understanding as to the disposition of the Wyman millions in building up an institution that should "turn out men who will become a force in the Nation" and were in thorough accord in their ideas as to how this might be done.

Mr. Raymond was the next-door neighbor of the millionaire and one of the very few who had more than a speaking or business acquaintance with him. Dean West and Mr. Raymond are put in charge of the estate as executors under the will and will have practically absolute power in handling the great fortune.

The Wyman bequest and the "inside politics," which have lost to the Graduate School at least $1,500,000, from three other sources in the last few months, were discussed at the Princeton alumni smoker in Boston on Saturday evening. Dean West was one of the guests. He is now at the home of an alumnus, but will probably make his future headquarters at Mr. Wyman's old Boston office in School Street, hard at work with Mr. Raymond on the task of settling up the affairs of the estate.

Dean West brought with him from Princeton a spray of ivy from the college campus, and after the funeral in Salem Saturday placed it upon the grave. It is said that this was done in accordance with a private request made by Mr. Wyman just before his death, which revealed one of the few touches of romance in his long life of stern application to the self-appointed task of amassing a fortune and acquiring knowledge.

"A great institution that shall stand second to none, not even the famous universities of Germany and England, is planned in Mr. Wyman's generous bequest to the Graduate School of Princeton University," said Mr. Raymond to-day. "By authority of the Trustees Dean West traveled extensively abroad, and finally prepared a plan for the development of the Graduate School along the broadest lines. Mr. Wyman had already decided what disposition to make of his fortune and had fixed upon a plan similar to that advocated later by Dean West. He was a great admirer of Grover Cleveland, who was the first Chairman of the Board of Trustees, and they had discussed the subject.

"Mr. Wyman had the most remarkable intellect of any man I have ever known. His mind was wonderfully keen up to the time of his death. I suppose I have known him better and more intimately than any other now living, and I have never known his equal."

Mr. Wyman's extensive realty holdings in various parts of the country are of unknown value, and it may be months before the executors have completed a definite inventory. The Salem attorney has for many years assisted Mr. Wyman in his business dealings and is more intimately acquainted with his affairs than anybody else.

Memorial Fount for Harvard.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., May 22.—Robert Stowe Bradley of Boston, Harvard, '76, has given the university a sum of money to be used in erecting a large drinking fount in memory of his son, Robert Stowe Bradley, Jr., '07, who died soon after graduating. Mr. Bradley has also provided enough money to complete the class of '76 fence.

COINCIDENCE IN OPERATIONS.

Sisters Have Appendices Cut Out on Same Day, Though Far Apart.

Special to The New York Times.

MONTCLAIR, N. J., May 22.—Word has been received here that Miss Margery Taube, daughter of Count Hening G. Taube of Highland Avenue, who went abroad to be presented at the Court of Sweden, suffered an attack of appendicitis, for which she underwent an operation. She is reported to be recovering.

By a strange coincidence her younger sister, Miss Kestan Taube, underwent an operation on the same day that her sister was under the same ordeal. The younger woman, who was operated on at the Mountainside Hospital here, is also convalescent. The uncle of the young women is Prime Minister of the Swedish Government.

LORIMER IN WASHINGTON.

May Demand a Bribery Inquiry by the Senate To-day.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 22.—Senator William Lorimer, who is said to owe his election to the Senate to purchased votes, reached Washington to-night from Chicago, and probably will demand in the Senate to-morrow or next day an investigation of the charges.

Senator Lorimer, who was accompanied by his two sons, William, Jr., and Leonard, denied himself to all callers to-night. It is understood that he will consult friends in the Senate and House to-morrow before making up his mind as to his course.

It is known that he is now considering the advisability of doing one of two things. He will either rise to a question of personal privilege on the floor of the Senate, and enter a defense of himself, and his election, or he will couple with such a defense the request that the Senate take the initiative and institute an investigation of its own.

Senator Lorimer, it is learned, brought with him a mass of documentary evidence purporting to show that there exists in Illinois a political plot to deprive him of his seat, and to injure him in connection with certain financial enterprises recently undertaken in Chicago. He is undecided whether he will make this evidence public.

THREE BALLINGER REPORTS.

Regulars, Democrats, and Insurgent Expected to Present Them.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 22.—Unless there is a different indication of sentiment in the Ballinger-Pinchot committee from what was shown during the hearing just closed, there will be three separate findings and perhaps two recommendations.

It is expected that the majority of the Republicans will uphold Ballinger. The Democrats will probably make a finding that will be severe on Ballinger and the Administration, and one that will be very useful in the coming campaign. Representative Madison of Kansas, the insurgent, is not likely to subscribe to either, and make a report all his own.

Madison has all through the case flocked somewhat by himself. He has not felt that he was bound by party ties to sustain the Administration to the extent of doing anything that seemed to him unfair, and when the Democrats showed a disposition to throw politics into the case he has been equally prompt to vote against them. Among those who have attended most of the hearings, there has been a feeling that Madison's part has been most careful, and usually the most fair in the rulings the committee has had to make.

MAINE BOUNDARY FIXED.

Line Which Divides State from Canada Established by Treaty Just Signed.

WASHINGTON, May 22.—The international boundary between the United States and Canada, along the southeast coast of Maine has been fixed, according to a treaty signed yesterday by Ambassador Bryce and Secretary of State Knox, as running from a point in Passamaquoddy Bay, between Treat Island and Friar Head, and extending through the bay to the middle of Grand Manan Channel. The treaty, it is expected, will be submitted to the Senate to-morrow for approval. The line was located without resort to the arbitration provided for in the treaty of 1908, between Great Britain and the United States.

The true location of the line has been a subject of contention for more than a century, the intent and meaning of the treaties of 1783 and 1814 and the award of the Commissioners appointed under the latter treaty never having been accepted as final. Under the treaty of 1908 it was provided that each Government should submit agreements in the matter, and that if no agreement was reached within a fixed time it should be arbitrated. Although the time fixed had expired, the two Governments have settled the question without resort to arbitration.

VENUS SUNK NO GUNBOAT.

At Least Washington Has Heard Nothing of Encounter with Estradist Vessel

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 22.—Reports to the effect that the steamship Venus, said to be in the service of the Madriz faction in Nicaragua, had sunk the Estradist gunboat Omotepe off Punta Gorda had received no confirmation at the State Department here to-night.

The Venus sailed from New Orleans some time ago after vain attempts on the part of Estradist agents in this country to have her detained as a filibuster. It was said she carried arms to Madriz. Subsequently she was reported as being at Greytown equipped as a gunboat, and expected to assist in Madriz's contemplated attempt to dislodge the Estradists from Bluefields.

Various dispatches from Greytown and Bluefields have spoken of the vessel in connection with attempts of the factions to extend the range of their fighting operations to the sea. Reports of an actual encounter are not seriously regarded here.

Two days' fighting near Rama, Nicaragua, has cost the Estrada forces fourteen killed and twenty-nine wounded, according to a report to the State Department from Consul Moffat at Bluefields. The casualties of the Madriz forces, he adds, were not learned. Gen. Mena retired after the fight to his intrenchments. Large quantities of ammunition and provisions, said to be the entire stores of the Madriz forces at Bluefields, the Consul reports, were said to have been captured by Gen. Moncada of the Estrada faction.

SUNDAY SCHOOL PRAISED.

Special Sermons On Its Value Preached In Many Lands.

WASHINGTON, May 22.—Churches in every clime to-day echoed the precepts of the World's Sunday School Association, which is holding its sixth annual convention in Washington, by the observance through a common form of service of the "world's Sunday school day." Ministers in every land preached special sermons on the value of the Sunday school and the duty of parents and guardians of the young in the matter of religious training.

In this city special services were conducted in all the Protestant churches. Delegates from the Executive Committee of the convention visited every Sunday school. There were missionary rallies for boys and girls during the afternoon, and in the evening missionary meetings in more than a hundred churches were addressed by foreign missionaries fresh from the field.

WHY THE RICH SMUGGLE.

Prof. Muensterberg Says They Do Not Personify the Government.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, May 22.—Prof. Hugo Münsterberg, the Harvard psychologist, has been considering the mental state which leads the rich to smuggle. His attention was directed to this subject by the cases of two prominent New Englanders, ex-Gov. Rollins of New Hampshire and Mrs. F. B. Chesbrough of Boston, who have got into trouble with the New York customs men.

"The sense of honor is the same in the average of persons in all classes, and for that very reason we should not be amazed by cases of smuggling wherein the accused are persons of wealth and so-called social standing," he said to-day. "That a person able to purchase a $25,000 necklace tries to evade paying customs duties on the ornament is not remarkable. If it had been an article of 25 cents value, nobody would have given it a second thought.

"We all know, you as well as I, that these same persons, or others of their class, would pay their bills to their grocers, their butchers, or their tailors. The trouble is that they are unable to personify the United States Government, and therefore they do not hesitate to try to defraud it. Because they regard it as impersonal [illegible]

BISHOP CONFIRMS THE AGED POOR

Touching Ceremony on Blackwell's Island Was Attended by 400 Inmates of City Home.

MANY SAD STORIES HEARD

An Amherst Graduate and a Former Judge from California Among the Congregation—Darby and Joan Sit Together.

Thirteen inmates of the New York Home for the Aged and Infirm on Blackwell's Island were confirmed by Bishop Partridge of Central Japan in the Chapel of the Good Shepherd, which adjoins the home, yesterday afternoon.

Bishop Partridge, who officiated owing to the illness of Bishop Greer, was assisted by the Rev. Robert B. Kimber, Superintendent of the Protestant Episcopal City Missions; the Rev. I. W. Beard, Chaplain of the Chapel of the Good Shepherd; the Rev. W. H. Weeks, Chaplain of the City Hospital, Blackwell's Island; the Rev. C. P. Tinker, Chaplain of the Tombs Prison, and the Rev. E. M. Pert, a colored clergyman.

There were some 400 in the congregation, most of whom were inmates of the home. Among them were men who had been known in their prosperous days in society. One was a graduate of Amherst and a lawyer who in his seventieth year can find no better home than that provided for him on the island. Another in the congregation was Judge Badgley. The old title still sticks to him, though he is 80 years old, and it is many years now since he was a Judge in the civil courts in California. In his day, it is said, he contributed $10,000 to charity.

Then there were two actors, John Roe and Harry Courtaine. Courtaine was once noted for his impersonation of Simon Legree in "Uncle Tom's Cabin," and traveled all over the country.

Of the thirteen confirmed, only three were women. These were Helen Klat, 65 years old; Julia Englehart, 73 years old, and Fanny McDermott, 68 years old. The men's ages averaged between 65 and 80. All of them were able to walk to the chancel but Peter Schmidt, 73 years old. Owing to blindness and paralysis, he had to be led. Schmidt left Germany in 1871 and became a farmer on Staten Island. He survived his wife and three children, and two years ago stricken with blindness and partially paralyzed, he became an inmate of the home, where he gets around on crutches, assisted by another inmate. Schmidt has no relatives, "only the Lord," as he said after he had been confirmed.

Alexander Dunstan, 67 years old, who came from Aberdeen, Scotland, twenty years ago, was another of those confirmed. Two years and a half ago Dunstan and his wife were both stricken with illness at the same time. Their small savings soon went, and, there being no one to take care of them, they both came to the Island. They have one daughter living in New York, but she has a large family and is unable to care for the old couple. One could not help thinking of Darby and Joan when watching them yesterday as they sat together. Mrs. Dunstan smiling into the more serious but none the less sympathetic face of the old Scotchman. Dunstan is an engraver and though he does not think he could follow his old trade, yet he is anxious to get a place as a janitor or in some light occupation.

After the service Bishop Partridge had a few words of kindly talk with all those who had been confirmed, and inquired into their histories.

ESCAPES FROM THE NAVY YARD

Prisoner Disappears from Guardhouse, and None Understands How.

Stephen J. Ludlow, a marine at the navy yard, escaped from the guardhouse of the marine barracks there early yesterday morning. He was a prisoner, awaiting transfer to the Portsmouth Navy Yard, where he was to begin a two years' sentence for desertion.

How Ludlow passed the guard is a mystery, but it is believed that he is still in the yard, as it would be almost impossible to pass the sentries without detection.

The navy yard authorities, however, notified the Flushing Avenue Police Station, and an alarm was sent out for the fugitive. Ludlow was dressed in a khaki suit, with the letter "P" in red on the back of his coat, indicating that he is a prisoner.

WALPOLE TAKEN TO BELLEVUE

Promoter Removed from the Knickerbocker for Mental Observation.

Stanley H. C. Walpole of 455 Boulevard Avenue, Weehawken, who is said to be an incorporator of the Hudson Selling Company of New Jersey, as well as head of an office division of the National Biscuit Company, was taken to Bellevue Hospital last night for observation as to his mental condition. Mr. Walpole went to the Hotel Knickerbocker about 9 P. M., registered, and went into the dining room.

When he had finished dinner the waiter presented the check, and Mr. Walpole said he had no money, but would pay in the morning. He went to the room assigned to him. He had hardly got in bed before Charles P. Northrop, a lawyer, arrived with two friends and told the hotel manager that they wished to have Mr. Walpole sent to Bellevue Hospital. The management objected. There was an altercation, and some one notified Mr. Walpole that some friends of his were downstairs. He left with them.

Mr. Northrop called a policeman when the group got outside, and Mr. Walpole was taken to the West Thirtieth Street police station and later to the hospital. At the station Mr. Northrop said he was Mr. Walpole's attorney, and that on Saturday Mrs. Walpole had notified him that her husband was acting strangely and should be examined by a physician. Mr. Northrop added that Mr. Walpole had just completed the incorporation of the Hudson Selling Company, and had been under a heavy mental strain.

Mr. Walpole at the station said that he had had some domestic trouble, but his lawyer denied this.

SHOOTING STARTS A RIOT.

Five Italians Fire on a Countryman In Harlem's Little Italy.

Just as a young Italian, walking south on First Avenue early last night, passed five of his countrymen who were standing at 114th Street, all five, according to the witnesses, pulled out pistols and began shooting at him. He was not touched, and escaped.

First Avenue was crowded. The feast of St. Helena ended only at midnight Saturday and, besides, yesterday was a regular holiday. The shots started a panic, women screaming and everybody running into doorways to get out of the way. Detectives Archiapoli and Howard, attracted by the pistol shots, turned in a riot call that brought Capt. Corcoran from the East 104th Street Station and the reserves, and they raced after five men who were pointed out as the shooters. The runners separated, but the detectives captured two men.

At the station the prisoners said they were Joseph Alocci of 252 East 112th Street and Antonio Rosa of 404 East 111th Street. Neither of them had a revolver. Detective Naughton said that he recognized in Alocci an Italian who was arrested on the charge of assaulting Joseph Barilli of 317 East 109th Street, in Harlem's Little Italy, on July 22, 1908. He served a short sentence. Barilli, shortly after coming out of the hospital, was stabbed to death at Second Avenue and 119th Street.

Fully sixty policemen of the East 104th Street Station had rushed to the scene of the riot, and they were needed. Thomas Jefferson Park, just across the street, was filled, and within ten minutes after the shooting First Avenue was jammed with 7,000 or 8,000 wildly excited Italians, who were held in check with difficulty by the policemen.

The police found but one man who had been hit by the bullets—John Guarino of 347 East 114th Street, a shoemaker, who had received a bullet in his right thigh and another lower down in his leg. He was taken into a drug store at First Avenue and 114th Street. The Italians outside, many of whom thought that some of the men who had done the shooting were being held there, attempted to storm it, but were fought back by the police. It was an hour before the neighborhood was quieted down.

Guarino was later removed to the Harlem Hospital. Alocci and Rosa were taken before him, but he could not identify them.

SHOT DOWN IN THE STREET.

Italian, Once Suspected of a Black Hand Shooting, the Victim.

Policeman Schmidt of the East Twenty-second Street Station, standing at First Avenue and Sixteenth Street last midnight, heard five quick shots one block below him, and, running down there, he saw John Corsi lying on the sidewalk, with bullet wounds in his abdomen, back, and left arm.

"I'm shot," he cried, and Schmidt ran down Fifteenth Street after two men he saw going eastward. He captured them and brought them back to Corsi, who either could not or would not identify them. Schmidt held them, anyway, as suspicious persons. They said they were Antonio Santigalelito of 436 East Fourteenth Street and Frank Patri of 400 East Twenty-fourth Street.

Meanwhile Policeman Murphy of the Fifth Street Station has chased a man into 408 East Fourteenth Street. This prisoner said he was Angelo Lanar of 427 East Fourteenth Street. Corsi did not identify him.

Lanar had a fully loaded revolver, and the police found two other revolvers in Fifteenth Street, near the scene of the shooting. They were still hot. Two shells in one and three in the other had been exploded. Lanar was charged with being a suspicious person and with carrying concealed weapons.

Corsi was removed to Bellevue Hospital, where it was said that he would die. Policeman Scherer said that he remembered arresting Corsi last year on the charge of being implicated in the shooting of Pasquale Lavati of 357 East Fourteenth Street. Corsi was discharged for lack of evidence. Scherer said that the police believed at the time that the shooting had been caused by a quarrel growing out of a division of some Black Hand blackmail money.

TELLS HOW TO FEEL YOUNG.

Consider Everything You Do a New Experience, Lecturer Says.

Dr. Alexander J. McIvor-Tyndall, who is described as an English authority on "psychic science, telepathy, prevision, hypnotism, and related phenomena," gave a lecture last night at Carnegie Lyceum on "The Truth About Spiritualism and Dangers in Psychic Research."

The lecturer declared that we are indebted to Spiritualism for every movement, from woman's rights to new thought, and he deplored the fact that scoffers were prone to treat the subject lightly, refusing to go beyond simple demonstrations by possible charlatans. He said that the right way to look at life was for one to consider that everything he did, even to walking or eating, was for the first time.

"The reason I feel young," he said, "is because I have convinced myself that I have never done anything before."

To prove his ability to do psychical things, the lecturer gave a demonstration of mind reading. He had some one in the audience hide objects, but he was not altogether successful at finding them.

Ran Away with Miss Carothers Before Englishman Could Arrive.

Special to The New York Times.

LAFAYETTE, Ind., May 22.—Marshall Haywood, one of the publishers of the Lafayette morning Journal, by carrying away and secretly wedding Miss Enid L. Carothers last night, prevented her marriage to E. S. Walker of London. Haywood, a few days ago, learned that the Englishman had arrived in this country and was coming here to wed Miss Carothers. He secured a marriage license last night, and a girl friend of Miss Carothers helped her in getting her clothes from her home.

The couple and friends went to the home of Dr. D. Tillotson, pastor of Trinity Church, where the marriage ceremony was performed. Mr. Haywood had his automobile waiting, and trunks belonging to himself and his wife were strapped on the rear of the machine. They left in a hurry without saying where they were going.

Mrs. Ginevra Carothers and her daughter returned about two weeks ago from Europe. They went there because of the mother's objections to Haywood's courtship. It was on this trip that Miss Carothers and Mr. Walker became engaged, although Mrs. Carothers objected. Mr. Walker reached Chicago to-day.

Marshall Haywood is a graduate of Princeton. The Carothers family is wealthy and came here several years ago from New York. Young Mrs. Haywood was educated in Germany.

COLLECTS $40,000,000.

Attorney General Has Nearly Cleared Up Back Franchise Taxes.

ALBANY, May 22.—Estimates just completed by the Attorney General and the State Board of Tax Commissioners show that since Jan. 1, 1909, Attorney General O'Malley has collected special franchise taxes amounting to $40,000,000. This leaves uncollected only about $6,000,000 of the $46,000,000 which the corporations owed up to Jan. 1, 1910, under assessments made from the time the special franchise tax law went into effect. The comparatively small sum remains unpaid, owing to a few scattering suits instituted by several corporations to test minor objections to the law. These suits are being urged to trial as rapidly as possible.

The settlement of the suits against the Metropolitan Street Railway in New York a few days ago brought the amount realized by that city in franchise taxes since Jan. 1, 1909, up to about $20,000,000.

In compiling data it was discovered that considerably more money could have been realized but for a lack of uniformity as to methods of assessment in the various tax districts. The Court of Appeals has held that a special franchise is real estate for purposes of taxation. The courts accordingly ordered the assessors to equalize their assessments with the result that the assessments against special franchises were reduced to the basis of the real estate assessments. In some districts this levelling process amounted to halving the assessments and even cutting them down to only a small fraction of the real value of the franchise.

On Jan. 1, 1909, there was due the various localities of the State in back franchise taxes $40,000,000, of which $28,000,000 was owed by corporations using franchises in the City of New York. Attorney General O'Malley concluded that the collection of these back taxes, covering a period of nine years, was his most urgent duty. He therefore pushed to trial the lawsuits started by corporations to test the constitutionality of the act. Many of them came forward with propositons for settlement of their taxes. Some paid up without delay, while a few prepared for trial, but finally settled before any testimony was taken.

Attorney General O'Malley estimates that the Ford franchise tax law will annually produce a revenue of about $9,000,000. As the number and value of franchises to be taxed increase this amount will grow.

MELLEN FLANKS GRAND TRUNK

Opens New Freight Route from Here to Western Canada.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW HAVEN, May 22.—President Mellen of the New Haven Road, has begun a flank movement on the Grand Trunk system, which has invaded New England by securing an outlet into Providence. He has installed two steamboats to carry freight from New York to this city daily. Here the freight is transferred to trains which take it to Springfield, Mass., thence to Newport, Vermont, over the Boston & Maine route, and thence through Canada by the Canadian Pacific line, the keen rival of the Grand Trunk.

Much of the freight goes to Winnipeg. For over two weeks an average of thirty cars a day of freight have been shipped over this route into Grand Trunk territory. Much of it is imported from Europe and South America to New York. Shipments from Canada for New York have stead

MAYOR APPEALS FOR HUDSON RIVER PARK

He Telegraphs to Senator Bayne Urging Him to Bring Up His Bond Bill Again.

UP FOR A RECONSIDERATION

Friends of the Measure for the Development of the Harriman Gift Think It Will Now Be Passed.

Mayor Gaynor telegraphed Saturday to State Senator Bayne, author of the bill to provide for a bond issue of $2,500,000 in connection with the acceptance by the State of the Harriman gift and the establishment of the Hudson River Park, apprising him of the fact that the people of New York were amazed that the bill was defeated last week, and urging him to bring it up again at the right time.

The bill will come up for consideration in the Senate again to-night, and friends of the measure predicted yesterday that it would receive the necessary two-thirds majority. On Thursday eighteen Senators voted in its favor and fifteen against it. The vote was a complete surprise, particularly to the members of the New York State Palisade Park Commission, for it had passed the Assembly by a unanimous vote and was reported favorably by the Senate Finance Committee.

Several reasons were given yesterday for the action of the fifteen who voted against the measure, the principal one being that the Senators did not realize its importance. The fact that Mayor Gaynor has taken a personal interest in the bill cheered up the friends of the measure. This is the telegram the Mayor sent:

Dear Senator Bayne:
The people of this city read with surprise the failure of the Palisades Park bill in the Senate for lack of two-thirds. We hope you will bring it up again at the right time.
WILLIAM J. GAYNOR.

Only one Democrat, Senator Robert F. Wagner of the Sixteenth District, New York City, voted against it. Senator Wagner is quoted as having said on Saturday that he didn't realize the importance of the bill at the time, and that he has now changed his mind and will vote in favor of it to-night. Here are the names of the fourteen Republicans who condemned the measure:

Victor M. Allen of Rensselaer County, Charles Alt of Kings, Herbert P. Coats of Franklin, George H. Cobb of Jefferson, Reuben L. Giedhill of Kings, Charles J. Hewitt of Cayuga, Harvey D. Hinman of Broome, Orlando Hubbs of Suffolk, John Kissel of Kings, James P. Mackenzie of Niagara, Frank C. Platt of Steuben, Charles J. White of Monroe, George H. Witter of Allegany, and Eugene M. Travis of Kings.

The Kings Vote.

The biggest surprise of all, according to officials of the Park Commission, was the attitude of the four Republicans from Kings County. Timothy L. Woodruff, it was said yesterday, was supposed all along to be in favor of the bill, and his influence with the Brooklyn Senators, it was hoped, would be exerted in the right direction.

"Pledges from nine Senators who voted against the bill have been received that on reconsideration they will vote for it," said J. Dupratt White, Secretary of the commission, yesterday. "We are hopeful that the bill will pass when it comes up again on Monday night. Its failure to pass last week can only be laid to the fact that most of the Senators who voted against it did so under misapprehension as to its provisions.

"Among others, John H. McCooey, Democratic leader in Kings, is also working for the passage of the measure. He was astonished at its failure to pass on last Thursday and at once investigated the causes. He said last night that the three Democratic Senators from Brooklyn would be on hand Monday night to vote in favor of the bill. He declined to comment on the fact that four Republican Senators from Kings opposed the measure.

"Mayor Gaynor's telegram to Senator Bayne is sure to do a lot of good by calling the attention of all the Senators to the importance of the measure. The greatest public interest is being manifested in the large additions to the present twelve miles of park which the $2,500,000 bond issue will develop. Thousands of applications have already been received for camp sites, but no one can be allowed to camp longer than four weeks at present owing to lack of space within the present boundaries. When the new territory given by Mrs. Harriman and others is thrown open there will be room for many thousand more camps, and these can be maintained all Summer."

The Parks and Playground Commission of the Municipal Arts Society, of which E. Stagg Whitin is Chairman, has interested itself in the camp phase of the Harriman gift and has urged the Palisades Park Commission to incorporate in its plans an extension of the camp feature which it already has successfully developed on a small scale. Of the possibilities of this phase of the new park, Mr. Whitin writes in a recent number of The Survey:

"The district covered by the proposed park has for many years been the site of camps run by settlements, churches, and other philanthropic agencies in New York City. Recently their number has been greatly lessened by the difficulty of securing sites accessible to the city where camping is not prohibited because the waters of adjoining lakes are controlled by water companies.

A Municipal Hope.

"This has awakened a hope among social workers in congested city districts that some day a great municipal camp might be secured, regulated, and protected in such a way that children, young men, and even adults from tenement districts might find a place for rest and recuperation. The desire for such a great free land has been voiced in more than one club meeting and around many a tenement fireside. The recent gift seems to point a way toward its realization. The report of our society shows that three types of camp are needed by city people—camps for day excursions, for week ends, and for longer vacations of about two weeks.

"Day excursions by boat and train which are common in Summer are usually made up of members of organizations connected with churches, settlements, public schools, trades unions, and political organizations. In many instances the parks they visit are badly located, devoid of beauty, and surrounded by degrading influences. Should the shores of the Hudson possess a beautiful park properly supervised and equipped and so regulated that it might be used by these organizations, it would prove a great boon for the individuals and raise the standard of city morals.

"Week-ends are enjoyed by the poor as well as the rich. A Saturday half-holiday and Sunday rest are the common practise. The city workers seek an opportunity to get away from heat, dust, and noise. In the tent colonies under the Palisades and in other camps a large number of young men have demanded admission for Saturday and Sunday only. If the Harriman State Park were equipped with tents or other shelter to be had at a reasonable rate thousands of young working people could enjoy the invigoration of its mountain air without cost to the State.

"The two weeks' vacation is the only opportunity given to the working classes to get entirely away. Often whole families or groups of friends secure their vacations at the same time and move out into the country. Tent colonies are popular, and there are now many devices for making them sanitary and comfortable. They need not be accessible, as the other types of camps, but they should be near the water, be properly policed, and possess sanitary conveniences.

Fine Camp Sites.

"The Parks and Playgrounds Committee of the Municipal Arts Society recently made a reconnoissance of large portions of the Ramapo and Minisconga Creek districts and the Hudson nearby, and discovered three splendid camp sites. The first overlooks the Hudson at one of its most beautiful portions. It is west of Iona Island, northwest of Dunderberg Mountain at Highland Lake on the eastern slope at Great Bear Mountain. The second is on the drainage area of the north branch of Minisconga Creek, about three miles west of Thiells, at a point where a small dam thrown across a gorge will create a beautiful lake about two miles long. The third site is south of Johnsontown, where another artificial lake having two branches, respectively three and two miles long, can be built at small expense.

"The Highland Lake location is ideal for a camp and offers remarkable possibilities for use both in Summer and Winter. It is about forty-three miles north of Forty-second Street, about fifteen miles south of Newburg, and about thirty miles south of Poughkeepsie. It is easily accessible by rail and water, being on the route of an improved highway extending along the Hudson from Fort Lee to Newburg, and would be a convenient stopping point for day excursions.

"Immediately north of Highland Lake is a comparatively level strip of about 500 acres which could be developed into baseball fields, tennis courts and fields for athletic contests and other playgrounds. South of the lake and extending west of Dunderberg Mountains to the north of the Timp, is a location which offers splendid opportunities for scenic development and for the building of a good-sized pleasure resort for week-end and vacation parties. The fine opportunities for toboggan slides, snowshoeing, skiing and ice sports on Highland Lake, make this a good site for a Winter park as well.

"On the mountain sides west of this a number of good-sized spring brooks flow down the gullies. A series of small reservoirs in these gullies at the same elevation would provide an ample supply of pure water. The sewage could readily be led to one point at the edge of the Hudson removed from the settled sections and there discharged after proper treatment in a settling tank. Arrangements can be made to secure light and power from Popolopen Creek at a point just west of Fort Montgomery. In brief this is an admirable site for a public park and recreation ground.

"The Adirondack Mountains become increasingly popular as Summer vacation grounds, not only on account of their pure and exhilarating air and forests, but on account of their many lakes and ponds. A resort having all these attractions can at a comparatively small cost be developed in the second of the portions of the Harriman Park already described and meet the needs of those in the southern part of the State who cannot afford a trip to the Adirondacks, but who desire more privacy than is possible at the Highland Lake site. Such a system would not only make New York State a beautiful garden, but help us rear a race of men able to cope with the industrial demands which make her rich and powerful in the Nation."

PAY TRIBUTE HERE TO KING EDWARD

Memorial Services Held in St. James's Church for the Dead Ruler.

BISHOP COURTNEY SPEAKS

Impressive Ceremonies Also on the White Star Liner Cedric and Anchor Liner Columbia.

Memorial services for King Edward VII. were held yesterday at several churches in this city. The service at St. James's Church, Madison Avenue and Seventy-first Street, was under the auspices of the British Schools and Universities Club by courtesy of the rector, Bishop Courtney.

The church, which was filled to its capacity by the members of the club and their friends, was decorated with American, British, and Colonial flags. The columns on either side were draped with purple and white silk. Below the altar white flowers were banked against a purple background.

After Chopin's Funeral March had been rendered by W. Henry Hall, the organist, followed by Turpin's Processional Hymn, the choir sang a selection from the Thirty-ninth Psalm to Flintoff's setting.

In a brief address Bishop Courtney recounted the long years the King had waited before he took the throne, and then only occupied it for nine years.

"He was not only popular as a King," he said impressively, "but popular as a man who had tried to do his duty to all men."

In recalling the visit of the King to this country as Prince of Wales the Bishop spoke of the hearty sympathy, interest, and appreciation he manifested in the people here during his stay in this country, and the sincere sympathy he had extended to France in later years when she was passing through the first troublous days of the republic.

"He has worthily been called the maker of peace," the Bishop said, "and glad and thankful as we are to dwell where we are, we would nevertheless be proud to live under the rule of one who gave fitting utterance to the spirit of Nelson in the words, 'I think I have done my duty.'"

The Rev. S. Parkes Cadman, Chaplain of the British Schools and Universities Club, in his address alluded to the influence Queen Victoria had over her son by her example during her long reign.

"King Edward was the enfranchised citizen of the world," said Dr. Cadman. "He was its great peacemaker. If the death of his Majesty prepared us for one thing more than another it was this—to stand and take our place of duty after those who have preceded us have fallen. This is the task for King George. If the spirit of King Henry V. at Agincourt, of Havelock on the plains of India, of Nelson as he lay dying in the cockpit of the Victory at Trafalgar revived in Edward as it did in Victoria we may well prophesy that it will do so in posterity."

After the National anthems of America and Great Britain had been rendered Handel's "Dead March from Saul" was played on the organ.

Representatives were present at the service from the St. George's, St. David's, Canadian, Newfoundland, Pilgrims, Waterloo, Clubs, Universities of Toronto, McGill, and Queens, and the Imperial Order of the Daughters of the Empire.

Memorial services were held at sea on the White Star liner Cedric, which arrived yesterday from Liverpool, in the first, second, and third class at 10:45 A. M., the hour at which the Captain reckoned the ceremonies were being held at Windsor. The service in the saloon was read by Purser R. Edwards. The prayer of thanksgiving approved by the Archbishop of Canterbury was read at all three services.

On the same day a service was held on the Anchor liner Columbia, which arrived yesterday from Glasgow. Thirty of the passengers were Free Masons, and part of the saloon was set apart for them to hold a special service for the dead King, who was a past Grand Master of the Grand Lodge of England. One of the passengers, Hugh Laughland, played Handel's "Dead March from Saul" on the organ, and the service was read by the Rev. John MacMillan of Philadelphia.

After the service a wireless message of sympathy was sent by the passengers to the Dowager Queen Alexandra at Windsor and a reply was received on the Columbia on Saturday night, which read:

"Queen Alexandra thanks the loyal-hearted subjects on the Columbia for their message of sympathy."

KING THANKS HIS PEOPLE.

Sympathy in His Loss Gives Him Courage—Commutes Sentences.

LONDON, May 22.—King George V. has commenced his reign with an act of clemency, granting remission of short sentences and reduction of others throughout the kingdom, the benefit of the act extending to the army and navy. He has also issued a letter addressed "to my people," expressing his grateful appreciation of the affection and loving devotion the nation has shown in the face of "a sorrow so sudden and unlooked for that it might well have been overwhelming."

"The sentiments it has invoked," continues the King, "have made me realize that it is a loss common to me and my people. They share it with me; I do not stand alone. With such thoughts I take courage and hopefully look to the future, strong in my faith in God, trusting my people, and cherishing the laws and Constitution of my beloved country."

It is announced that King George intends to maintain a royal racing stable at Newmarket and a breeding stud at Sandringham, and that he will patronize racing on the same extensive scale as his father.

BLACK JEWELRY IN DEMAND.

Many in This Country to Wear It in Tribute to King Edward.

Wholesale jewelers of the Maiden Lane district say that the death of King Edward has caused a noticeable revival in this country, as well as abroad, in the demand for black jewelry, including jet, black onyx, opals, and other stones of dark hues. They say that a similar effect followed the death of Queen Victoria, and of the Prince Consort in the early years of her reign.

The jewelers say that the present demand is not confined to those Americans who follow English fashions and that it is likely to last for some time. Mourning jewelry was fashionable for a long time after Queen Victoria's death.

Jewelry factories are rushing work on black and purple jewelry, anticipating that the demand will increase and that it will pay to have large stocks on hand.

Negro Memorial to the King.

At St. David's Protestant Episcopal Church, (colored,) Park Avenue, near 160th Street, last night, a memorial service was held for King Edward VII., following the programme of the service held on Friday in Trinity and St. Paul's. The Rev. E. G. Clifton, rector of the church, presided. Various societies of the church presented resolutions of sorrow at the death of the King.

IRISH IN ROW AT CORK.

Redmond and O'Brien Factions Meet and Many Persons Are Injured.

CORK, May 22.—The presence here today of rival Irish factions, in spite of elaborate police precautions, led to serious conflicts, following demonstrations which were addressed by John E. Redmond, leader of the National Irish Parliamentary Party, John Dillon, and William O'Brien.

Many persons were injured, including Daniel D. Sheehan, M. P., for Cork, some of whom were taken to the infirmaries.

EXTENDS JEWISH EXEMPTIONS

Russian Senate Allows More Women Students Privilege of Residence.

ST. PETERSBURG, May 22.—An important decision of the Senate affecting the Jewish question has just been published. In this decision the ruling is made that woman's higher educational courses which have been established in many cities are classified with university courses, and that the privilege of residence outside the pale is extended to such students on the same basis as to university graduates.

The matter has been pending for six months, and during that time many Jewesses have been expelled from St. Petersburg and elsewhere.

BRINGS 60,000 PILGRIMS.

Poles Assemble to See Dedication of Crown Presented by the Pope.

CZENSTOCHOWA, Russian Poland, May 22.—Sixty thousand pilgrims from Russian and Austrian Poland to-day attended the services in connection with the consecration of the jeweled crown presented to the Pauline Fathers by the Pope to replace the crown which was stolen from the chapel of the Pauline Convent on Oct. 22 last.

Special trains brought pilgrims from Warsaw and various other points, but the majority of the pilgrims came on foot. The day was observed as a general holiday throughout Poland.

JAPAN-RUSSIAN ENTENTE.

Negotiations with Reference to Far East Assuming Definite Form.

ST. PETERSBURG, May 22.—Negotiations between Russia and Japan with reference to an agreement on the question of the Far East, in spite of denials on both sides, have now assumed definite form.

While it is impossible to obtain information on the details of the plan, there is reason to believe that Japan is seeking to negotiate a convention on broader lines than Russia now wishes. Tangible developments may be expected within a month, if this difference can be arranged.

DR. WISE REGRETS JEWISH DISCORD

Dispute Over Reformed Judaism Comes at a Time When Israel Needs Harmony.

REFORMERS NOT TO BLAME

Not Their Fault, He Says, if the Inmost Spirit of Israel Is Not Regnant To-day.

Answering a recent pulpit utterance of the Rev. Dr. Magnes of Temple Emanu-El, Dr. Stephen S. Wise of the Free Synagogue in West Eighty-first Street ardently defended the Jewish reform movement yesterday morning. In the course of an address on "Shall We Abandon the Jewish Reform Movement," he said:

"We need a reformation of the Jew not because he is orthodox, nor yet because he is reform, but because he is neither; because in large part he is unattached and drifting rudderless; because he is threatened with the gravest perils that can befall a people, the loss of religion and the loss of moral ideals.

"It is much to be regretted," said Dr. Wise, "that the counter-reformation has come into being at a time when the united councils of Israel are more imperatively needed than they have been for many years. By it we are launched upon a sea of strife and discord at a time when Israel needs a unifying, statesmanlike leadership, and a well-disciplined, loyal following. If the counter-reformation should prevail, in the Jewish Cathedral of New York, it were no victory for conservatism, for the Temple Emanu-El has not for many years held the leadership of the reform movement. A synagogue, however empty, and a cemetery, however full, do not make a temple of the living God, nor of living men. It may be named a reform temple, only by those who unjustly regard reform and indifference as interchangeable terms.

"The counter-reformation condemns the Jewish reform movement as merely critical, but its own office up to this time lies in the criticism of the critics. It judges and condemns reform Judaism by certain men and certain tendencies, which misrepresent it at its worst, or do not represent it at all. A type of reform Judaism, which is really a bit of arrested development, is held up for scorn, and by that token we are asked to condemn the Jewish reform movement in its entirety. Alas for the men in Jewish reform pulpits who are so lacking in spiritual integrity and moral courage that they are willing to permit this condemnation of reform Judaism to go unchallenged and offers its assailants that aid and comfort which honest men must needs withhold from those who attack their deeply cherished convictions.

"The diagnosis of Jewish conditions recently uttered in our community is correct in so far as it attaches the blame therefor to men and things that cannot justly be held responsible, and, in the next place, grasps as if panic-stricken at an imaginary and unavailing remedy. Infinitely regrettable is the indifference and inertness and cowardice which the diagnosis finds to be symptoms of our present-day Jewish life. But true leaders of reform, such as Hirsch in Chicago, Montefiore in London, Levi in Paris, and Seligman in Frankfort, are no less dissatisfied with present-day Jewish conditions, and are far removed from the absurdly smug and childishly self-approving individuals, who unhappily are accepted as among the spokesmen of Jewish reform.

"It is one thing to describe conditions, another to analyze the causes which have given rise thereto, and a very different thing to prescribe the right remedies. All of disloyalty and indifference that manifest themselves in the Jewish life of our time, are attributed to the Jewish reformation as if it were primarily and even exclusively responsible for these evils. It is very simple and very easy and very convenient to pile the evils of Israel upon the scapegoat of Reform Judaism, but it also is very false.

"It may be that we are yet to learn that it was the Jewish reformation that excited the ire of Torquemada and stirred the wrath of Titus. In the diagnosis of the causes of the untoward conditions in the Israel of our day, little account is taken of the multitudinous forces, which have alike made for disintegration in Judaism and in Christianity, such as the new attitude toward religion, the far-reaching effect of the failures of 1848, the new science, the new industrialism, and that evil of evils, at one and the same time a misfortune to Israel and a blot upon Christendom, anti-Semitism. The Jew is learning from his enemies the art of placing the burden of blame where it does not belong, and in true scapegoat and anti-Semitic fashion is singling out his own brother upon whom to fashion everything that is wrong in Jewish life.

"If certain undesirable, and even lamentable, conditions obtain in Jewish life to-day, these are not because of Jewish Reform, but in the despite thereof. It were as fitting to denounce the fathers of the Republic, who dreamed the great dream of '76, because of the facts of municipal misgovernment and corruption in our democracy during the last decade, as to find a verdict against the leaders of the Reformation because, for reasons which are out of all relation to their great achievements, the inmost spirit of Israel is not regnant to-day in the lives of its sons and daughters."

"The recent protest against the Jewish reform movement arises in part out of the revival of an old bitterness which does us little honor. It grows out of the attempted capitalization of what is imagined to be a certain measure of ill-will and unfriendliness felt by the Russian Jewish immigrant masses in America toward the American Jew of the German immigration movement, his earlier and more successful brother.

"Our fathers never elected to be ghetto-dwellers. But in the name of the counter-reformation, we are asked to build ghetto walls from within, voluntarily to immure ourselves within a ghetto of our own building, to re-ghettoize the liberated life of Israel. The soul of Israel cannot stand still at the dictation of the poetry and romance of the ghetto. Nor, have these things inhibited the men who urge a return to the ghetto from taking themselves out of the life of Israel, which they have almost wholly forsaken."

NEW EPISCOPAL CLERGYMEN.

Eleven for This Diocese Alone—Twenty Ordinations at St. Thomas's.

In St. Thomas's Church, Fifth Avenue and Fifty-third Street, yesterday morning, it being Trinity Sunday, there were ordinations for the Episcopal Diocese of New York. Bishop Greer being ill, Bishop Partridge of Kioto, Japan, acted for him. Twenty men were ordained, the largest number for some years. The sermon was preached by the rector, the Rev. Dr. Ernest M. Stires, and assisting in the services were the Rev. Dr. G. F. Nelson, Archdeacon, and the Rev. Dr. F. S. Cookman.

The Rev. William I. Hemphill, the Rev. Wilbur L. Caswell, the Rev. Richard W. Baxter, the Rev. J. S. Holland, and the Rev. Adelbert H. Harrington were advanced from Deacon to priest. Eleven new ministers for New York were ordered Deacon, as follows: William L. Essex, John McV. Haight, Frederick Wamersey, Maxwell Ganter, Robert E. Marshall, Bernard Campbell, William F. Kleinschmidt, Roscoe C. Hatch, Julius G. Schulz, Edward N. Peart, and Edward L. Reed.

The following were ordered Deacons for Bishops of other dioceses: Messrs. Harold L. S. Johns, Guy E. Shipler, Clinton W. Areson, and Donald Millar.

WHITE SLAVERY PROTECTED.

So Says the Rev. Mr. Hill in the Metropolitan Temple.

Although the recent trial in General Sessions of a white slave dealer revealed, apparently, that there is no organized commerce with headquarters and distributing points in various large cities here and abroad, and with ramifications extending throughout this country, the Rev. John Wesley Hill, from the pulpit of the Metropolitan Temple, asserted yesterday that just this condition existed, and that it flourished under the protection of the police. Dr. Hill referred, for basis for his statements, to the same investigation from which other conclusions have been drawn by the investigators themselves.

"There is no longer any ground for doubt," declared the minister, "that right here in New York City there is rooted and operated a ghastly commerce which stains and stamps our municipal government, no less than our boasted civilization, with shame and disgrace."

Dr. Hill rehearsed the utterances of United States District Attorney Sims of Chicago, and declared that the evidence showed the existence of a white slave traffic supported by a syndicate with ramifications extending from the Atlantic seaboard to the Pacific Coast.

The assertions of the minister occasioned astonishment among those of his hearers who had been led to believe that the recent investigation had failed to reveal any such condition of affairs as were outlined by Dr. Hill.

Preparing for Work Horse Parade.

Work begins to-day on the stand at the Worth Monument, from which the work horse parade of Memorial Day will be reviewed. Accommodations for 1,500 persons associated with the humane work of New York will be arranged for. The parade of the well-cared-for draught horses will proceed up Fifth Avenue to the stand, where the ribbons for the winners and the money prizes for the drivers will be awarded by the Women's Auxiliary of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, which has the affair in charge. The stand will stay up until after the parade of the Street Cleaning Department on June 2.

HEBREW FEDERATION PLANS NEW HOSPITAL

TO BE CALLED BETH DAVID

Details Discussed at the Federation's Second Annual Convention — To Lay Cornerstone by July 1.

The Federation of Russian-Polish Hebrews of America, founded two years ago by Max Moskiewitz, and which now has more than 75,000 members, held its second annual convention yesterday at the Stuyvesant Casino, 140 Second Avenue, to discuss plants to erect a new orthodox Jewish hospital on East End Avenue. The Federation decided to co-operate with the Directors of the Yorkville Hospital Association in building the new hospital.

Three hundred delegates yesterday listened to the President's report, and afterward the matter was voted upon.

For the present the old Yorkville Hospital is to be utilized, but the cornerstone of the new hospital, which is to be known as the Beth David, will be laid by July 1. It will be a four-story brick structure, with accommodations for 100 patients.

As the charter of the Yorkville Hospital provides that it shall be subsidized by the city for the free treatment of women and children only, application will be made for an amendment to the charter which will allow the admission of male patients.

The present Yorkville Hospital, chartered in 1896, now occupies two buildings at 248 and 245 East Eighty-second Street. It accommodates at present thirty-four patients and supports a dispensary. The President of the Yorkville Hospital Association, William H. Davidow, who was present at the convention, said that the Directors of the institution were anxious to enlarge it, and were willing to amalgamate with the Federation on condition that a new building be erected in Yorkville.

The Federation, therefore, will go immediately to work to raise the money necessary for the erection of the hospital. At present the organization has only $3,000 in the treasury. At least $12,000 more is needed to purchase the property on which to build the new hospital.

The Federation was founded to improve the condition of the Russian and Polish Jews in America, and it is the intention to found institutions which shall meet the demands. The officers of the organization are Abraham Rosenberg, President; Dr. J. H. Gettlinger, Vice President; Dr. Edward J. Bero, Treasurer; Sigmund Moskiewitz, Financial Secretary, and Arthur S. Muenster, Recording Secretary.

The convention held meetings all day yesterday and last evening. To-night at 8 o'clock there will be another meeting for the election of officers.

AERO CUP FOR BOY DESIGNERS

Prize Will Be Awarded for Models in Y. M. C. A. Contest.

To encourage boys in the study and building of aeroplanes M. P. Talmage, an amateur aeronaut, has given a silver cup to be awarded to the boy whose model aeroplane is three times successful in a series of model aeroplane flights under the auspices of the West Side Young Men's Christian Association, 318 West Fifty-seventh Street.

So that freaks and impractical models may be barred, Mr. Talmage has provided these rules for entrants: The model must be such that a real man-carrying machine could be built from its design; models must rise from the floor under their own power, and must be made by the entrant.

Any boy under 18 years of age who has a model aeroplane fulfilling these conditions may enter the contests, whether or not he is a member of the Young Men's Christian Association. Flights for this cup, which is of silver and seven inches high, will be held in the Twenty-second Regiment Armory, Broadway and Sixty-eighth Street, on Saturday afternoons.

BORGLUM SUES TO SAVE PARK TREES

Sculptor Backed by Playgrounds Association Will Fight Washington Park Contract.

TREES BADLY PLACED

Design Prepared Under Ahearn Was Drawn by an Engineer Without Landscape Architect's Advice.

Declaring that the situation he wishes to correct may be reached only through a taxpayer's suit against the city, Gutzon Borglum, the sculptor, has decided to take action to prevent the destruction of some 300 elm, maple, and chestnut trees, all more than two feet in diameter, which now shade the bank of the Hudson in Fort Washington Park.

The removal of the trees has been ordered as part of a general park improvement plan. They are to make way for a series of bridal paths and roadways, which Mr. Borglum thinks were laid out with little comprehension of the problem to be faced, and with no thought of conserving the natural beauty and attractiveness of the park. Former Borough President Ahearn let the contract, and it is alleged that in the landscape design the advice of a consulting engineer appointed by the Borough President alone was sought, and that he omitted all considerations that would naturally fall outside of an ordinary engineering problem. On that account Mr. Borglum and his associates came to the conclusion that the trees were to be lost in a cause that was anything but good, and set on foot an investigation which ended in the determination to ask for an injunction restraining the city from going ahead with the plan pending the outcome of a suit to break the contract.

Mr. Borglum is backed in his movement by the Parks and Playgrounds Association, of which he is a Director. It was at the suggestion of the association in fact that the suit is to be started. The park area involved exends only from 171st Street to 183d Street west of Fort Washington Avenue. Recently plans approved by the Parks and Playgrounds Association were drawn up for its development, and filed with the Park Department by Samuel Parsons, the department's landscape architect. It was then that the other improvement plan was discovered, and it was found that since the contract had already been let the present administration could do nothing to harmonize the two plans or to cause the abandonment of the one previously agreed upon.

The Parks and Playgrounds Association and Mr. Borglum then took a hand. They found that the contract let by ex-Borough President Ahearn, upon the advice of his consulting engineer, had not passed through the hands of the Park Commissioners and had not been approved, as provided for in the charter, by the Park Department's landscape architect. The two plans, it was found, attacked the problem from entirely different standpoints. That framed by the Park Commissioners kept in view the natural contour of the Park, and its growth of fifty-year-old trees, and sought to retain them, while adding the conveniences of paths and roadways. The other, as developed on a straight basis of engineering, called for the destruction of 300 of the matured trees, and provided that they were to be replaced by new saplings to be planted by the contractor, in keeping with the roadway plan. The trees and shrubs selected to replace those cut away were to be chosen without regard to the wishes of the Park Commissioner or his landscape architect by the Borough President's engineer, on his own advice or that of a landscape architect employed by him.

On reading over the city charter Mr. Borglum became convinced that the contract was open to attack on the ground that it was illegally drawn, and had been granted in excess of the powers of the Borough President and the Board of Estimate. The amount of the contract, which is held by John C. Rogers, is about $800,000, and Mr. Borglum holds that the Park Department's plan can be carried out for $200,000 less than that. In order to test the legality of his objections to the Rogers contract, the matter was put into the hands of the law firm of Philbin, Beekman, Menken & Griscom, with instructions to file a suit and move for an immediate injunction restraining the Controller from paying out any money to the contractor pending the decision in the suit, and preventing the contractor from cutting down any of the Park trees.

ON A WORLD TOUR WITH A DOG TEAM

"Caribou Bill" of Nome, Alaska, Will Get $10,000 if He Makes the Trip in Four Years.

ADVENTURES ON THE WAY

His Life Saved by His Animal Friends —He's the Champion "Musher"— Due Here on Wednesday.

"Caribou Bill" Cooper, or William F. Cooper, to be really formal about him, is expected here some time on Wednesday with his team of sixteen Eskimo dogs, with which he is "mushing" around the world from Nome, Alaska, and back again. Caribou Bill says he is the champion dog "musher" of the world, and out in Nome there are quite a few people who are willing to back his claim.

Bill and his dogs started from Nome in October, 1908, on a four years' globe-trotting jaunt, and has been since trekking eastward, stopping now and then to rest himself and his animal friends and to have a little fun on the way.

Incidentally, Bill's friends say he left Nome without a cent in his pocket, for one of the stipulations, if he is to win a purse of $10,000, said to have been offered by the Nome Sweepstakes Association, is that he must earn his own way around the world by Dec. 25, 1912. But Caribou Bill is quite a persistent person, and he is credited with a lot of courage as well as hardihood. In fact, according to the story told by one of his friends, Fred R. Seton, who is now in this city awaiting Bill's arrival, the champion dog "musher" has had some experiences since leaving Nome which put his courage and endurance to a severe test.

Mr. Seton says that after Bill and his dogs started from Nome they hadn't traveled far before they broke through the ice on one of Alaska's rivers, and had quite a tough time getting out. Also, according to Mr. Seton, Caribou Bill had the unpleasant experience of sleeping in "Dad" Weber's cabin one night in November of 1908 while the body of a man who had been frozen and partly devoured by wolves lay in the corner of the shack. "Dad" Weber's cabin is fifty-five miles from Mount McKinley.

There are many other experiences accredited to Caribou Bill by his friend Seton, one of which was a fall into a crevasse in Valdez glacier. Mr. Seton says that Bill's dogs pulled him out. Another time in the Winter of that same year, says Seton, Bill lost his way in a blizzard and his dogs found the way to an isolated cabin and saved their master's life. Mr. Seton is full of such stories of his friend Bill's exploits.

Caribou Bill reached Springfield, Mass., a few days ago and after a short stop headed for New York. Bill and his dogs will board a steamship here for Liverpool and will visit London, then go by boat to France, cross into Germany and Russia. There Bill and his dogs will follow the Russian-Siberian Railroad to Vladivostok and then trail along the coast line to East Cape, Siberia, cross Bering Strait on ice to Cape Prince of Wales and down the Alaskan coast line to Nome.

Bill, so his friend Seton says, has with him nearly a dozen and a half dogs, but drives only eight of them at a time. He has a sledge with a set of wheels which he uses when there is no ice or snow. About half of his journey across the continent has been made on snow and ice. The dogs which are not in harness trail along behind, and when the pullers become tired they swap places.

Caribou Bill, so says Mr. Seton, was exiled from Russia many years ago by the Czar's order. He was also a member of a rescue party which dug for seventy-eight entombed men at White Horse Pass in Alaska in 1904, when an avalanche buried them. Bill, who speaks several languages, is said to be an expert with a moosehide whip thirty feet long and Mr. Seton says the champion "musher" can kill a cat or a rabbit at ten paces with the knotted thong at the whip end.

Says Station Is Dangerous.

The Public Service Commission, Second District, has received a complaint from Justice Martin J. Keogh of New Rochelle against the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad Company. Justice Keogh states that the passenger station at New Rochelle for eastbound trains is inadequate, inconvenient, and dangerous. The company has been ordered to answer within ten days.

THINK THEY HAVE A FAGIN.

Police Say Prisoner Was Teaching Two Boys to Pick Pockets.

Two sharp-featured, undersized street urchns, both of whom are said by the police to be under parole from the Children's Court on the charge of picking pockets, were arrested on Saturday night in Allen Street after detectives from the Allen Street branch of the detective Bureau had watched them mingling in shopping crowds and returning to a young man who seemed to be directing their movements.

The two boys say they are Max Kavinsky of 45 Essex Street and Harry Schleifer of 50 Allen Street, and the man, who was held on the charge of impairing the morals of minors, is described as Max Reipstein of 118 Eldridge Street.

Kavinsky and Schleifer, say the detectives, elbowed their way into the middle of a group around a dry goods store window, one standing in front of the other, seemingly to shield him from observation. Presently the two came back to Reipstein, and after talking with him for a minute or two tried another group. They did this three times, and the detectives, although they saw no money or goods passed from one to the other, say that they saw a woman's handbag opened and searched.

In the Essex Market Court yesterday Reipstein was held in $500 bail for examination to-day.

DID NOT PAY AS HE PROMISED.

Wife Who Insisted Policeman Be Locked Up Reproved by Magistrate.

As his wife insisted, Magistrate Herbert in the Morrisania Court had no alternative but to lock up Policeman William Speedin of the Mercer Street Station, who was called to court to answer his wife's complaint that he had failed to live up to his agreement made five years ago to pay her $39 a month. He owed for one month.

Speedin said that he was on the sick list for the last month, and had but four days' pay. He said he wrote his wife of the circumstances when the money fell due, on May 4, promising to pay her $78 on June 4, but this did not satisfy Mrs. Speedin.

Magistrate Herbert observed that the wife was hard on Speedin, whom he held in $500 bail for examination Tuesday. The policeman was unprepared for this turn of affairs, and was taken to the Harlem Court Prison.

A Remarkable New Novel by the Author of THE INNER SHRINE

The WILD OLIVE

Ready At Last in Book Form

THE WILD OLIVE has the same remarkable qualities which made the author's previous novel, The Inner Shrine, the most widely read and talked-of book of its year. As a serial in Harper's Magazine, THE WILD OLIVE has called forth an unusual number of letters written in terms of almost extravagant praise and delighted interest. The book, which is now ready, contains many diverting incidents of the story not permitted within the exigencies of serial space. The title is quoted from St. Paul—"And thou, being a wild olive-tree"—an allusion to the heroine's origin, which places her, a growth of nature, apart from the cultivated trees of the orchard—society. THE WILD OLIVE is a story in a new setting, a story that seizes the reader from the first chapter—a story of great vigor and charm. The scene opens in the Adirondack wilderness, with a fugitive from justice, young and a gentleman, running through the woods at night. Looking through a cottage window, he recognizes the judge who condemned him—innocent. A girl's form outside beckons him to follow. The story rushes on, carrying the youth into rehabilitated manhood and the girl to the height of emotional sacrifice and triumph.

We are gratified at the price at which you perform this work—on the whole it cost us less than before. The other economies are so large that now this item which caused the delay seems foolish to us. We are very, very sorry we were so cocksure and delayed our investigations so long. It cost us money to be unwilling to send for your literature."

Your Case.

ENLISTED FOR THE WAR.

We hasten to acquit Corporation Counsel WATSON of any desire to incite the natives of Baton Rouge to clamor for the nomination of his chief, Mayor GAYNOR, as candidate of the Democratic Party for President in 1912. It is true that in his speech there on Saturday he praised the Mayor in terms quite sufficiently broad and emphatic to justify the inference that the speaker believed he would make a good candidate and a good President. And he indulged in an elaborate criticism of a couple of unnamed persons whose blackened portraits made that of Mr. GAYNOR shine with even more stimulating brightness. But he took especial pains to explain that the aim, and what we may venture to call the ambition, of our Mayor was at present limited strictly to home affairs. He said:

> And I beg of you, my friends, to accept my heartfelt assurance, based upon what I believe to be as accurate a knowledge and understanding of Judge GAYNOR in this respect as is possessed by any man, that he asks no greater reward and seeks no greater honor than the acknowledgment that he has done good work as the Mayor of the City of New York; that he has uplifted official and political and civic standards there, and so, besides having done such good as he was able for the City of New York, has set an example which must have an elevating and encouraging, yes, a purging and purifying, effect upon municipal government in every city in the land.

Unquestionably this is a high aim and a worthy ambition. It is in complete harmony, moreover, with the assurance his Honor took pleasure in giving before his election, that he would serve the term for which he was elected.

TEN MILLIONS TO PRINCETON.

The bequeathal in the will of the late ISAAC C. WYMAN of a sum more than doubling the present foundation of Princeton University, intended to establish and amplify its Graduate School, and naming its Dean, Prof. ANDREW F. WEST, as one of the two trustees who shall bestow the fund, which is estimated at $10,000,000, rouses deeper interest than that excited by the mere magnitude of the bequest. Prof. WEST, it will be recalled, approved the terms of another gift, aggregating $1,000,000, lately offered to the Graduate School, but withdrawn by its principal donor because of opposition developing within the Princeton Faculty and Board of Trustees. Will the great Wyman bequest be offered by Prof. WEST and his associate in furtherance of the plans that have been disapproved?

Ten millions would be less acceptable than one million, if applied to wrong purposes. But the terms of the bequest permit its use for the Graduate School only in a way to "increase the power and usefulness of the university." How much of Mr. WYMAN'S estate shall be thus devoted is left to the two trustees named in his will; but they can give nothing toward the execution of plans which, in the judgment of the Trustees of Princeton, will not increase the university's power and usefulness. Of course, Princeton need not accept the bequest on conditions which it deems improper or injurious to its standing.

President WOODROW WILSON spoke at Pittsburg recently on the advantages of tax-supported universities. He declared that a college ought not to depend on the will or caprice of any person for its support in training the citizens of a democracy; that the State should support it. But in the current North American Review Dr. WILSON indicates his belief that State Governments are themselves run by private groups, who dispose of the public funds and guide the Administration without consulting the wishes of the voters. This theory is pretty widely accepted. According to it Princeton as a State university might still be a private institution, an abode and school of favoritism, and rather worse than the ordinary corporation. For Dr. WILSON pointed out that corporations when well and wisely managed will "often take the public more into their confidence than the managers of Government do."

The success of the Graduate School at Princeton will not depend on its private endowment alone. Its corporation must have the approval of public and expert opinion outside Princeton. Therefore an attempt to found it upon principles that are not democratic would fail, and would fail the more completely in proportion to the sums dedicated to the erection of the school. It is safe to say that no such attempt will be made.

The experience that culminated in the withdrawal of the Procter gift, whatever the merits or demerits of its plan, has enabled the men at Princeton to view this new bequest with a better appreciation of underlying principles. The faults shown and the mistakes made on either side of the controversy have not been too costly, since the lesson they have taught cannot but affect profoundly and beneficially the disposal of this great bequest.

THE KAISER IN ENGLAND.

The most conspicuous, majestic, and admirable figure in the mournful ceremonies in England has been the German Emperor. In the company of Kings, none was more kinglike, and the whole civilized world has been strongly impressed by his personal force and inherent authority and touched by his graciousness and unaffected reverence. The great importance of his presence in England and the new relation in which he has been placed with Great Britain through the death of King EDWARD is well understood. The hope is strong and justifiable that much good may ensue for both nations. There has been trouble between the countries due largely to misunderstanding and vague mutual distrust. The doubts may be dispelled, the misunderstanding cleared away.

It may be the happy lot of King GEORGE to be instrumental in establishing kindlier relations between his country and Europe. But there is much to be done. The Persian situation already looms largely in the news of the hour. Unquestionably the Kaiser is now the most potential figure in the European picture. In the obsequies of his illustrious uncle, whose majesty has been increased by death, he has borne himself like a King, like a soldier, like a gentleman, with manly dignity and tenderness, and has gained new renown and respect in the eyes of the world.

NOT VANDALS.

The Vandals destroyed treasures, whose value they did not comprehend, for sheer pleasure. They were happy only when they were smashing something the Goths and other barbarians thought worth preserving. Suburban householders who go out nights to chop down ugly advertising signs which mar the beauty of nature in their environment are not vandals. It is not an act of vandalism to remove surreptitiously or with violence a huge and unsightly board which obstructs a view of trees and meadows and distant hills. People are attracted to buy suburban real estate and build homes away from the city's din by the promise of rural peace and sylvan beauty.

The men of the near-by New Jersey settlement who went abroad the other night with saws and axes and converted monstrous painted commercial signs into firewood were undoubtedly lawless, and they may have to pay the penalty of lawlessness. But they will have the sympathy of many thousands of their fellow-men whose home surroundings are made hideous by painted advertising signs. They would have been wiser to proceed lawfully against the owners of the signs, of course. But they will not lack applause for their audacity, and doubtless there will be fewer signs in their neighborhood hereafter.

A DEBATE THAT WILL NOT DOWN.

When the Aldrich-Payne Tariff bill was passed its admiring authors announced to a weary country that at length there would be peace in the land, that the troubling ghost of tariff agitation was laid, and men might go about their business undisturbed. In this spirit of gratulation President TAFT shared and expressed it with an emphasis that to those who understood the real situation seemed pathetically premature.

From that moment to this the discussion of the tariff has hardly ceased. At times it has slackened, but only to be renewed with increased vigor. Curiously enough, the agitation was begun by the President himself. Hardly had the extraordinary session of Congress ended when he started to "swing around the circle" of the continent after the fashion set by one of the most noted, but hardly the most admired, of his predecessors, the late ANDREW JOHNSON. And in the first of a long, long series of speeches he lauded the inventors and manipulators of the tariff, and then, with amazing misinterpretation of the sentiment of the people, he went on to denounce, in an entirely needless and in a somewhat offensive manner, the motives and conduct of those who had opposed the tariff. Inevitably they defended themselves, and the long continuation of the debate was on.

On Saturday Mr. Foss, the Massachusetts tariff-reform Republican, entered the discussion in the House of Representatives. His very presence there was a striking evidence of the hopeless error of the President and the anti-tariff reformers in estimating the force and direction of popular sentiment. He represents a change of some twenty thousand votes in a formerly overwhelming Republican district on the sole issue of the Aldrich-Payne tariff. And, especially, he represents that split in his party which the President had solemnly declared would be prevented by the signing of that tariff. On the other hand, he also represents one of the most significant and influential elements in the actual sentiment of the country, the resolute opposition to the tariff of a large body of manufacturers who find its favors harmful and its protection fraught with injury and among the many strong points that he made in his speech, was his assertion, as a practical manufacturer, employing a multitude of workmen, in not merely one but in several important industries, supposed to be especially helped by the metal schedule of the tariff, that, with the duties removed alike from the materials and the products of those industries, they could compete with all rivals at home and throughout the world. This statement, sustained by his unquestionable authority as a successful man of affairs, is a blow at one of the vital supports of the tariff, not only the present misbegotten measure, but the whole protective system. It applies to the main features of the system as much as to those with which Mr. Foss has to deal. The truth embodied in it cannot be brushed aside or suppressed. Nor can it be obscured by the utmost display of energy by the President in behalf of the tangled web of measures he calls his "programme."

THE HARRIMAN PARK.

The State has parks enough, and it cannot afford to meet halfway the body of private contributors, led by Mrs. HARRIMAN, who would extend the Inter-State Palisades Park to her estate in the Catskills for the benefit of the people of New York City. These are the two excuses given for the Senate's "snap" vote rejecting her gift of $1,000,000, swelled to over $8,000,000 by the other donors and by the act of New Jersey's Legislature. Without the appropriation of $2,500,000 needed from the State this amount and the 10,000 acres of beautiful wild lands in Orange and Rockland Counties would not be available for the park.

The Harriman Park is needed by this city, which, in population, is half the State. The other State parks in the Catskills and in the Adirondacks are not accessible to this population. We have not parks enough without it. Within a generation the tract now offered to the State by private donors will easily double in value. The "unearned increment" alone would compensate the State for the expense of creating the park. The richest State in the Union can well afford the expenditure. In characterizing Mrs. HARRIMAN'S gift, Gov. HUGHES said in his message to the Legislature:

> Through this generous and patriotic action, which cannot be too highly commended, there will at once be afforded a basis not only for necessary conservation, but for the development of a public recreation ground in a region of matchless beauty, rich in historical associations, and close to the abodes of more than half the people of the State.

Could a better reason be formulated for a reconsideration by the Senate of its hasty and ill-advised vote?

POPULAR AND UNPOPULAR TAXES.

The organ of the party which polled 33,994 votes in the last State election is urging all its following to support the income tax amendment, which is opposed by the party of the Governor who polled 804,651 Republican votes, and whose legislative leader declares that the tax is dead so far as he is concerned. The other minority party is also supporting the income tax, in the State as well as in the Nation. The verdict of the polls therefore is that the tax is unpopular, although it is being supported on the ground that antagonism to property animates the electorate.

This feeling regarding the income tax may be contrasted with the views expressed by a Democratic Congressman who carried his election by opposition to the tariff bill which the Administration regards as a title to popular favor. Said Representative HAVENS, the Democrat, who carried the Republican Thirty-second District of this State:

> The independent voters were with us on the tariff issue, and among these voters were the majority of the men who work in the factories of Rochester. These voters were with us because they understand this revision of the tariff and they know how these tariff taxes are levied so as to bear heaviest on those least able to bear them.

Here is the straw which indicates that it is more popular, as well as better economics, to untax consumers than to levy an additional descriminating tax on a class which is characteristically a producing class. It is a better "cry" to facilitate consumption by cheapening production than to increase the cost to consumers by laying a special tax on wealth. The distributive share of lower prices can be calculated by any one, and it will be seen to be larger than the returns either in money or in satisfaction by the levying of the income tax.

Mr. HAVENS is needed in Congress, and it is to be hoped that he will see his way to remain there. Also, it is to be hoped even by Republicans themselves, both as citizens and partisans, that he may be joined there by many others of his way of thinking on the subject of taxation as a source of prosperity and happiness. The point is strengthened by Mayor GAYNOR'S dispatch to the Legislature on Saturday in support of the bill removing personal taxes in this city. Here again it is a Democrat who is profiting by the proposal to lessen the tax burden, and the Republicans are placing themselves in an attitude of obstruction to a bill regarding which the Mayor expresses himself thus:

> Inasmuch as this city is practically unanimous for the personal tax bill, which was sent to the Legislature early in the session, can we not have it passed? What is the reason that we should not have it, when we want it?

What is the explanation of the Republican attitude toward taxation in both State and Nation?

Sam Weller explained in court that he could not see through a flight of stairs and a deal door unless he had only eyes to see with. One would need these nights, truly, "a pair o' patent-double-million-magnifying gas microscopes of hextra power" to see the comet in the western sky.

"We are living in a fool's paradise," said Senator HALE of Maine, speaking of the prospective huge increase in Federal appropriations. We are spending a tremendous lot of money every year, to be sure, but we have never heard any argument from Mr. HALE in favor of reducing the $160,000,000 pension fund, which could be greatly curtailed without loss to any man who ever served this country under arms.

Sister CANDIDE, it seems, is not even a nun. Her religious pose is as false as most of her charitable work. She has been carrying on her fraudulent operations for eighteen years, under the very eyes of the renowned Parisian police, and it is said that nearly $6,000,000 has passed through her hands, while the various institutions she maintained cost her only $40,000 a year. France, supposed to be the country of the most sophisticated people in the world, is still the best field for ingenious and daring imposters.

There is no hint of Mr. HAMMERSTEIN'S personal humor, which lends a cheerful aspect to the most strained situation, in the kind of rivalry the Metropolitan Opera House singers have encountered in Paris. Theatrical wars in France have led to bloodshed before now. But the music of VERDI in "Aida" quelled the riot of the cabal, and if we are patriotic we may rejoice that it was the American voice of LOUISE HOMER singing the music that compelled silence.

The roof gardens of the hotels will be opened next week, weather permitting. The weather, however, seems inclined to permit nothing much, and to inspire only abuse. There is no reason for disappointment, though. We are having a typical New York Spring, with clouds, cold showers, and windstorms, and the Summer is likely to be quite warm enough when it breaks suddenly upon us.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

Mr. Mellen Defies the Commuters.

President MELLEN of the New Haven Road took unnecessary and perhaps injudicious pains to show how little weight he ascribes to the opposition which his proposed advance in fares has excited. Certainly his explanation as to why the advance is to be, and has to be, made was not convincing to those who heard it, and his statistics were presented in a way to prove little more than that—well, that anything can be proved by statistics.

He gravely stated, for instance, that he would gladly pay every commuter who comes into New York over his line 5 cents a day if only they would all stay at home or choose some other means of transportation, and he based this generous offer on the allegation that while the New Haven Company had to pay 17.8 cents for each passenger carried in and out over the track south of Woodlawn, each passenger paid the company only 9.31 cents for the service—a loss of 7.99 cents. That is accurate figuring presumably, but it ignores the fact that the 9.31 cents is only a part of the fare that every passenger pays, and that though there may be a loss on this particular part of the journey, as there is over any specially expensive part of a railway line, there is not necessarily a loss on the whole of it. To believe that the company has since 1848 been losing daily on its commutation service 7.99 times the total number of its commuters is to raise the very pertinent question why the New Haven Road did not go into the hands of receivers long ago. There really must be something wrong in Mr. MELLEN'S computation, for obviously no corporation could stand such a frightful drain upon its resources.

Possibly Mr. MELLEN assumed that nobody except railway accountants ever heard the expression "additional cost," or knows that the fair way to view the commutation business is as something that can be done both cheaply and profitably because, for a big plant that must be maintained for other purposes anyhow, it involves but a slight increase of total expenditure. Money is made out of many a "by-product" that could not possibly be manufactured by itself. Mr. MELLEN claims that even with the advanced rates he will still lose 4.55 cents on every commuter. If so, how will he justify to his stockholders the carrying of these worse than deadheads? His argument proves at once too much and too little.

Somebody Guilty of Perjury.

Justice WHEELER, in charging the jury before whom a Tammany leader and some of that leader's followers were tried for conspiracy to violate the election laws, called attention to the fact that it was impossible to harmonize the testimony presented by the witnesses for the prosecution and for the defense. One side or the other, he more than intimated, had deliberately and intentionally lied about the happenings of that exciting day, and it was for the jurymen to decide which side it was that had told the truth.

As the verdict was an acquittal of all the prisoners, the witnesses for the prosecution stand accused, in effect, of that most serious crime, perjury. For no matters of opinion were involved—there was no chance for honest errors of observation or judgment. The same knowledge was in the possession of all the witnesses, and they had all had opportunity to see whether WILLIAMS and his friends did or did not resort to violence and the stuffing of ballot boxes for the purpose of defeating the ambitions of a political antagonist.

In a recent address on the imperfections of our legal procedure in both criminal and civil cases, SAMUEL UNTERMYER said that our courts had come to reek with perjury, and he might well use this trial as illustrating the truth of his accusation—an accusation, by the way, which nobody has taken the trouble to deny, presumably for the excellent reason that denial would be absurd as well as useless. As a remedy for a truly dreadful situation, Mr. UNTERMYER suggested that when a Judge has reason to think that witnesses testifying before him have committed perjury it should be his duty as well as his right to institute immediate proceedings against them.

Here would have been an excellent opportunity for doing just that thing, and the result would have been extremely interesting, especially in its bearing on the decision which the jurymen reached in this case. Either their verdict would [illegible] punishment [illegible] and tried to make them [illegible] conclusion, or its erroneousness would have been demonstrated—with the incidental jailing of the witnesses on the other side. As things stand now, the witnesses who testified so strongly against WILLIAMS are and must remain under the burden of the jury's disbelief in what they said under oath—which, though unpleasant, is not as much as they deserve if, as by hypothesis they must be, they are guilty of attempting to swear away the liberty of seven innocent men.

An Orator Defends Oratory.

Some of us have wondered of late years why oratory survived—why, instead of being merely obsolescent, as it obviously is, speechmaking has not been entirely abandoned for the more convenient and effective methods of giving publicity to fact and opinion which the indefatigable printing presses supply. Certainly it seems absurd for a man with something to say to go to much trouble and expense to read or declaim it to the little group of people his voice can reach, when the newspapers offer him vastly larger audiences and an opportunity to get before them his meaning carefully and accurately expressed, instead of a more or less vague impression of it.

Mr. BRYAN—W. J.—has explained the mystery. Newspapers, he declares, have not abolished the necessity for public speech because—so far as we can make him out—they do not report public speakers fairly and correctly. Perhaps he meant public men. But does he believe his own accusation—really believe that there has been, for instance, any appreciable effort on the part of the press to conceal or to misrepresent his own utterances? They have undoubtedly received comment of so many kinds that not all of it could have been correct, but commenting is one thing and reporting is quite another, and Mr. BRYAN must confess that the reporters have been just as good to him as they know how to be—and that their knowledge along that line is extensive.

A newspaper man himself, why should Mr. BRYAN be so severe with the rest of us?

FOR A CHURCH HAT.

Better That Than No Hat at All or No Men at Church.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Shall the women be asked to remove their hats in church, or will they adopt hats that need not be removed in church? That is the question. We men have heard all our lives long about women's rights, and that was well, for there was much to be righted. But what about men's rights? Turn about is fair play, and there certainly is one right belonging to men which the women have openly set at defiance—the right to worship in church without having both vision and hearing shut out by the length and depth and breadth and height of women's hats.

This vexation we have long and patiently borne, and we respectfully ask the women for the sake of blessed charity to stop it. This can be done either by having their heads bare during divine service, as the heads of the men are, or by the substitution of a toque compactly trimmed, or a "Marie Stuart" bonnet, or any other appropriate style that art can devise for the unsuitable and out-of-place hats now worn in church.

This latter plan is preferable for two reasons. In the first place, tradition and custom require that in Roman Catholic and Episcopalian places of worship a woman shall not appear without some covering on her head during divine service, even if the covering be only a veil, as in Rome, and in the second place the conditions that prevail in a church are different from those that prevail in a theatre, where women are now obliged to remove their hats. Here a woman sits during the whole performance, and can rest her hat securely on her lap until she is ready to resume it, but at church she sometimes sits, sometimes kneels, and sometimes stands, and during these various movements it would be difficult to keep a hat from being crushed. Small and appropriate hats for church wear can be as bewitchingly pretty as large ones, and the designer who shall meet the situation and invent suitable designs will be a benefactor to a long-suffering community.

Charles Dickens in "The Christmas Carol" says: "God bless those women, they never do anything by halves." Certainly, no one would seriously say that those of our time have obstructed our vision and hearing in church and ministered to our discomfort there by halves. They have done it completely year in and year out, and unless a reform is initiated by the generosity and common sense of the women themselves there is grave danger that ere long one of two things will happen—either a large number of men will cease to frequent church and refuse to contribute to its support, or public opinion will exert its power for the removal of all hats in churches, as it has successfully required the removal of all hats in theatres. Neither of these alternatives would be desirable, and the adoption of a suitable church hat seems to offer the only fair and honorable compromise, and would satisfy us, and "if it were done when 'tis done, then 'twere well it were done quickly," for it is easier to keep men in church than to bring them back when once they have left it. ART OF SMOKING.

Controversy Over Proper Way to Fire and Cake a Pipe.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In your issue of April 24 you printed an article entitled "To Smoke a Pipe," which is full of misinformation.

Will you kindly permit an old smoker and TIMES reader for over thirty years to reply to the article above mentioned?

The article begins by saying that "either a tobacco or a coal fire should burn the same way." This is entirely wrong for several reasons. In a coal fire you want to generate heat, and you burn from below, the draft carrying the smoke, gas, and vaporous fumes out through the chimney. In a pipe you do not want the heat, but only the smoke, and this the cooler the better.

The writer of your article says "it is a rash fallacy to think that a crust should cover the inside of your pipe bowl." If he speaks of a clay pipe he is right. It is, however, different with a briar pipe. A new briar pipe should be smoked slowly in the beginning, to prevent its becoming overheated. By charring the bottom end of a fence post you protect the wood against decay. The crust which should form in the pipe bowl for the same reason prevents the burning out of the pipe by acting as an insulator. The live coal resting in contact with the unprotected wood surface would gradually burn into it, especially if the pipe is smoked in the open where a draft will fan the glow. CONNOISSEUR.

PRESS AND THE PRESIDENT.

Thinks the Newspapers Have Been Too Lenient.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

President Taft thinks the press has been too severe in comments on his Administration. The fact is the press has been too lenient.

Instead of feeding him with honey it should have scourged him with whips. Thus spurred on to exert himself, Mr. Taft would have proved the good in him and would have acquitted himself with credit. For he has it in him, only he must be forced to realize the responsibilities and duties resting upon him. The consideration shown was unfortunate for him.

Mr. Taft would have been compelled to accept proper suggestion, and thus saved himself many of the troubles which have held him in their grasp.

Less reliance on bad advisers and less faith in personal public appeals throughout the country would also have aided materially. Too many county fairs, Sunday school picnics, commercial banquets, and car-end speeches with the accompanying journeyings have also aided in bringing trouble.

Let him maintain the dignity of his office and stick to his post of duty. E. T. W.

CENTRES OF CONGESTION.

The Effects of the Present Tenement House Laws on Them.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

My attention is called to an article in your issue of this date entitled "Modern Tenement Evils," and in the course of which a synopsis of a report by Mrs. Florence Kelley, Secretary of the National Consumers' League, is given at the Present Problem dinner held at the Hotel Imperial, Brooklyn. Mrs. Kelley is quoted as saying that "the new law tenement had been in existence eleven years, and all that time sweating and congestion on the lower east side had been growing worse every year," and further stated that as a corrective the modern tenement was, therefore, a flat failure.

I entirely agree with Mrs. Kelley that the present tenement house law induces congestion of population, the reason for this being that the law applies with the same severity to buildings in the most remote parts of the outlying boroughs as it does to the most congested centre. If we are to relieve this congestion it must be done by diffusing the population to the outlying districts, where transportation is not so convenient, as people are bound to live close to the transit centres, and unless some inducement is given them to travel further they will continue to live where congestion is most, as at that point transit is most convenient. To illustrate what I mean, in the Borough of the Bronx we have hundreds of miles of streets that are regulated, graded, flagged, and sewered, all ready for builders, but for years they have lain waste, builders taking no advantage of these improvements, the reason being there is no inducement for them to improve this property, as after they build upon the lots they cannot get people to live in them because rents are practically as high there as they are close to transit.

If we would scatter the people of Manhattan Island over the outlying territories, the way to do it is by making the laws concerning small buildings in these sections less drastic than they are in the larger centres, and so builders will be induced to build and tenants will go further because the rents will be cheaper. For years in the Borough of the Bronx we have been trying to have a modification of the present tenement house law, eliminating three-family houses of a certain type and class of construction from the classification as tenements, but up to the present have not succeeded. Last year plans were filed for 2,400 buildings in the Borough of the Bronx at a gross value of $41,000,000, and but 44 of these, at a value of $422,000, were three-family houses, and for the first four months of this year, while we have had plans for 707 buildings filed at a value of $15,171,230, we have not yet received one plan for a three-family house, while the buildings for housing large numbers of families have increased until, in one instance, we find a building with seventeen families on a floor, showing that something must be done to induce the builders to build smaller houses, further from the congested sections.

The average cost for each building in this borough during 1909 was about $15,000, while the average cost for the first four months of this year has increased to $21,000 for each building, showing that the tendency for large buildings, housing larger numbers of families, is on the increase. Superintendent of Buildings, Borough of the Bronx.

PLATFORMS ON SUFFRAGE.

What Political Parties Have Said on the Subject Since 1876.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The Republican Party in its platform of 1876 expressed itself in the following language on woman suffrage:

> The Republican Party recognizes with approval the substantial advances recently made toward the establishment of equal rights for women, by the many important amendments effected by Republican Legislatures, in the laws which concern the personal and property relations of wives, mothers, and widows, and by the appointment and election of women to the superintendence of education, charities, and other public trusts. The honest demands of this class of citizens for additional rights, privileges, and immunities should be treated with respectful consideration.

The Prohibition Party in its platform of the same year has as its second plank:

> The abolition of class legislation and of special privileges in the Government, and the adoption of equal suffrage and eligibility to office, without distinction of race, religious creed, property, or sex.

In its platform of 1880, it had the following:

> We also demand as a right, that women, having the privilege of citizens in other respects, be clothed with the ballot for their protection and as a rightful means for the proper settlement of the liquor question.

In 1884, the platform contained the following:

> We hold to and will vote for woman suffrage.

These provisions were adopted in the succeeding platforms. In 1900, however, the Convention Committee reported:

> That it is the sense of this convention that the ballot should not be denied to any citizen of the United States on account of sex, but did not incorporate this resolution in its platform.

Other parties made provision for woman suffrage in their platforms: the Greenback Party in 1880 and 1884, the National Party in 1896, the Union Labor in 1888, the Socialist-Labor in 1892.

Two Woman's Rights Conventions were held in 1884 and 1888. The Equal or Woman's Rights Convention was held in San Francisco Sept. 20, 1884, with Mrs. Marietta L. Stow of California as Chairman. The convention nominated Mrs. Belva A. Lockwood of the District of Columbia for President and Mrs. Marietta L. Stow for Vice President. The platform, drawn up by this convention, contained fifteen provisions, two of which have a bearing on woman's suffrage. These are:

1. We pledge ourselves, if elected to power, so far as in us lies, to do equal and exact justice to every class of our citizens, without distinction of color, sex, or nationality.
2. We shall recommend that the laws of the several States be so amended that women will be recognized as voters, and their property rights made equal with that of the male population, to the end that they may become self-supporting rather than a dependent class.

The second Equal Rights Convention was held at Des Moines, Iowa, May 15, 1888. The Chairman was Mrs. Nettie Sandford Chapin of Iowa. Mrs. Lockwood was renominated for President and Alfred H. Love of Pennsylvania was nominated for Vice President. The convention adopted a platform favoring woman suffrage, pensions for all needy soldiers and sailors, protective tariff with free sugar and lumber, the repeal of the tax on whisky and tobacco, and opposition to unrestricted immigration.

The Republican Party in 1896 and 1900 did not commit itself to woman suffrage, but praised the good work women have done and are doing for the glory of this country.

President Judson on the Present Age.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Recent press dispatches attribute to me in an address the statement that > the present age is the most decadent in history, with the exception of the days just before the fall of the Roman Empire and before the French Revolution.

I did not make that statement. Such a generalization would be idle at best. I do not believe it to be true, and did not assert it.

FEDERAL AND STATE RATE MAKERS CLASH

Alabama Board Has Made Tariff on Fish That Robs Pensacola of Trade.

NATIONAL BOARD HELPLESS

Refuses to Reduce Pensacola Figures, but Thinks That Congress May Take Some Action.

WASHINGTON, May 22.—Observers of freight rate regulation have anticipated that a conflict of authority would arise between the Inter-State Commerce Commission and one or more of the State Railroad Commissions. Such a conflict has developed from a complaint of E. E. Saunders & Co., fish dealers, of Pensacola, Fla., against the Southern Express Company.

The Saunders firm has operated largely in Alabama, shipping fish in quantities from Pensacola to Alabama points by express. Recently the Railroad Commission of Alabama fixed an express rate on fish from Mobile, Ala., to other Intra-State points that was far below the express rate from Pensacola to the same points. Mobile fish shippers thus had an advantage over those of Pensacola, although, in many instances, the distance from Pensaqola to points of destination was less than that from Mobile.

The Southern Express Company refused to make the same rates from Pensacola to points in Alabama, and a complaint was filed against it with the Inter-State Commerce Commission.

The commission's opinion has been prepared by Commissioner Harlan, and is the unanimous judgment of the commission. While the case directly involved may be inconsequential, the principle enunciated by the commission is of country-wide application. The commission states its position in these terms:

> Upon general principles of comity the action of a State commission in fixing rates on State traffic must be treated with all due respect; but this commission has never felt itself bound to accept a State-made rate as a necessary measure of an inter-State rate. Without criticising the State commission rates from Mobile, this commission, in the light of the record and its own investigations, finds itself unable to accept the Alabama rates as a fair and reasonable basis for fixing the defendant's rates to the same points from Pensacola.

In announcing that it will not close the record in the case until the defendant had made further efforts to contest the order of the Alabama commission, the Inter-State Commerce Commission says:

> The carriage of traffic by a common carrier for one community or one set of shippers at less than it carries the same traffic for a like distance and under substantially similar transportation conditions for another community or another set of shippers is not only in contravention of fundamental right and justice but is essentially iniquitous. If such a discrimination is practiced by a common carrier as between communities or different sets of shippers within the same State and on traffic moving only within the State, redress may usually be had under the State laws. On the other hand, if an inter-State carrier is guilty of such a discrimination with respect to inter-State traffic, redress may be had under the act to regulate commerce.
> But when a carrier, as in this case, serves two communities similarly situated by hauling the same traffic under similar conditions from a point of origin to destination in the same State and also to the same destination from an inter-State point of origin, it is not altogether clear that existing legislation affords redress against a discrimination as between the two points, when resulting from an order by the State Commission. But unless some such power is lodged somewhere under appropriate legislation, it is evident that State-made rates, if established in pursuance of a narrow or selfish local policy, may not only hinder and harm and burden inter-State traffic and inter-State interests, but may, if adjusted with that end in view, take from a point in another State a business that naturally belongs to that point or in which it is entitled at least to participate, on the basis of equal rates and equal opportunity.

It may be, but on that point we express no opinion, that the Congress may constitutionally protect inter-State commerce, as well as the carriers that are engaged in inter-State transportation, by requiring that any State traffic moved by such a carrier shall bear its just proportion of the cost of operation, and yield its proper proportion of profit to the carrier, and that with such an end in view it may authorize this commission to fix minimum rates, at least for State traffic when moved by carriers engaged also in inter-State transportation, or that it may provide that no carrier engaged in the inter-State transportation of passengers or property may at the same time carry State traffic at rates that are less than the rates exacted by it for inter-State carriage of like distance and under like transportation conditions.

It has, however, not attempted any such legislation, and whether such an enactment would stand the test of scrutiny by the courts under the Constitution as it now stands, and, if so, whether it would be desirable from the standpoint of a broad public policy, are questions that must ultimately be determined by the legislative power, and therefore cannot profitably be discussed by the commission in this proceeding.

The express companies accepted the low Mobile rates under protest, and a contest will be made in the State courts.

KERENS TAKES A PALACE.

American Ambassador Will Live in One Built by Rothschild in Vienna.

VIENNA, May 22.—In acquiring a lease of Kolewrat Palace, Richard C. Kerens, the American Ambassador, will be more sumptuously housed than any former representive at this court.

The palace was built by Baron Albert Rothschild, for his son, Baron Oscar Rothschild, who committed suicide last July because, it was said, of a love affair with a Chicago girl. The palace has spacious state apartments and occupies a commanding situation.

WOMAN'S WORK.

Those who assert or dream or think
That woman's interest, time and energy
Are but waste effort, weak futility,
And that she stands to-day upon the brink
Of nervous ennui, through sheer idleness,
Have missed the essence of new womanhood
Which lately issued from her wakened breast;
These, understanding not her eager soul,
Are still convinced her strivings bode no good—
Being but reaction of a long duress.
These do not fathom nature or her ways,
Nor yet the stretch and yearn of woman's soul;
So blind their eyes, through o'er the passing days,
They glimpse not yet her purpose nor her goal.

It is not play nor is it lukewarm zeal
That thrills the blood of noblest womankind;
The mills of fate are at their ceaseless grind
And evolution seeks the common weal
Which man alone too slowly metes to man;
'Tis but a part and parcel of earth's plan
That woman's hand should fix the mark and seal
Upon perfection—human competence.
She who was last shall be the first to win
Emancipation, fullness, ripened growth;
'Twas left, and fitly, for her soul to sense
The subtle secret of o'ercoming sin.
The universe to-day deplores man's sloth
And marks the era woman must begin.

LURANA W. SHELDON.

BROWNIELAND FILLS ORPHANS' COFFERS

Little Girls of the Hebrew Sheltering Home Give a Play to Revive the "Penniless" Fund.

BUYS GOOD THINGS TO EAT

Girls' Republic Dispenses Pennies to Those Who Have No Relatives to Remember Them.

The Press Committee met the reporter right at the door of the Hebrew Sheltering Guardian Society, all decked out in a gorgeous white frock. The Press Committee is about 10 years old, and she lisps, but that doesn't affect in any way adversely her ability to handle reporters.

"Oh, we're tho glad to thee you. Come thith way," she declared, and she took the reporter's hat and hurried him to the left, and to the right, and this way and that, until he saw a roomful of little boys and girls all dressed up and fidgetting and prattling expectantly in their seats, with all the other seats filled and the walls lined with grown-ups, looking on the whole not a whit less expectant.

"But what's the name of this play?" asked the reporter.

"Bwownieland," vouchsafed the Press Committee.

"Brownieland," the reporter learned—all from the Press Committee, who sat beside him to see that he got all the details—was being given by the citizens of the Girls' Republic of the asylum, and some of the actresses were only 5 years old and none was over 15, and they had been rehearsing for months and months. On Saturday night, when the play was first given, it made a great success.

"Brownieland" was given for the Penniless Fund, the reason for the existence of which is something like this: Most of the boys and girls in the asylum are only half-orphans, and when visiting days come at the institution, their relatives leave pennies and nickels, and sometimes even quarters, so that they can buy bananas and cakes and candies, and on occasions even ice cream sodas, until the next visiting day comes around.

Some of the orphans though haven't a soul in the world, and when visiting days come they don't even get a visitor, much less a penny. That was radically wrong, thought the citizens of the republic. So a motion was "regularly made and seconded and amended and carried" that the republic itself provide such children with spending money, and that's what it has been doing for the last few years.

Two years ago, when the last play was given, $150 was obtained. And that sum was sufficient to buy lollypops and bananas and soda for all the penniless children up to this date. But now, sad to say, all that money has been used; the Penniless Fund is now exhausted, and that's the reason "Brownieland" was given by the children.

When all the audience cried "Sh-h!" and the curtains drew aside, and the reporter saw one little girl dressed up as Supt. Bernstein of the asylum, and another one as the matron; when he saw Old King Cole, the merry old soul, and Lollypop and Sammy Skates, and the Topsy-Turvy Man, and a chorus of five-year-old Brownies singing funny songs at the top of their piping voices, he agreed with the Press Committee and with everyone else present that it was a beautiful chorus.

When it was all through, and the applause had ceased, the Press Committee took the reporter to the wings, where he was introduced, with other grown-ups, to all the performers and, being a man of age, hugged everyone of the chorus who would let him, promising faithfully not to forget to mention their names. Here they are:

Dora Solowitz, Irene Solowitz, Clara Gropper, Esther Ruskin, Libbie Smolker, Jennie Kernsky, Lillian Lowenstein, Laura Jacobi, Augusta Margolis, Minnie Cohen, Mollie Saperstein, Annie Siegelman, Esther Dubov, Annie Klayman, Ida Shapiro, Bessie Shafsky, Sarah Rosen, Rose Schwartz, Diana Gotthold, Elizabeth Gerber, Rebecca Isidore, Rennette Seltzer, Pauline Bernstein, and Dora Kroll.

"I hope you'll tweat us as kindly as you can," said the Press Committee. "All we want is your honest and impartial cwiticism."

And the reporter's impartial "cwiticism" is, that if $150 lasted the Penniless Fund for two whole years, one performance of "Brownieland" on Broadway would buy lollypops and ice cream sodas for the penniless children for the next half century.

Here is one of the songs of "Brownieland." It was sung by Lollypop, the heroine, who had to repeat it several times:

> One child should help another
> Be it sister, friend, or brother.
> All children should be gay,
> Laugh and sing, dance and play.
> When you are feeling glad
> Hunt up some one who is sad
> Then the thing for you to do
> Is—make him happy just like you.

"Brownieland" was written by Morton S. Rutsky, who arranges a play every year for the Girls' Republic.

COLLEGE GIRL ON THE STAGE.

Miss Callaway the Third Wellesley Student to be an Actress.

Emily Callaway, a graduate of Wellesley College, has been engaged by Wagenhals & Kemper to play the rôle of Kit McNair in "Seven Days" next season. This will be Miss Callaway's professional début on the stage, although she was associated with theatricals at Wellesley. She is the third from the same college to adopt the stage as a profession, her predecessors being Helen Hale and Diamond Donner, both of whom began in the chorus.

Miss Callaway was born in Chicago, but comes from a Southern family. At college she was a member of the Barn Swallows Club, and played boy parts in their theatricals. She is the author of several plays that were presented by the club, including "The Return of Deborah," "Miss Oliver's Dollars," "The Power of Friendship," and "Prince Charley." Incidentally she "went in for" athletics and won the right to wear the college "W."

"Mary Magdalene" Given in English.

The first presentation in English of Friedrich Hebbel's three-act tragedy, "Mary Magdalene," was made at the Hackett Theatre last night before an invited audience. The play has frequently been given here in German at the Irving Place Theatre, when Hedwig Reicher was at the head of the stock company there. Last night's translation was made by Richard Offner and Rosa Laddon, and the principal rôle was played by Sara Biala, a young Polish actress who has taken part in other special performances this season. The play will be repeated at the Hackett to-morrow afternoon.

HAMMERSTEIN, PHILOSOPHER.

Attitude Toward Metropolitan to be Friendly Independence, He Says.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, May 22.—Oscar Hammerstein has returned to Paris, where he is awaiting the arrival of his son Arthur to discuss with him future plans for his Manhattan house. Mr. Hammerstein's state of mind is characteristically philosophic. He expressed himself as harboring only the kindest feelings toward Julio Gatti-Casazza, and said he wished his former rival well for the coming season. His attitude toward the Metropolitan Opera he describes as one of friendly independence.

Geraldine Farrar and Antonio Scotti, when they arrived here from New York, placed themselves immediately at the service of Director Carré to sing at the Opera Comique for the Sardou monument.

FLEA CIRCUS IS HERE.

It Will Be One of the Features for the Victoria Roof Opening.

Among the novelties promised for the opening of Hammerstein's roof garden on top of the Victoria Theatre are included an electrical milking machine for the long-suffering cow, a flea circus, and a new game called "ringing the ducks." For the milking machine attraction the old and favorite cow of several seasons past will have a companion to share stellar honors of the roof farmyard.

The flea circus comes from Germany, the property of Augustus Rohoff of Hepburg. The fleas, which, it is said, understand only German, will do various gymnastic feats, such as walking a tight rope, leaping hurdles, running races, and turning somersaults. Just what protection will be afforded the audience in case the performers get panicky and break bounds has not been stated.

The new game is to be played with light papier-mache rings and the real ducks that live on the roof. During the intermission each night those in the audience will have the privilege of trying to throw these rings over the heads of the ducks and of taking the ducks home if they succeed.

ON A THREE YEARS' CRUISE.

The Count and Countess Festetics Sail on the Yacht Tetona.

Flying the Austrian Navy flag at her stern, the schooner yacht Tetona, formerly Commodore Todd's yacht Thistle, sailed yesterday afternoon from South Brooklyn on a three-year cruise with Count Randolph Festetics and Countess Festetics, who was Miss Wetherbee, daughter of Gardner Wetherbee, the proprietor of the Hotel Manhattan. As the vessel sailed down the bay the Count was at the helm, with the Countess by his side. They boarded the Tetona on Saturday night.

Count Festetics purchased the yacht from Commodore Todd in December and contemplated starting on a cruise the latter part of that month, but the Countess's mother died and the voyage was postponed. A second postponement was due to the failure of the Count to get a crew. Two weeks ago, when the Count got a crew to sign for three years, the mate assaulted the steward, the steward quit his job, and the rest of the crew, with the exception of the mate, mutinied. Another crew was hired on Friday, and for fear that more trouble might arise the Count decided to sail yesterday.

Although the Count has never handled a sailing vessel, the Count is his own skipper. He has a mate and boatswain, but no Captain. The first stop will be at Madeira, which he contemplates making in three weeks. From Madeira the Tetona will sail for Gibraltar, and thence to Marseilles, where the Count and Countess have their permanent home. They will remain there two months, in which time the Count will have the Tetona equipped with twin screws and a 44-horse-power electric engine. Then will follow a month's cruise in the Mediterranean, after which the Tetona will sail for the Indian Ocean, where a year will be spent in cruising. A return trip to Marseilles will be made, and later across the Atlantic back to New York.

The mascot aboard the Tetona is the Countess's Irish greyhound Jack. The Count and Countess have no guests aboard.

DUKE DE MONTPENSIER HERE.

Brother of the Duke of Orleans Is On a World-Wide Tour.

Bound on a round-the-world trip, the Duke of Montpensier, brother of the Duke of Orleans, arrived yesterday on the French liner Touraine. The Duke expects to do much hunting in many countries before he gets back to France. He will also hunt with a moving picture machine. He is accompanied by his secretary, Hubert Thornier, and four servants.

The Duke went to the Knickerbocker, where he will spend a week before going to Mexico. From Mexico he will go to Montana, thence to the Pacific Coast, where he will sail on the next step in his long journey.

This is his second trip around the world.

PICTURES BY WIRE TO 'FRISCO

Inventor of the System Says He Will Do It with Three Relays.

Thorne Baker, inventor of a system for sending pictures by telegraph and by wireless, who has been here for a month making experiments, will sail for England to-morrow by the North German liner Kronuprinzessin Cecilie. Mr. Baker said that the experiments in sending pictures from this city to Boston had been successful, but the distance was too short for his invention to be of commercial value.

"I am going to build two machines," said Mr. Baker, "and expect to return here in September and send pictures to Chicago. From that point I will send them to Denver, where they again will be relayed to San Francisco."

Mr. Baker said he was confident this could be done. The time for sending a picture from San Francisco to New York would not exceed seventy-five minutes. The cost was not as great, he said, as it had been, as he had perfected a portable machine for taking the pictures.

The thing that impressed him most during his month in New York, the scientist said, was the janitor of the New York Electrical Society, 29 West Thirty-ninth Street.

"I was invited to give a lecture there two weeks ago by the members, and I took my instruments with me in a taxicab," said Mr. Baker. "When I got there I mildly requested the janitor to help me carry them into the lecture room. He replied: 'Carry them yourself.'"

Besides the janitor, Mr. Baker said that he had been most impressed by the temperance in public places in this city. "I have not seen a drunken man since I have been here," he said.

MEETING FOR PLAYGROUNDS.

Gathering at Cooper Union Will Urge More Recreation Centres.

A meeting will be held on Friday evening, May 27, in Cooper Union to extend the city's recreation centres. The work which is now being done through the schools and parks will be outlined, but the chief emphasis will be put upon the practical ways in which these activities can be extended and the undeveloped resources of the city made of use to the people.

The meeting will indorse the plans of the city for a municipal bath house at Coney Island, for the appointment of a Supervisor of Recreation under the Park Department as proposed by Commissioner Stover, and the Toombs bill creating a recreation commission.

Jacob A. Riis, the pioneer and agitator for out-of-door small parks; Dr. Luther H. Gulick, President of the Playground Association of America; Gen. George W. Wingate of the Public Schools Athletic League; Mrs. Charles H. Israels, the active worker in the interests of clean dance halls; Assemblyman Frederick R. Toombs, the author of the Toombs bill, have already promised to speak, while others of equal prominence are expected to present lines of activity in which they are especially interested.

THRONGS ATTEND BACH FESTIVAL

Montclair Church Packed at All Performances of the German Master's Works.

PROMINENT SINGERS HEARD

Full Boys' Choir and Organ and Orchestra Accompany Noted Men and Women Soloists.

Three large audiences heard the concluding programmes of the Fifth Bach Festival in the First Congregational Church at Montclair, N. J., yesterday afternoon, Saturday evening, and Saturday afternoon.

Two of the most celebrated of the German master's chorales, the six-part motet; "Blessing, Glory, and Wisdom," three sacred songs for baritone and an organ prelude, were the offerings of the final service yesterday. These engaged the Bach Choir of Montclair, directed by Clarence Dickinson, organist and choirmaster of the Brick Presbyterian Church, this city, and formerly conductor of the Apollo Club of Chicago, one of the foremost of Western musical organizations; Dalton Baker, baritone, of London, who has figured as a leading soloist at the Birmingham festivals, and at the organ, Mark Andrews. The surpliced choral ensemble of fifty mixed voices, consisting of the full personnel of the choir of St. Luke's Episcopal Church, Montclair, and led by their choirmaster, Walter S. Young, assisted in the singing of the choruses. The famous hymn "Ein' Feste Burg," the opening chorale of the service, and two others were sung by the combined choirs and the congregation. As in the earlier festival services, the clergy of the several Protestant Churches of Montclair presided with the Rev. Amory Bradford, pastor of the First Congregational Church.

The performance of Part II. of the "Passion According to St. Matthew" Saturday evening, which was attended with impressive solemnity, enlisted a corps of additional soloists, who sang the words of several important characters of the Passion, as follows: Conrad B. Kimpriest; Wilmot C. Goodwin, High Priest and Second Priest; Mmes. J. M. Goodell and R. C. Falconer, First and Second Maids. These were grouped in the forefront of the congregation, near to the pulpit, where, robed in black, Nicholas Douty, tenor, and Dr. Carl E. Dufft, basso, essayed, respectively, the Narrator and Christ.

At each of the "meetings" the profoundest attention was accorded the masterpieces of the "father of the Germanic school of music," by those present, and, although applause was discouraged, there were numerous spontaneous outbursts, especially during the course of the "orchestral interludium," Saturday afternoon, but these were quickly hushed out of deference to the place of gathering.

PAYTON AT THE ACADEMY.

His Stock Company Will Open There in "Sweet Kitty Bellairs."

Corse Payton will bring his stock company to the Academy of Music on June 7 with "Sweet Kitty Bellairs" as the first attraction. Between the closing of the regular season of the house and the beginning of the stock season Mr. Payton will make several changes in the auditorium, the principal of which will be the transferring of the main entrance from Irving Place to Fourteenth Street.

The old carriage entrance will be remodeled, box offices installed, and the theatre turned around, so to speak, to face on busy Fourteenth Street instead of the more quiet Irving Place. The present entrance will be used by the gallery patrons. For the Summer the new main entrance will be reached through a white and green lattice effect.

Mrs. Etta Reed Payton will head the stock company, and the rest of the members will include Mina Phillips, Joseph Girard, Grace Fox, Felix Warburg, Clara Wade, and Claude Payton. The second play, beginning on June 13, will be "Zaza." Mr. Payton announces that he will observe the same policy at the Academy of Music that he has adopted for his theatres in Brooklyn—the Lee Avenue, the Bijou, and the Fulton Street. The stock company he is bringing to Manhattan has the record of having played "Charley's Aunt," "Hamlet," "Parsifal," and "Floradora" in four successive weeks.

OBJECT TO AMUSEMENT PARK.

Residents of Palisade, N. J., Say the Resort Is a Nuisance.

Trouble is ahead this year for the Palisades Amusement Park, opposite Grant's Tomb, which is to be reopened next Saturday. Residents of the town of Palisade hope to obtain an injunction restraining the managers from opening the park until they have appeared before the court in an effort to prove that the resort is a nuisance.

At a mass meeting to be held next Friday evening, several residents will speak. In a petition circulated yesterday in connection with the mass meeting one clause reads:

> Counsel has expressed the opinion that the conditions of which we complain constitute a nuisance within the meaning of the law, and that a remedy is at hand through the Grand Jury or through injunction. If this view is upheld by the courts, the people have an opportunity to rid themselves of this menace to the enjoyment of their homes.

There are about 400 people in the village of Palisade, the property being highly restricted.

The Sunday Observance League of New Jersey is planning action against the Sunday opening of the park. The league's counsel will speak at the meeting.

The new managers of the park say they have spent nearly $500,000 in building new attractions, including a new switch back. It is this switch back against which the residents most bitterly are opposed, because of the screams of feminine passengers.

Tells Singers "Mikado" Traditions.

The rehearsal of "The Mikado" at the Casino Theatre yesterday took the form of a lecture by Joseph W. Herbert, the original Ko-Ko in this country, and originator of the title rôle in the first New York production, who is staging the revival, with the assistance of William Wilson. His talk to the principals and chorus related to the traditions of the piece and to a discussion of Gilbertian humor. The revival will be presented at the Casino on May 30, for four weeks.

Clara Morris Improves Slightly.

Miss Clara Morris, the actress, was resting easily at her home in Yonkers yesterday. Her condition generally showed some improvement, and there seemed to be no immediate danger of a relapse. She is, however, very ill.

AMUSEMENT NOTES.

Students from the Finch School in Seventy-seventh Street will attend the performance of "Jim the Penman" at the Lyric Theatre to-night.

Mme. Lucille Jocelyn gave a morning recital at 50 East Thirty-fourth Street on Saturday. Among her songs were Henschel's "Spring," Dvorak's "As My Aged Mother," and eight others. G. Van Rensselaer Thiel played the accompaniments.

After the closing of "The Jolly Bachelors" at the Broadway Theatre next Saturday Nora Bayes and Jack Norworth will return to vaudeville, opening at a Brooklyn theatre the following Monday and coming to Manhattan on June 6.

A special performance will be given by the Bowery Burlesquers company at Hurtig & Seamon's Music Hall next Thursday night in celebration of the tenth anniversary of Ben Jansen and Lizzie Freligh with the company.

ARCHBISHOP LAYS STONE.

Mgr. Farley Officiates at a New School in Mt. Vernon.

Archbishop Farley laid the cornerstone of the new parochial school of the Church of Our Lady of Victory, in Mount Vernon, yesterday afternoon. Previous to the ceremony there was a parade of the Catholic societies of Mount Vernon and near-by cities.

At the site of the school, North Sixth and Sidney Avenues, 5,000 persons gathered. Mayor Edwin W. Fiske welcomed the visitors to the city. The principal address of the day was by the Rev. Father John T. Chidwick. He deplored the lack of religious teaching in the public school system. He said the divorcing of Church and State, as intended by the founders of the Republic, had not included the driving of God out of the institutions of learning in which the bulk of the youthful receive their training.

Religious teaching in the home and Sunday school were not sufficient, he said

OPEN-AIR NAVY YARD MASS.

Arrangements Complete for Eighth Celebration of the Annual Event.

Arrangements for the open-air military mass, an annual event at the navy yard in Brooklyn, to be celebrated for the eighth time in the parade grounds near the marine barracks next Sunday, have been completed. The mass, as usual, will be for the dead soldiers and sailors of the United States who gave up their lives in the service of their country during the civil war and the Spanish-American war.

The Rev. Matthew C. Gleason, chaplain of the United States receiving ship Hancock, who was chaplain on the battleship Connecticut on its world cruise, will be the celebrant. He will be assisted by the Rev. Thomas F. McGronin, chaplain of the Fire Department, as deacon, and the Rev. Francis J. Sullivan, chaplain of the Police Department, as sub-deacon of the mass.

The Rev. Dr. John F. Nash, pastor of the Church of the Sacred Heart, in Clermont Avenue, Brooklyn, who often has ministered to the spiritual wants of the marines and sailors at the Brooklyn Navy Yard, will be master of ceremonies. The sermon will be delivered by the Rev. Dr. John P. Chidwick, who was chaplain on the battleship Maine when the vessel was blown up in Havana Harbor.

The mass will begin at 10 o'clock. As the preparations for the event this year anticipate the presence of a great military representation, including the Sixty-ninth Regiment, New York Volunteers, detachments of marines and sailors from the navy yard, and veteran organizations of the civil and Spanish-American wars, the gates at the navy yard will not be thrown open to the public until a few minutes before the time for the mass to begin.

The Committee of Arrangements decided upon this course as the large number of military and fraternal organizations will have to be placed on the field around the altar on which the mass will be celebrated before the public is allowed on the parade ground.

10,000 AT LABOR MEETING.

Congressman Bennet Hints at the Conditions in Non-Union Factories.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., May 22.—More than 10,000 persons filled the big Pier Auditorium this afternoon to attend the mass meeting for labor, the greatest popular meeting of the Presbyterian General Assembly. Charles F. Nagel, Secretary of Commerce and Labor, did not deliver his scheduled address on the conservation of National life. Congressman Bennet of New York said that he had sent him a message stating that he was slightly ill.

Congressman Bennet declared that he was speaking for Secretary Nagel when he said that the National turmoil over conservation of forests and National reservations is not nearly as important as the conserving of human life throughout the country. Congressman Bennet also said that "the coming report of the Commission on Immigration, which has been studying conditions in American factories, is likely to create a sensation in the number of preventable deaths caused in factories, especially where workers are not organized into unions to force protective methods."

The Rev. Charles Stelzle attacked present industrial and social conditions. He said that "when 30,000 industrial workers are killed every year it means that there is something wrong in our industrial system. In some cases it is nothing short of murder. The railways of America alone kill nearly 12,000 people every year and injure 120,000."

Officials of the Atlantic City Central Labor Union led a delegation of 2,000 mechanics and laborers who attended the meeting.

Gov. Fort was on the platform, and tonight acted as Chairman of a popular meeting in Oliver Presbyterian Church.

LUNDRIGAN IS PLEASED.

Returns to Buffalo After Settlement of Paper Mill Strike.

BUFFALO, May 22.—John Lundrigan, Chairman of the State Board of Mediation and Arbitration, returned here today from New York, where on Saturday the board succeeded in settling the strike in twenty-five mills of the International Paper Company in this State and the New England States. By the terms of the settlement about 5,700 workmen return to their places to-morrow after ten weeks of idleness.

The agreement was signed by the officers of the International Paper Company, the leaders of the International Brotherhood of Papermakers, the International Brotherhood of Pulp, Sulphite, and Paper Mill Workers, and representatives of the machinists, steam engineers, steamfitters, electrical workers, and the American Federation of Labor.

"The men return to work," said Chairman Lundrigan, "under a contract which abolishes Sunday work, carries an increase of approximately 5 per cent. in wages, and makes eight hours a day the maximum in machine rooms except in emergencies.

"If we had accomplished nothing more than to iron out the misunderstandings and petty prejudices that had grown up between employer and employe, our mission for good was realized. But we have settled a most complex situation to the satisfaction of all concerned."

BAKERS FIGHT OFF STRIKERS.

Two Men Badly Hurt in an Attack in Williamsburg.

More than 100 striking journeymen bakers and their sympathizers brought on a fight yesterday afternoon in the open lots at Union Avenue and North Eleventh Street, Williamsburg. The strikers have been trying for two weeks to persuade the men employed in the large Friedmann bread bakery at Bedford Avenue and North Eleventh Street to join them, but the men have refused.

Yesterday Frank Browning and William Beckroge, drivers employed by the company, and living at 96 Bedford Avenue, were sent out to escort employes to the company's plant. Browning had a loaded revolver and Beckroge was armed with a rubber club. The strikers had been on the lookout for the two men and knew the direction they generally took.

In the neighborhood of the open lots, where the fight took place, many wagons were parked, and in these strikers and their friends hid until Browning and Beckroge came along. The strikers then came from their hiding places and surrounded the two men. It was said that some of the strikers had revolvers, which they discharged. Browning and Beckroge drew their weapons and defended themselves.

The shooting brought Policemen Fannon and McDermott. On their approach all the strikers fled, dragging with them some of their companions who had been hurt.

Browning and Beckroge were both badly hurt. They were taken to the Bedford Avenue Police Station, where in spite of their protest that they had merely been protecting themselves they were held for carrying concealed weapons. Later both were released on bail.

BIDE-A-WEE DOGS TO HAVE AN AUTO

Will Take Them to the Country and Back, Collect Outcasts and Carry Their Food.

TO REWARD THEIR FRIENDS

"Joy Rides" as a Rival Inducement to the Rockefeller Institute's Cash Expected to Appeal to Boys.

Through the generosity of an out-of-town member of the Bide-a-Wee Society, whose name is withheld at her request, that organization has been able to buy an automobile, which will be put in use to-day. The effect of this acquisition upon the activities of the society will be far-reaching, according to Mrs. Harry Ulysses Kibbe, the President, because it helps to solve any number of psychological, physical, and pathological problems.

The society has a country home for its animal guests, at Harrington Park, N. J., and a big new city home for them at 244 East Sixty-fifth Street. The society has hitherto sent a large number of its physically run down and anaemic dogs out to the country rome for recreation and recuperation, the idea being to build them up with the country air and environment and then bring them back to city people who want pets.

Now, the country home is eighteen miles from town, out beyond Englewood, and the obstructions in the way of bringing the dogs back were such that they remained out there so long that they passed through the temporary guest stage and became a part of the family, so that the society felt attached to them, and put off bringing them back still longer, with all sorts of complications in the way of overcrowding and restriction of usefulness.

But with the new automobile, Mrs. Kibbe pointed out yesterday, there will be so little difficulty in quickly bringing guests back to the city that the attendants will not be tempted to keep them longer than the two weeks which is customarily needed to put a rundown city dog upon his feet and ready for adoption. And the faster the guest dogs are brought in, Mrs. Kibbe argues, the more the run down city dogs may be taken out.

That is not all. Mrs. George C. Boldt, whose husband is a large part of the Waldorf-Astoria, is a member of the Bide-a-Wee Society, and through her influence the society gets large supplies of choice cat and dog foods from the left-over things in the hotel kitchen. This food has been divided between the city home and the country home, and with the automobile, which is to go to Harrington Park, the food can be rushed out there a lot quicker and more easily.

Moreover, up to to-day the society had to make special arrangements to send for dogs and cats when it was told about them, and that was a problem, involving many difficulties. But with the new automobile the collecting of these dogs and cats will be easier and more effective and the scope of the society will be largely extended.

The new automobile, incidentally, will affect the boarding business of the society. For the benefit of its treasury, which is never too full, as Mrs. Kibbe says, the society has begun to take in boarders, for either the country home, where there is room for about twenty boarders, or the city home, where there is room for a dozen or so. For dogs the society gets from $6 to $8 a month, according to size, and for cats a flat rate of $5 since all cats seem to be of the same size. The boarding business, as any one can see, will be facilitated by a fast new automobile, to rush the boarders to and from their temporary abiding places.

Not only that, but the Bide-a-Wee Society has a Junior League of boys, who are pledged to be always kind to animals and save them from as many of the hardships of life as they can. The city home of the society is near the Rockefeller Institute, and the duties of the leaguers include efforts to divert as many dogs and cats from the institute, which the leaguers look upon as the nature of an animal Hades, to the society's city home, which they look upon as the other kind of a place for animals.

But all the boys of the neighborhood understand that they can get payment for a dog at the Rockefeller Institute, whereas up to now the membership in the league, with its duties, brought, besides that glow that radiates inside a boy when he acts kindly toward a dog or a cat only a lapel button with a dog's head on it. The glow and the button, in competition with the Rockefeller money, have not always won out. But with the new automobile, the Bide-a-Wee Society will from time to time give joy rides to its most efficient leaguers, and the appeal of the joy ride to any New York, juvenile, adolescent, or senile, is powerful, as everybody knows.

Mrs. Kibbe can see another probable advantage that may come from the new automobile, which is somewhat subtle, but nevertheless valuable. The country home of the society, called River Vale, is eighteen miles from New York, over good roads, by way of the 130th Street ferry, and is a very beautiful spot, Mrs. Kibbe declares. It is desired that automobile parties stop there and look at the ten beautiful acres, and the many trips of the society machine may help to set the fashion. The society's experience is that the more people see what it is doing, the more they resolve to help it financially and otherwise.

Other advantages may come along, but Mrs. Kibbe was quite busy yesterday, and had time only to tell these.

THE MATTER WITH BASEBALL.

Minneapolis Man Has a Grouch on the Game and Draws a Map of It.

A man with a grievance—by name L. R. Gemmett, by profession an inventor—lives in Minneapolis. There are others with grievances—some in New York, a few more in Chicago, and one or two in St Paul, which is next door to Minneapolis. But Mr. Gemmitt's grievance is vital—striking at the very basis of our civilization, which is baseball.

He has sat at ball games and seen the runner gain first base by a hair and a half, steal second by a short hair, and reach third on a short passed ball by half a hair, and yet have nothing to show for it on the score simply because he did not gain the fourth base. So into his logical Continental mind—although he is careful to state that he is native born—has crept the idea that all is not well with baseball and that the reward for effort is not properly distributed. So strong is his conviction that he has carefully written it out, had it printed on postcards, and paid postage on these to various points. One of these cards, which has come to THE NEW YORK TIMES, reads:

> INSANITY DISCOVERED IN BASEBALL.
> 108 bases can be made to not any, they will call it a tie. Born in this country. Who wants the people to become lunatics. 2 men out on home base; fill the bases; 12 bases made; 3rd man can strike out; 9 times 12 equals 108. We do not want people for office who will enlighten the children to become lunatics. Typhoid fever or drunkenness cannot compare. Any school board can investigate.
>
> | | |
> |---|---|
> | New York | 1 Score. |
> | Chicago | 108 bases. |
>
> FAILURE TO COUNT BASES CAUSES INSANITY.

There is much in Mr. Gemmett's argument. Suppose a team should fill the bases inning after inning and keep them full and yet never a man should get home, would not that be 12 bases made each inning and 108 made in the game, and would it not be a tie game even if never a one of the opponents got to first and wouldn't the other side win if by a lucky play it go one man around the four bags, and that one only, even though the foe had rolled up 108 bases?

Mr. Gemmett may have discovered the weakness of our National sport. 'Tis a matter for the National Commission.

MINISTRY WINS IN BELGIUM.

Liberals and Socialists Sought to Oust Clericals from Control.

BRUSSELS, May 22.—Elections were held here to-day for Deputies for various districts, and extensive, though incomplete, returns show the re-election of the Schollaert Ministry. The Clericals lost one seat. The Liberals and Socialists combined to crush the Clericals, who have been in control for the last twenty-six years. The original majority of the Clericay Party was 76, but this has gradually been reduced to eight seats. The allies bent all their energies to gain at least four seats and overthrow the domination of the Clericals. The fight has been made by the Liberals and Socialists on certain reforms, including the substitution of simple universal suffrage for the present system of plural voting, based upon property and higher educational attainments and the enforcement of compulsory neutral education as against the present system, which is largely religious.

The elections were held in five provinces, which are entitled to 85 seats out of a total of 166. The present representation in these provinces is: Clericals, 50; Liberals, 23; Socialists, 12.

ELECTION ON IN SPAIN.

Cannot Change Complexion of Senate, Largely Appointive.

MADRID, May 22.—Elections for Senators were held to-day, but there is no change in the Conservative character of the Senate, as forty-one of the members sit by virtue of their position as grandees of Spain, as Captain Generals, and as Bishops, and 121 are appointed for life.

The returns received late to-night show the election of Senators as follows:

William Phipps Blake.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., May 22.—A telegram to-day announces the death in Berkeley, Cal., last night of William Phipps Blake, formerly of this city. It was largely through his efforts that the United States was influenced to purchase Alaska. In the fifties he was employed by the Government to explore rail routes over the Rockies. He was one of the first United States explorers to cross to Japan and China, and his explorations of Alaska led to his recommendation to purchase that Territory. Prof. Blake was 84 years old, and had been for years Professor Emeritus of Geology at the University of Arizona, at Tucson.

Thomas W. Harrison.

TOPEKA, May 22.—Col. Thomas W. Harrison, former Mayor of Topeka, died at his home here last night of heart disease. During the civil war Col. Harrison was taken prisoner at Chickamauga and spent ten months in Southern prisons. On June 29, 1864, while being transferred to Andersonville Prison with several other prisoners, he cut a hole through the bottom of a freight car and escaped and joined Sherman's army.

J. He was a veteran of the civil war and was the first Erie Railroad conductor on the Newark Branch. He started an investigation of spiritualism which led up to his circus career. He was also an inventor. He was born in 1841 in Strasburg. He leaves two sons. He was known as Col. Selby.

CATCH 2 BURGLARS IN HOTEL CALUMET

RUN DOWN FIRE ESCAPE

Police Reserves Catch One After a Chase—The Other Found Hiding in a Coal Bin.

Thieves entered the Hotel Calumet in Fifty-seventh Street, near Broadway, late Saturday night, ransacked the apartment of Mrs. L. H. Robertson, and were going through that of William O. Inglis when their presence in the hotel was discovered by John Read, an elevator man. Both the thieves got away, but were caught later by the police of the West Forty-seventh Street Station House.

The police say the thieves are William Schuke, who gives his home as 448 West Fifty-third Street, and Joseph McDermott, who said he lived at 413 West Forty-eighth Street. It was a short time before midnight when Read, who was running the elevator, heard a noise in the Robertson apartment. Mrs. Robertson is out of the city, and he knew that the apartment should be vacant.

Read gave the alarm, and Policeman Walsh, who was on duty near by, was called in. With a night key Walsh and several of the hotel employes went into the apartment, but the thieves had gone. The drawers of the bureaus and dressers were open.

About this time Mr. Inglis came home and found his door locked from within. A noise as of persons moving about was heard in one of the rooms. The men inside heard the commotion on the outside and retreated. One of them was going down the fire escape when the police entered the room a few minutes later.

Walsh told the hotel clerk to send in a call for the reserves, and hurried out into the street to head off the thief that went down the fire escape. As Walsh ran out of the hotel he looked down Fifty-seventh Street toward Ninth Avenue and saw a man running. Walsh gave chase, and after a long run caught the man at Ninth Avenue and Fifty-sixth Street. This man proved to be Schuke. McDermott, the other prisoner, was found in the basement of the hotel, hiding in a coal bin, by Sergt. Rider of the West Forty-seventh Street Station House.

Among the articles that were taken from Mrs. Robertson's apartment were two gold watches, a pearl necklace, a diamond bracelet, six brooches, a silver necklace, and many stickpins and other jewelry. McDermott, the man who is believed to be the one who went into Mr Inglis's apartment, got away with about $40 worth of loot, including several medals Mr. Inglis had won in athletic contests, a watch, several razors, and two pairs of silver scissors. It was said that Schuke, who robbed the Robertson apartments, had at least $2,000 worth of jewelry belonging to Mrs. Robertson when caught. Mrs. Robertson is visiting in Annapolis, Md.

The prisoners were before Magistrate O'Connor, in the West Side Court, yesterday morning, and were held for the Grand Jury in $1,000 bail each.

Entries for Local Trotting Meeting.

The Secretary of the New York Trotting Club received quite a number of entries yesterday on the Speedway for the amateur and other stakes for the local Grand Circuit meeting. One of the first to hand him an entry with a check as payment was H. B. Clarke, who named his new trotter, J. Q., 2:15¼, in the $2,500 Speedway Stake. Nearly every trotter driven in local matinees that is eligible for this stake is named. The Secretary said yesterday that entries are coming quite satisfactorily and he hopes to get a good list. He is much pleased with the way local horsemen are interested in the coming big harness meeting.

ARMY MEN IN TURF TRIALS.

Commissioned Officers on Blood Horses Engaged in Hunt Races.

The most ambitious effort by the commissioned officers in the United States Army to establish in their service turf sport on the scale that is general in the British and other European armies will be the military races to be held by the Maryland United Hunts, with the approval of the Secretary of War and Federal officials, at the famous old Pimlico race track, at Baltimore, Md., on Saturday.

The great event will be the race for the Army Service Cup for officers. This is a continuance of the race which was originally run at Benning by the Washington Jockey Club. Of the fifteen horses entered eleven are thoroughbreds, which is quite an argument for the blood horse, as all these horses are in the service of the United States Army.

In the team race, which is a double event, run the first and the last day of the meeting, seven teams are entered—two from the Green Spring Valley Hunt, two from the Elkridge Hunt, two from the White Marsh Valley Hunt, and one from the Rose Tree Hunt.

This means in all fourteen entries. The first event is at two miles on the flat and the second at three miles over the steeplechase course, with post and rails added. The owners and riders of the horses in the event will be the guests of the owner of the winner at dinner at the Green Spring Valley Club the evening of the race, the dinner to be the gift of the association. ONE HAVANA RACER PUTS BACK TO PORT

Loantaka, Largest of the Five Starters, Out of the Race with Engine Troubles.

Special to The New York Times.

DELAWARE BREAKWATER, Del., May 22.—H. S. Peter's Loantaka, No. 4 of the five power boats which left Philadelphia yesterday in the 1,600-mile race to Havana, has returned here for repairs to her engine, and it is doubtful whether she will continue in the race.

Loantaka experienced some trouble last night with her power plant when off Bombay Hook, a few miles above the Breakwater, and stopped then for some time. Later on she got under way and managed to reach Over-Falls Light. At this point her engines again gave considerable bother and caused a little dismay among the crew, when it was discovered that the troubles were not going to be any too easily remedied.

It was finally decided to return to the Breakwater, and Loantaka was accordingly headed back to this point. The exact nature of her power plant troubles has not as yet been definitely ascertained, but Navigator Sheppard has signaled that it was extremely doubtful that Loantaka would continue in the contest.

Loantaka is the largest of the five craft to start, and is the scratch boat, conceding the other four more or less liberal time allowances. She is a big black vessel, and occasioned considerable gossip among the experts when she came up to the mark yesterday for the start of the race, the belief being rather freely expressed that she was better fitted for a day's cruising in pleasant waters than for hard weather and many a twenty-four-hours' strain.

She is 73 feet over all length, 14 feet beam, and 4 feet 6 inches draught, and is equipped with a seventy-five horse-power Reeves-Graef motor. She has a gas producer plant, which is considerable of an experiment.

Warren Sheppard is Loantaka's navigator, and others in the crew are J. W. Sheppard, C. S. Street, and Percy Cook. The engine room is in charge of Chris Miller, Thomas Teasdale, Hiram Weller, John Price, and Thomas T. Nelson, Jr.

Nothing has been heard from the other starters since they passed out from the Breakwater. The four craft should now be well along on their way to the Cuban capital, which they hope to reach not later than Friday of this week. By many this is considered rather optimistic, particularly if any kind of heavy weather is encountered.

Ilys, owned by Commodore J. G. N. Whitaker, is the smallest of the five boats that left Philadelphia. She won the Bermuda-New York race last year and is an able boat. She is fifty feet over-all length, 10 feet 6 inches beam, and draws 3 feet. She is equipped with a twenty-five horse power motor. B. D. Reese is her mate and navigator. C. L. Lagen, M. C. Belknap, and W. A. Winterer make up the rest of her crew, with Theodore Fessee, T. W. McKenzie, and one other professional in the engine room.

Caliph, owned by Vice Commodore M. E. Brigham of the Ventnor Yacht Club, is a brand-new yacht, launched but a few weeks ago. She is 60 feet over-all length, 11 feet 6 inches beam, and draws 3 feet 6 inches. She is equipped with a thirty-six horse power Hall engine. Capt. Loveland is her navigator, and she has in her crew Rufus Lennig, Richard Mitchell, Jr. Ward Brinton, Henry Bowes, Charles Curran, and Andrew L. Forbes. P. P. G. Hall is in charge of her engines.

Berneyo is another new craft. She is owned by S. W. Granberry of Newark. The only amateurs in her crew are Alexander McDonald and Frederick Williamson. She is 60 feet over-all length, 12 feet beam, and draws 4 feet, being equipped with a twenty-five horse power Standard motor.

Caroline is the only New York boat in the race. She was designed by Morris M. Whitaker last year, and is owned by M. Frank Dennis. She was prepared for the race at Nyack under the personal supervision of Mr. Whitaker. She is sixty-five feet over-all length, and is propelled by a twenty-five horse power Standard engine. She is the only one of the five starters to have her gasoline in seamless tanks, as provided by the rules, the other craft going to the dangerous lengths of carrying their fuel in cans on deck.

Loantaka, when the race started yesterday, had no fewer than 125 of these cans in plain sight. Smoking aboard her would have been a decided luxury, not untinged with excitement as to what was going to happen next. The fleet of five carried among them, it is believed, in the neighborhood of 6,200 gallons of gasoline, with Loantaka having 1,500, most of it on her decks.

MORE MOTOR CARS NEEDED.

Orphans' Auto Day Committee Appeal for Vehicles and Cash.

Orphans' Automobile Day is only two weeks away, and yet Chairman M. J. Budlong and Vice Chairman W. M. Haradon of the Car Soliciting Committee urgently appeal to the trade and the private owners for 100 more cars, so that all the institution children who will want to go can be taken this year. Richard T. Newton, Chairman of the Finance Committee, is also seeking for more cash which will go toward the general expense fund and the hiring of sight seeing cars. The total cash contributions to date aggregate $811.

The added list of entries includes four sight seeing cars donated by Edward Steindler, who thus more than duplicates his contribution of last year. Other recent individual offers of cars are from the Colt-Stratton Company, William B. Harris, Mrs. M. D. Steuer, Mrs. Edgar Selwyn, E. R. Thomas Motor Branch Company, Alfred Reeves, Louis C. Wagner, and H. M. Swetland.

The motor wagon division promises to be a great one. The new entries are from the Singer Sewing Machine Company, which has offered the use of one of its big green trucks; the Wisconsin Condensed Milk Company, its electric truck, and that of Dunlap & Co., a Locomobile truck and a Grout truck. All contributions of cars or cash should be sent to the headquarters of the Orphans' Automobile Day Association, 1,777 Broadway.

AUTO ENDURANCE RUN.

Only One Missing Car at Finish of Long Island Tour.

Twenty-nine of the thirty competing cars in the dual challenge motor endurance run of the Long Island Automobile and Crescent Athletic Clubs reported on time last night at the Crescent A. C. clubhouse at Bay Ridge. The run was a big success, and the entire distance of 140 miles was covered in excellent shape. On the first day's run to Riverhead, L. I., none of the contestants reported penalties, although several had gone wrong on road directions. The party, which included many non-contestants, to the number of 150, enjoyed a stag at Riverhead Saturday night, the talent having been engaged in New York.

The return journey began at Riverhead at 9 o'clock, and followed the north shore route. Smithtown was reached at 12:10 P. M., when the full list of thirty contestants was checked in. After luncheon the party left at 2 o'clock on the last stage of the journey. The first car reached the Crescent Athletic Club house at Bay Ridge at 5:50, and twenty minutes later twenty-nine cars had been checked. The missing car was one of the Crescent entries.

The party had a most enjoyable time, and the contest was good. The only real trouble was with tires. The committee is busy working on the tour and expects to finish its report early to-day.

Double Defeat for Johnny Hayes.

Special to The New York Times.

OTTAWA, Ontario, May 22.—Gustave Ljungstrom, the Swedish distance runner, defeated Johnny Hayes of Olympic Marathon fame in a five-mile race at Hull, Quebec, this afternoon by five yards. Ljungstrom's time was 28 minutes. Yesterday Ljungstrom defeated Hayes in a fifteen-mile event by 120 yards. The time was 1 hour 30 minutes 55 seconds. The track was soft from recent rains.

HARMSWORTH CUP RACE.

Motor Boat Club Is Fast Getting Affairs into Shape for Contest.

Following the changes in the officers of the Motor Boat Club of America and in the directorate, amounting almost to a reorganization, Campbell B. Casad has been elected Assistant Secretary, and a special committee has been appointed, consisting of Vice Commodore Frederick K. Burnham, Chairman; J. J. Hoadley, Henry R. Sutphen, James A. Blair, Jr., August Heckscher, and J. Stuart Blackton, to handle the preparations for the forthcoming race for the British International Cup.

At a meeting of this committee held Thursday evening the following invitation was addressed to all the motor boat clubs of the United States and to those yacht clubs which have power craft sections:

The Motor Boat Club of America invites you to co-operate in the defense of the British International Trophy for motor boats, (known as the Harmsworth Cup,) in the race to be held at Larchmont, N. Y., Aug. 20, 1910.

Each country participating in the contest may be represented by not more than three boats. Trial races for the purpose of selecting these boats will be held on the course of the Motor Boat Club of America, Huntington Bay, Long Island, on Aug. 15, 16, and 17, and the entry of the boats enrolled in your club is earnestly requested.

The Motor Boat Club of America is to handle all the details of the international race, and the elimination trials to select the defending trio will be under its management. A special Race Committee, consisting at present of C. P. Tower, Chairman; Vice Commodore Frederick K. Burnham, and Morris M. Whitaker, will report to the Ways and Means Committee of the club as to the boats qualified to participate in the defense of the cup, and this report will serve to govern the last-named committee in its selection of the American defenders.

Final arrangements for the race will be made by Commodore H. H. Melville and James A. Blair, Jr., both of whom sailed last week on the Mauretania for London, where they will complete, with the two challenging English clubs, the details of the race. They will have frequent consultations this week with officials of the British Motor Boat Club and the Motor Yacht Club of Great Britain, which challenged for the Harmsworth Cup, and it is expected that, on their return, which will be within the next ten days or two weeks, everything will have been made ready for the holding of the elimination trials, and the big contest itself.

INDIANAPOLIS RACE ENTRIES.

Forty-five Cars Are Entered for This Week's Speed Carnival.

INDIANAPOLIS, May 22.—Forty-five cars are entered for the races at the Indianapolis Motor Speedway, which will open on Friday of this week and will continue Saturday and the following Monday, Memorial Day.

The entries are expected to run over fifty before the lists close on Thursday night. Many of the cars will begin "tuning up" on the two and one-half mile course to-morrow.

From two to ten cars are entered in the numerous events open to subdivisions of Class B, stock chassis cars of from 160 to 750 cubic inches piston displacement, and most of the celebrated drivers will contest in these events, as well as in the five, ten, fifty, one hundred, and two hundred mile races.

The referee will be Louis Spears, President of the American Automobile Association, and the starter Fred Wagner of New York. C. H. Warner of Beloit, Wis., will operate the electrical timing machine.

Rainier

50 H. P. Enclosed touring car. Exclusive RAINIER design.

FOR THE FIRST TIME THIS SEASON, WE CAN OFFER IMMEDIATE DELIVERY ON SEVEN PASSENGER TOURING CARS OR CLOSE-COUPLED CARS.

The record of RAINIER cars in public competition speaks eloquently. The $10,000 City of Atlanta trophy was won by a RAINIER stock car, covering 200 miles in 173 minutes, averaging 70 miles per hour and establishing a new world's record. In endurance runs and reliability contests private owners have invariably been able to achieve perfect scores. In New York City, the most critical market in America, a list of over 800 RAINIER owners tells its own story.

A competitor recently said, "RAINIER may not always win, but, by George, he's always in at the finish."

That's due to endurance; the Atlanta performance proves the speed; the numerous perfect scores prove reliability; the 800 owners in New York testify to satisfaction.

As to beauty and luxury, the car must be seen to be appreciated. Call and look at the above new body design, which originated with us. Next year they'll all adopt it.

NEW ORLEANS MEET TO BE BIG AFFAIR

Secretary diBenedetto Tells What Crescent City Is Doing for A. A. U. Championships.

L. diBenedetto, Secretary Treasurer of the Southern Association of the Amateur Athletic Union, rises to a point of order in the face of some criticism which has been directed toward New Orleans because that city secured the National championship meet of the A. A. U. for this year.

In pointing out the advantages of New Orleans for an affair of this sort, Mr. diBenedetto lays stress on what the Southern Association has done for amateur athletics. He says:

New Orleans and the South, comprising the Southern Association, has done more in three years for amateur athletics than any other branch of its size. We have jumped from seven to twenty-five clubs, have held many meets, not one of which has been a failure. It was in recognition of this work that the Championship Committee of the A. A. U., which is composed almost entirely of eastern men, voted for New Orleans for this year's championship meet. The South has not even one representative on the committee that selected New Orleans, and the South appreciates the honor.

The Southern Association is to-day one of the strongest branches of the National body. It was published in several Eastern papers recently that New Orleans has no path for National championships. We want to deny this. We are at present working on a quarter-mile cinder track, which when completed will equal any in the country. It is being modeled after the grounds the Jamestown and St. Louis Expositions had. It will have 220 yards straight away for hurdles and dashes. The inner field will be laid out for football and basket ball and will contain several jumping and vaulting pits. Five thousand dollars has been set aside for this work. The field is the property of Tulane University. We expect to have the grounds laid out by Aug. 1 and will hold several meets on the track before Oct. 14.

The championship meet is being backed by the Municipal Government headed by our energetic Mayor, Martin Behrman, who has done more for these games than any other living man. The Progressive Union, a civic organization of 2,000 members, has substantially indorsed the project, also the Board of Trade, Stock, Cotton, Sugar, Rice, and Real Estate Exchanges.

In addition to the $5,000 expending on the grounds we are going to send to Secretary J. E. Sullivan of New York on Aug. 1 $3,000 to pay the expenses of the champion athletes of the country.

New Orleans is noted for its hospitality throughout the country, and when our friends from the east, north, or west gather in the Crescent City in October there will be a hot time in Dixie.

SPORTING BRIEFS OF INTEREST.

Entries for the Decoration Day meet of the Brooklyn Athletic Club close Wednesday with Dieges & Clust, 23 John Street, and with Gilbert McGowan, 132 South Eighth Street, Brooklyn. The events sanctioned by the A. A. U. follow: 100, 220, 440, 880-yard and three-mile handicaps, 75 and 600-yard novices.

The Manhattan College baseball team started on its New England trip yesterday. The local team has games arranged with Vermont, Millington University, Phillips Andover, Springfield, and Holy Cross. The Green and White boys have played a very fast game this season and Capt. Holahan took with him one of the hardest hitting teams the college has turned out. Hanley, a left-handed pitcher, has pitched two no-hit games this year. Archer and Neugent also went with the team. Neugent made a college record when he struck out twenty-one men and allowed only one hit and three passes in the Springfield T. S. game.

"Jimmy" Clabby, a welterweight of Milwaukee, who had the better of his contest bout with "Young" Loughrey of this city Saturday night at the National Athletic Club of Philadelphia. Clabby showed considerable skill with his left-hand jabbing. Loughrey put up a game fight and of the two was the stronger at the finish. Clabby, however, showed the better form throughout the six rounds.

At Van Cortlandt Park yesterday afternoon the Cameron soccer football team took the Hollywood Field Club into camp by the score of three goals to one. The game was fast, although the weather was not suitable for soccer, and a good crowd was out to witness the contest. To J. Issac, centre forward of the Camerons, belong the honors of the day. Playing with a bad ankle he scored all of the Camerons' goals.

New Haven Leads Conn. League.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., May 22.—Bill Carrick, the old New York pitcher, took charge of the New Havens when the season opened and his team has jumped from sixth place to the league lead, winning ten straight games. By beating the Hartfords, the league champions, to-day, the team bounced into first place. It took second place yesterday by beating the Bridgeports 3 to 2 in eleven innings.

No sudden start of the straw season can startle us.

Split straws, Sennits, Milans, Mackinaws, Leghorns, Bangkoks, Panamas; all waiting the crack of the pistol.

Twice as many English "Victor Jay" straws as we had last year—they proved so popular.

Woolen men say that black and white Bannockburn and pin check effects will be widely worn next Fall as "King's Mourning."

INTERCOLLEGIATES SPECULATION RIFE

High-Class Athletic Material Entered for the Big Meet in Philadelphia.

That this year's intercollegiate meet at Franklin Field, Philadelphia, Friday and Saturday, will be a battle between Yale, Harvard and Pennsylvania is the opinion of most of the experts. This meet promises to make a new standard for intercollegiate athletics in this country, and no other one in the world could duplicate the performances that are sure to be seen next Saturday afternoon on Franklin Field, if weather permits. England is everywhere regarded as next to the United States in track and field athletics, but if we were to take the records made at the last Oxford-Cambridge sports, we would find that, barring distance runs alone, our English cousins would stand but little chance of more than half a dozen points in a combination.

The Pennsylvania sprinters, Ramsdell, Hough and Minds, are most prominently mentioned for the sprints. At the relay races, the last Saturday in April, Ramsdell and Minds took first and second, defeating several men whom they will meet on Friday and Saturday of this week. The other men most prominently mentioned for the 100-yard are Cook, Jessup of Princeton, Craig of Michigan, Blass of Cornell, Sherman of Dartmouth, and Roberts of Amherst.

The "440" should be one of the greatest races of the day. Ridpath of Syracuse did 49 1-5 seconds, Ramsdell of Pennsylvania 49 2-5; Hough of Pennsylvania, 49 3-5; Keck of Michigan, 49 4-5; Smith of Pennsylvania, Bradford of Swarthmore, Leger of Michigan, McArthur of Cornell, Simons, de Selding, and Kelly of Harvard, Stanton of Virginia, Palmer of Haverford, and Sawyer of Princeton, all at 50 seconds, make up a list that has rarely, if ever, been duplicated in any one race. Ridpath is undoubtedly a very fine runner and his trainer is certain that if pushed he will beat the present record of 48 4-5 seconds. He is the favorite for the event. Should Murphy decide to run Ramsdell in the quarter, many will be quite willing to bet that even against such a flier as Ridpath, the Texas sprinter will win out, and also break the record if necessary.

It looks as if Princeton and Pennsylvania would get the majority of points in the half-mile. Whiteley of Princeton ran in 1:56 2-5 a week ago, with Frantz his team mate, only a yard back. The only man capable of coping with such opposition as this is Paull of Pennsylvania. But he will have to run the mile first, and can hardly be expected to beat Whiteley after the effort necessary in the longer contest. But he will be right there at the finish, and as Pennsylvania has Levering, Church, Foster, and Masters, all of whom have done better than 2 minutes, the law of chance rather favors Penn's getting her share of the points. But there are several other runners of equal calibre with the above Penn men, namely, Kirjassoff of Yale, Bradford of Swarthmore, Rock of Michigan, Riley of Harvard, Baxter of Dartmouth, and Putnam and Ebersole of Cornell. These men have also run better than 2 minutes, and any one of them may get into the points.

It is said that sure things always go wrong at the intercollegiate championships, but unless "Billy" Paull gets sick or disabled, he should win the mile. No one would be surprised to see him beat the long-standing amateur record of 4:15 3-5, held by Tommy Conneff. The only man that, according to time, has a chance of pushing Paull is Coldbath of Bowdoin. He is credited with 4:21, made in the Maine Intercollegiates. He will probably not get worse than second, but he will be closely pushed by Bodley and Baker and Boyle of Pennsylvania, anyway. Bogert and Degollyer of Cornell, Algire of Syracuse, Jacques of Harvard, Towar and May of Michigan, Miles of Yale, have all beaten 4:30 this season, and all are out for the places.

The two miles has a very Cornell appearance. Moakley has said that he would probably concentrate on the two miles, and that he hoped to score every point in the race. This may seem at first sight like boasting on the part of the Cornell coach, but it is not. It is his judgment that he can make the best use of his distance men by running them in the two miles, and a careful survey of the situation shows that he is right. Berna recently made a new American record for the distance. Taylor is the present intercollegiate champion and record holder. Both of these men are fine distance runners. In addition, Cornell has Hunger and Young, both of whom are but little slower than Taylor and Berna. Therefore it will not surprise any of the experts to see Cornell take every point in this race. Indeed, there are only two or three men fast enough to push the Cornell men. Jacques of Harvard, who was second in this event last year, is said to be going into the mile this year, and this leaves only Baker of Pennsylvania, Watts of Syracuse, and May of Yale that can do better than 9:40. If they can run this fast, while all the Cornell men can do 9:30 or better.

The high sticks look like a hard battle between Dwight of Princeton and Chisholm of Yale, with Pindar of Syracuse, Stibolt of Cornell, Hogden and Hammond of Michigan, Lewis of Dartmouth, and King of Yale fighting for the places. Every one of last year's point winners is out of college, so that this is a very open event. Hogden may be the surprise of the meet. He ran in this event some five years ago in very fast time. He then left college, and has had a hard time getting back into form. Despite a bad start last Saturday, he was second to Pindar in 0:15 3-5, and but six inches back. King of Yale is another hurdler that may surprise the talent.

The low hurdles will be a very classy event. Gardner of Harvard is the favorite. The outcome of this event will depend greatly on whether Stanton of Virginia and Craig of Michigan elect to run in it. Chisholm and King of Yale, Stibolt of Cornell, and Dwight of Princeton are the only other men likely to bother the above.

The field events will in general have a Yale hue. Unless the other colleges produce several dark horses, it is quite possible that Yale will get sufficient points in the field contests to win the meet for them. The pole vault seems to be a sure thing for Yale, as Nelson has vaulted consistently over 12 feet every time he has competed this year. His mate, Gardner, has twice vaulted 12 feet and once 12 feet 4 inches. Both of these men will have to work hard, however, for their points, as Heldman of Dartmouth, Parker of Pennsylvania, Barr of Harvard, Moore of Princeton, and D'Autremont of Cornell have done 12 feet or better, while Hess and Blakeley of Pennsylvania, Babcock of Columbia, Phipps of Swarthmore, Freeney of Michigan, and Lawrence of Harvard have all done 11 feet 6 inches or better.

The latest advices from Michigan are to the effect that their great shot-putter, Horner, will confine himself to the shot at the intercollegiates, and if he does he will be pretty sure to win. Little of Harvard, Waite of Syracuse, and Kilpatrick of Yale look like the other three place men. Goddard of Harvard, Pike of Pennsylvania, and Coy of Yale are about the only other men that have done over 41 feet this year.

The hammer looks like an easy thing for Cooney, the giant Yale football player. He should come near to making a new record. The places will lie between Speers of Princeton, Andrus, Peabody, and Goebel of Yale, and Burdick of Pennsylvania.

Roberts of Amherst, with 23 feet 2½ inches as his best jump, and Little of Harvard, with 22 feet 8 inches to his credit, will probably finish in that order, as both are rather consistent. The Harvard Captain may do a little better on Saturday, as he is a great man in a meet. Kilpatrick of Yale, Babcock of Columbia, Sherman and Thomas of Dartmouth, McMartin of Amherst, Lapham of Michigan, and Nixon and Ford of Cornell have all done better than 21 feet.

On present high-jump form Burdick of Pennsylvania, with a jump of 6 feet 2½ inches; Palmer of Dartmouth, with 6 feet 1½ inches as his best performance, and Lawrence of Harvard, with a record of 6 feet ¼ inch, look like the men that will finish first, second, and third. For the other position, there are many good men. Canfield of Yale, if he recovers his form, is likely to score, as he has a record of 6 feet 1 inch, though he has not shown this form so far this season. Lane and Farrier of Pennsylvania have both done 5 feet 11¼ inches, but both are erratic.

GLENCOE A. A. LEADS IN RUN.

Big Field Starts in Kings County A. A. Road Race.

The Glencoe A. C. won the team prize in the five-mile handicap cross-country run yesterday of the Kings County Athletic Association. The course was over the hill and dale country of East New York, and eighty-two of a field of eighty-eight starters finished.

J. Edgerton of the United A. A., one of the limit men, led the pack for the entire distance. He was forced all the way, and only won by a small margin. The first five men to finish were well bunched. H. Jameson of the Glencoe A. C., who captured the fast time prize, did not show with the leaders, although he covered the course in the quickest time. Jameson started on the 1:15 mark, his actual time being 28 minutes.

Five novice prizes were captured by Levy, Allen, Freeman, Scapolo, and Dempsey, respectively. The order of finish:

On and Off the Links.

The Nominating Committee of the Women's Eastern Golf Association has presented its ticket for election at the annual meeting to be held at the Huntingdon Valley Country Club on June 9. Mrs. E. F. Sanford of the Englewood Golf Club again appears as the nominee for President, an office she has acceptably filled since this organization was formed five years ago. The ticket is as follows:

President, Mrs. E. F. Sanford; Vice President, Miss Maud K. Wetmore; Secretary, Miss L. A. Wells, and Treasurer, Miss Florence McNeely. The above officers and Mrs. Caleb F. Fox, Mrs. R. H. Barlow, Mrs. William H. Hiles, Mrs. E. C. Wheeler, Jr., Miss Frances C. Griscom, Miss G. M. Bishop, and Miss H. S. Curtis constitute the Board of Governors.

According to the programme issued by the Apawamis Club its invitation tournament, June 23, 24, and 25, will begin with a thirty-six hole medal play testing round. The golfers will qualify in three sixteens, and there will be a beaten eight division in the first set. All match rounds will consist of eighteen holes, save the final, which will extend over the double route.

H. Chandler Egan has received the distinction of heading the handicap list of the Western Golf Association this year. The former National champion is the only player rated at scratch. E. M. Byers of Allegheny, W. C. Fownes of Oakmont, D. E. Sawyer of Wheaton, and Warren K. Wood of Homewood are all rated at one stroke along with Robert Gardner, the present National champion, Charles W. Evans, Jr., and Mason Phelps. Members of fifteen clubs are assigned arbitrary handicaps by the committee, the ratings of last year being used as the basis. Four clubs were left out as the committee could get no information about their members.

At a recent meeting of the Board of Governors the name of the Englewood Golf Club was changed to the Englewood Country Club. A new class of membership has also been established. Members of this class are to be known as "house members," and shall have the privileges of the club except that of using the links. The contract for the purchase of the property has been executed and the purchase plan will finally be consummated by the end of the month.

The newspaper golfers will begin their second tournament of the season at Fox Hills to-day. Conditions call for an eighteen-hole qualifying round, contestants to qualify for match play, which will be declared later on. The time and course for these matches will be determined by the players. In the previous tournament at Van Cortlandt Park the scribes attempted nothing more than an eighteen-hole medal play handicap.

JEFF AND JOHNSON HAVE BUSY SUNDAY

Champion Has Taken Off Over Nine Pounds Since Starting Training.

Special to The New York Times.

SAN FRANCISCO, May 22.—Jack Johnson's second Sunday in training was divided between play and work. The play was in the forenoon, when he posed for the moving picture men and gave them some realistic scenes of a heavyweight champion sawing and chopping wood, riding on horseback and in an automobile, and other stunts. In the afternoon he switched over to work, and for the one hour he spent in the gymnasium there was no let up. It was by far the best work Johnson has had, and whether it was that Cotton and Cutler were in better condition for the eight strenuous rounds, or Johnson was feeling right, he put far more speed and dash into his boxing than he displayed last Wednesday afternoon.

"How did I work?" he anxiously inquired as he was getting his rubdown. "Fast? Well, I'm glad to hear you say that. You know, you people on the outside of the ring are in a better position to tell what a fellow is doing. Sometimes a boxer fools himself."

Another thing that the boxing showed the critics who were present was that Johnson is working himself into good condition. He weighed in as soon as he could strip off his togs, and the scales trembled at 218½ pounds. A week ago Johnson's weight on the same scales was 228¾ pounds, so it is evident the road work has had good effect.

"I will fight at 208 pounds," remarked Johnson, as he stepped off the scales. "When I came here I weighed 228 pounds, so you can see I am taking it off gradually. When I fought Ketchel I weighed about 193 pounds, but I will be heavier on the Fourth of July, and I figure it will be just right for my condition."

Until the first of June Johnson will do practically little boxing, but after that he declares he will hit it up at a good clip.

"Of course I will increase my work," he explained to-day, "and this week will probably box three times. But I have figured out that I would be foolish to work too hard now. I will be in the gymnasium every afternoon for a little shadow boxing, and will continue the road work, which is the best thing in the world and takes off weight without weakening a man."

Special to The New York Times.

BEN LOMOND, Cal., May 22.—Jeffries gave the best boxing exhibition to-day since he put on the gloves during the present training. Among the spectators were fifty members of the Olympic Club, Chief of Police Martin, and several prominent sporting men from San Francisco. Jeff boxed three rounds each with Choynski, Armstrong, and his brother Jack.

Jeffries injected quite a lot of ginger into his boxing and pleased the athletes who watched him critically.

Chief Martin is disgusted over the Papke-Thompson fiasco, and said to-day he would personally supervise future boxing contests in San Francisco. If a fight looks peculiar, he declared, he would stop it at once, no matter what the referee said, and no matter who the fighters were. The police official was enthusiastic over Jeffries's fine condition.

Jack Gleason visited the Jeffries camp to-day. Gleason told some amusing stories of freak offers he and R

THE FINANCIAL SITUATION.

Last week's sessions of the Stock Exchange were, as a rule, the most uninteresting in point of activity and price fluctuations witnessed in many months. The interruption to business in London occasioned by the usual holidays of the season and by the closing of all markets in connection with the funeral ceremonies led to a very much diminished foreign participation in our own market, which was further handicapped by the half holiday of Friday and the prospect of a reduction in working time to five days this week through the closing of the Stock Exchange on Saturday for a three-day recess. These various matters were what might be called the physicial influences working to restrict trading and to restrain the movement of prices. There were other factors at work, however, of more lasting importance, although of a less tangible character, and these found expression in the relative firmness of securities throughout a prolonged period of almost unexampled neglect for the season of the year. The simulated or real interest of Wall Street in such matters as the Railroad bill now before Congress; the question of the success or failure of the efforts of the railroads generally to increase transportation charges; the Hocking Valley receivership, and in various rumors regarding the intention of the Canadian Pacific to enter New York State and New York City through the acquisition of the Ontario & Western, or of the Reading to cut a great melon, may in the main be set down to the opportunity afforded imagination for full play in the absence of genuine news and in the present market stagnation. The Railroad bill in the only form in which it is possible to pass it is as of little permanent value to the public as to the railroads, and unless this is accomplished through some strained interpretation of its clauses can prove of little benefit or harm. In spite of any opposition that may be brought to bear it is altogether probable that the Inter-State Commerce Commission will recognize the justice of the railroads' demands for greater compensation for carrying goods and passengers, and that these will be recognized to such an extent at least as to provide an offset for a part of the increased cost put upon the roads by wage advances and the elevation of the prices of all materials which enter into the building and operating of railways.

No least part of the strength manifested by securities during the week under the test of dullness and no fraction of the very marked improvement of sentiment in financial circles during the same period can properly be ascribed to discussion or changes in these various superficial matters. The most gratifying and the most important development of the week was the certain, if in some cases gradual, lowering of commodities prices everywhere. So far as the fall in cotton and the heaviness in wheat were concerned the movements were allowing for all speculative influences, mainly due to the remarkably favorable reports from both cotton and grain territories. As if to offset the unseasonable storms and frosts of April weather conditions last week over all the great agricultural regions may be described as ideal. In Kansas and the Spring wheat States much-needed rains were followed by warm, forcing days, which, in Kansas particularly, went far to offset the unpromising conditions of the forepart of the season. In the cotton belt a similar desirable sequence of rain and warmth occurred, and under the circumstances it was not surprising that speculative pools in cotton and wheat displayed considerable uneasiness regarding their positions and even went so far as to liquidate portions of their lines. The quotation fixed for December wheat in Chicago on Thursday was a trifle under 99 cents a bushel, as against $1.05 last year, and it is not impossible that we have here a trustworthy index to new crop prices. September, July, and May wheat are all below last year's levels, and if, as is believed in many quarters of the grain trade, this fact indicates a growing appreciation on the part of speculative cliques that there are still large supplies of the old crop and an excellent prospect for heavier yields of the new we may confidently look for substantial exports in the near future, and through this some readjustment of the unfavorable foreign trade position. Such hopes are not badly grounded, as was proved by the engagements of space on outgoing steamships on Saturday for about 80,000 bales of cotton, following the week's big breaks in that commodity, as against total exports of only a trifle over 13,000 bales in the preceding week.

For the first time in a number of weeks the leading journals of the iron and steel trades in their critical reviews of conditions found it possible on Wednesday last to report the presence of a much better feeling in these lines. One journal, apparently impressed by the earlier stories of curtailment in pig iron production, published the results of a careful investigation which proved that in spite of the great amount of talk created the furnaces closed effected a reduction of not more than 10 per cent. in output, with a prospect of an additional 2 per cent. only when other furnaces scheduled to go out shut down. There is in this showing a truth which deserves to be brought out on account of its application to general business in this country. We have become so accustomed to making records, or at least to straining for records in production, and even in consumption, that the manufacturer or merchant who fails to overtop his output or his sales of, say, the preceding six months or year feels that his business is going to pieces, even if the difference between the periods compared by him is not more than 10 or 15 per cent. In the steel trade, for example, 1906 and 1907 have been selected as the standards of activity, and comparison is now being made with the business of those periods. Naturally the comparison is unfavorable to the present, but sight is altogether lost of the fact that, compared with normal years, the present season in almost all lines of business must be adjudged satisfactory. This does not mean, of course, that there is no irregularity in trade, for there is. On the whole, however, general business is still large as the volume of bank exchanges and of railroad earnings amply proves. The problems this great body of business has brought with it are also still present; railroad and industrial demands for money for extensions and improvements and the Western speculation in farm lands are embarrassing, while extravagance, private and corporate, which is also one of the inevitable sequences of active trade, continues. This most sooner or later be checked through the traditional waning of prosperity. Then our swollen imports will be reduced to figures which will, with a return to normal in exports, readjust foreign trade conditions.

As a direct sequence of the dull stock markets of the week, call money rates declined to 2 per cent. near the week's end, while time money also displayed easier tendencies. The banks continued to gain from the interior and reversed earlier movements with the Government by netting a substantial balance on transactions with the Sub-Treasury, both of which developments promoted accumulation of resources. Foreign exchange rates reflected easier conditions here by advancing late in the week, although this market is now so far from the gold export point, as well as the import point, as to make its fluctuations, except to those directly concerned, of restricted interest. The Bank of England made another strong weekly statement, reporting a reserve percentage above anything attained by it at this season since 1896. Financial England, as a whole, seems to have recovered from the fears generated a fortnight ago by the death of King Edward.

THE MARKETS OF EUROPE.

REVIVAL AT HAND IN LONDON.

Renewed Activity and Reduction in Bank Rate Confidently Expected.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, May 22.—A renewal of activity in the stock market is confidently expected next week. The financial barometer seems to be set fair, and underwriters who this week found themselves left with four-fifths of the new Canadian loan and part of the Japanese conversion loan regard their burden lightly, and as certain to be lifted from their shoulders now that the public is no longer preoccupied by the royal obsequies.

A reduction in the Bank of England rate may be made next Thursday. Lombard Street is experiencing an acute stringency owing to the belated collection of taxes, but foreign exchanges are in favor of London. The Bank of England has been able to secure gold in the open market and exports of the metal to other countries have been unimportant, so that a reduction in the official rate of discount, even if not declared this week, cannot be long delayed.

It is reported here that negotiations for the purchase of $1,000,000 of the short time notes of the Oklahoma City Railway Company have been completed.

PARIS BOURSE VERY DULL.

Idle Money Still Abundant and Firmness Prevails in Securities.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, May 22.—The Bourse was exceedingly dull during the week and the volume of transactions was very much reduced. The closing of the London Stock Exchange for three successive days, and again on Friday, contributed largely to these conditions.

Idle money was still abundant and there was firmness in every class of securities, but only the metal and mining stocks showed notable activity. Rio Tinto was not much steadier than in the previous week and closed at 1,844, or 7 points lower than the final price of Friday and 2 points lower than the Saturday before.

ACTIVITY PREVAILS IN BERLIN.

Heavy Realization in Some Shares and Purchases of Canadians.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, May 22.—Activity, particularly in domestic steels and irons, was the feature on the Boerse last week. Better news from the United States was again the cause.

The general speculation that ensued resulted in interest being taken in a number of hitherto neglected quarters and the abandonment of certain issues latterly popular. In these, notably banks and electrics, heavy realizations took place.

American rails were particularly active, and Canadians were bought in enormous quantities.

A High Grade Railroad Bond Yielding 5.30%

At this time when many investors, owing to the increased cost of living, are disposing of their high grade bonds and re-investing in bonds to yield from 5% to 6%, too great care cannot be given to the stability and strength of the security purchased.

We are offering to investors a first refunding mortgage 6% gold bond, maturing in 28 years, secured by a mortgage upon an essential part of the main line of one of our largest transcontinental systems, at a rate limited to $30,000 a mile, including prior liens, to yield 5.30%.

CONDITIONS IN THE STEEL BUSINESS

Several Healthy Reasons for Lowering the Price of Pig Iron.

WHAT CURTAILMENT WILL DO

It Is Believed That the Low Point in the Slump in Crude Iron Was Reached Last Week.

Special to The New York Times.

PITTSBURG, May 22.—Pittsburg's market on steel-making irons has been in eruption for four days. When the latter half of the week's fast buying closed yesterday, definite price levels were revealed in Bessemer and basic irons for the first time in a month. Bessemer can be had for any delivery this year at $16, valleys, or $16.90, Pittsburg. Basic iron for delivery through the third quarter s offered at $15, valley furnace, though basic tonnages that are pressing the market can probably be obtained in small blocks, for prompt delivery, at a shade less. Some of this resale basic iron sold during the week at $14.85 and $14.90, on two sales of small lots.

The new price of Bessemer established at the close of the week's trading is an even $3 below the high point on Bessemer sustained in this market from the middle of October to the close of last January. It is a drop of 50 cents below the last sale by a producing interest, made two weeks ago.

The first active selling of the week was provcked by the jockeying of the market by a large crucible steel concern which is an extensive buyer of Bessemer billets and whose billet contracts are on a sliding scale governed by the monthly averages on Bessemer iron sales. A considerable tonnage of Bessemer iron is supposed to have been taken up by this interest at $16.25, valleys and thereabouts, the purpose being to influence the price of Bessemer billets. Immediately after two large steel companies bought up to 10,000 tons, obtaining most of it at $16, valleys. It is understood the big corporation after a survey of conditions persuaded the principal merchant producers of Bessemer iron in this territory to put down the price to the sixteen-dollar basis, which is generally believed to be the bottom of the four months' decline just ended.

One sale of 5,000 tons of basic iron was made at the close of the week to the Follansbee Tin Plate interests, from a nearby furnace, at $15.10, furnace. The freight rate on this iron to buyer's works is 60 cents, so that the iron stood the buyer $15.70, delivered. The rate from the furnace in question into Pittsburg is 55 cents.

Steel Foundries Company closed with a Valley producer for 5,000 tons of basic, at $15 Valleys, or $15.90 Pittsburg, and then took some additional tonnage from speculators at a shade less than that figure. All this basic iron ih for June-October delivery.

Small lots of resale basic, 200 to 400 tons, were disposed of by brokers at $14.85 and $14 90 Valleys.

Though the steel-making grades of iron occupied the attention of the market almost to the exclusion of other business during the week, there was a strong undercurrent of buying of foundry iron, two blocks of 1,000 tons or over passing at $15.25, Valleys, for No. 2, at which price the market seems pegged. A sale of 1,000 tons of No. 2 to an Erie, Penn., consumer for third quarter was closed by a Cleveland furnace interest, the price being secret.

Demand for malleable was quiet, but quotations were firm at $15.25 Valleys. Some producers refused offers of $14.75, Valleys, for forge iron, and buyers were unwilling to pay $15, considering the state of the market on the other grades. There is no accumulation of forge iron in this district, however, and little chance of any marked concessions in price.

No further curtailment of furnace output is looked for in this district. Even though the buying movement now indicated should not materialize, the producing interests have the local situation well in hand, and thirty days more of curtailed consumption will see present stocks even in the steel making grades pretty well worked off. The contingency is always present, however, that a sudden demand may encourage the smaller merchant operators, some of whom have merely banked their furnaces rather than blow them out, to put their plants in operation again, in which case the situation would hold out little hope for any recovery in price. All the larger producers are not selling iron at the new low prices. One of the principal makers in the Valleys territory declines absolutely to negotiate any basic iron under $15.50, and says he will rather pile his iron than sacrifice the product. One or two makers of foundry iron as well have refused to reduce their quotations to the $15.25 level.

The crude steel market has steadied somewhat, with the exhaustion of stocks of resale Bessemer billets and sheet and tin bars. Producers are holding firm to $26.50, mill, for Bessemer billets; $27.50 for open hearth, and $27.50 to $28.50 for sheet and tin bars. No surplus can be detected, though producers admit that some users of billets overspecified their needs for the first quarter and the early weeks of the present quarter.

A logical development of the past week in the local rolling mill situation has been the action of the Carnegie Steel Company and the Jones & Laughlin Steel Company in changing a part of their light structural mills to the rolling of merchant bars. This is the direct result of the dullness in the structural market and the corresponding shortage in capacity on merchant steel. The remodeled mills will begin rolling merchant bars to-morrow at both plants. The threatened famine in merchant bars and the genuine shortage in some lines of reinforcing bars for concrete construction has not changed in the past week. Mills could contract into the fourth quarter of the year, but do not care to at present prices. On the other hand, the structural situation has not improved perceptibly. There is still much talk of large contracts, both in railroad work and in urban construction, but they have not materialized. Some of the independent fabricating companies admit they have been slashing prices in an effort to capture attractive business.

The close of the week, however, saw a general shaping up in other finished product lines. A better demand for sheets and merchant pipe developed; the plate mills are now considered as taken care of till Fall with the pending dock, marine, shipbuilding, conduit, and steel car contracts. The only lines manifest[illegible]

National Tube Company during the past ten days include forty miles of 20-inch and forty miles of 16 and 10 inch line pipe for gas extensions around Pittsburg, twenty miles of 10-inch pipe to the Ohio Fuel Supply Company for an extension in that State, thirty miles of large pipe for Pacific Coast extensions, and a New England order aggregating about 12,000 tons of large size line pipe. The National Tube Company also has sold 3,000 tons of oil-well casing for shipment to California. The inquiries of the Arkansas Natural Gas Company for 200 miles of large size, the Texas Oil Corporation for 90 miles, and the Everett interests of St. Louis for 60 miles have not yet been closed.

On the smaller sizes of merchant pipe there is some increase in current business, and the mills are running more easily. The result is better quotations throughout the pipe trade. The wire-producing interests, on the other hand, are extending the old price of $1.80 on wire nails, which officially expired last February, indefinitely, and are taking third-quarter business on that basis. Shading of corrugated sheets has moderated somewhat with the better demand in the sheet mills, but price levels are still off somewhat on black sheets.

Spot coke touched a new low mark during the week, with a sale of a substantial tonnage for prompt delivery at $1.60, Connellsville. One contract for 9,000 tons monthly over the second half was closed at $1.80, Connellsville, and another for 5,000 tons monthly over second half at $1.75, Connellsville. The Connellsville operators, mightily discouraged, have been holding meetings daily at Uniontown, and have taken up the selling agency plan again as the most likely to give relief. The real relief, which can only come from further restriction of output, they have not yet happened on. Production in the Connellsville region for the week ended May 14 totaled 396,777 tons, as against 394,414 tons the week preceding. Of the production for the week of May 14, 235,597 tons were for merchant ovens for the open market, as against 232,904 tons for the open market the week preceding.

The Weekly Financial Review.

Of substantial interest to all who own stock in railroads is the bill now being hammered into shape at Washington, known as the "Taft Bill" for the regulation of the carriers. In to-day's NEW YORK TIMES WEEKLY FINANCIAL REVIEW a study of the bill, as passed by the House and of the draft as it has appeared in the Senate, has been made by an expert on railroad affairs. The article he has prepared gives a digest of the House bill, the changes already made in it by the Senate, and, in plain words, the provisions of amendments in the bill for the movement of which Senators have given formal notice, and which are printed with the bill as it now lies on the desks of the members of Congress. This is as painstaking and clear a digest of the bill as has been made.

In anticipation of the probable formal announcement of the placing of St. Paul's bonds in Europe, an article on St. Paul's finances and physical condition is printed in THE REVIEW. The alleged overextension of Western banks in real estate loans is discussed, with the figures, in another article.

CORDAGE BONDS PROTECTED.

Receivership Petitioners Think Judge Hazel's Decision Makes Them Safe.

The second mortgage bondholders of the Standard Cordage Company, who were the petitioning creditors in the bankruptcy proceedings against that company, said yesterday, through their counsel, Wollman & Wollman, that the decision of Judge Hazel, rendered on Saturday, although setting aside the previous appointment by Judge Holt of Lindsay Russell as temporary receiver of the company, nevertheless gave the bondholders practically all the protection they would have obtained through a receivership.

Judge Hazel's decision enjoins the company from making any further payment on account of interest or principal of the company's bonds. The Directors of the company are allowed to dispose of the company's merchandise stock, but they cannot under this injunction apply the proceeds to any payment on the bonds of the company.

Representatives of the second mortgage bondholders said that it was difficult to understand the contention in Judge Hazel's decision that the bondholders and petitioning creditors had acquiesced tacitly at least in the action of the Directors of which they complained in their petition in bankruptcy against the company.

They said that minority security holders were hardly in a position to be said to have acquiesced in what the majority may have done. Although Judge Hazel held that the payment of interest on the first mortgage bonds of the company was not a preferential payment in the sense of the bankruptcy law, the complaining bondholders hold that in effect this was a preferential payment for the reason that the position of the company on the Directors' own showing did not justify the payment of any interest on the company's bonds.

A member of the law firm of Wollman & Wollman, counsel for the complaining bondholders, said regarding the decision:

"The result of Judge Hazel's decision is that the jurisdiction of the Bankruptcy Court is sustained. The Directors, rather than a receiver, will sell the remaining cordage on hand, but they must hold the money subject to the orders of the Bankruptcy Court."

Railroad Ticket Printing Machine.

The Great Central Railway Company of England expects to test a ticket-printing machine. The machine is small and unpretentious, 3½ feet long by 2 feet broad and 4 feet high. An indicator which carries the name of every station upon the system, arranged in alphabetical order, is touched, the ticket agent slips a blank into a slot in the printing carriage, a small handle is turned, and a completely printed ticket drops out ready for use. At the same time a record of the sale and all information required for bookkeeping is duplicated on a continuous strip of paper. When the ticket agent goes off duty he simply totals the continuous strip and counts the cash. The machine can print 3,000 different tickets, and it is claimed that one man can issue 500 an hour. Great stress is laid on the value of the machine in dispensing with classifying and auditing tickets and sales. In a busy station where a dozen ticket clerks are employed, it is said that most of their time is spent in bookkeeping and elaborate checking, necessary under the present system.

BRITISH SUPPLY NEW CAPITAL

Investments the World Over for Part of 1910 Far Advanced.

The Statist of London, in its issue of May 7, publishes an estimate of the amount of capital which British investors have supplied to the world in the first third of the present year. The figures show that Great Britain is increasing its investments over the world, and, in the absence of the figures for France and Germany to make direct comparisons, probably adding to its hold upon the world's banking.

The Statist estimates the amount of new capital subscribed by British investors in 1907 at $633,000,000, in 1908 at $1,002,000,000, and in 1909 at about $1,042,000,000. It has now estimated the investments made from Jan. 1 to May 1 of 1910 at $575,000,000, which, if typical of the whole year, will bring 1910's total up to $1,725,000,000.

Of the $575,000,000, some $125,000,000 has been invested in Government bonds, $35,000,000 in municipals, $180,000,000 in railways, $50,000,000 in industrial concerns, $30,000,000 in mines, and $70,000,000, or 12 per cent. of the four months' entire total of investment subscriptions have gone into rubber shares, while $35,000,000 have gone into oil stocks, which are now almost as popular in England as "rubbers." Thus nearly a fifth of British investments so far in the year have been in these two highly speculative specialities.

Great Britain has invested $105,000,000 in the United States, while only $92,000,000 has been invested at home. There has been $75,000,000 invested in Canada. Of the investments in the United States, $65,000,000 were in railroads.

The following article from a Hull newspaper shows how high prices are endangering the market for American meats in England:

It seems very probable that the shortage of American hams and bacon from which the American market is now suffering will, in the future, be met by supplies from other quarters. The high prices sought by the packers and the consequent limited demand by the English consumer has, of course, seriously affected the provision trade. Already merchants are turning hopefully to such countries as Siberia and Northern Russia. These countries have almost limitless tracts of territory and every facility for hog producing, and, only wanting good, cheap, and quick transit, are doing their best to jump into the breech; and, in the opinion of at least one leading authority, they will soon assume the position of a highly important factor in the food supply of the British Islands—a suggestion, by the way, which is not without peculiar interest to Hull as an importing centre. The consignments from these countries and their high quality show that they have come to stay. The transit question is, however, for the present a serious one, as freights from some points in Russia reach nearly a sovereign ($4.8665) per hundredweight. As the trade increases this may be overcome, and freights better accommodate themselves. Both French and Chinese pork we have had already in Hull. Of the former we are to expect more. As to the Chinese article it seems that prejudice is against it, and that it must therefore find a market elsewhere.

THE STATE OF TRADE.

The reports made to the commercial agencies by correspondents in cities all over the country as to the state of trade showed continued depression in the East, a somewhat better feeling at the South, and very little change in the West. In some well-informed quarters there is a very cheerful feeling. It is said that there are signs of a turn in the current of mercantile opinion, that the crop news is excellent, and that the incubus of price-blockades will be lifted somewhat. But there are others who believe that trade has not passed beyond the critical stage, and that there will be no uprush to booming business; only a steady and moderate growth in the volume of trade.

Dun's Review says:

The trade movement, taking the country as a whole, continues large. Measured by bank clearings it is, for the current week, 27 per cent. heavier than in 1909, and 32.6 per cent. heavier than in 1908, outside New York, in which city speculative depression prevails. Measured by railroad earnings, the movement in the first week of May was 11.5 per cent. greater than last year. Moreover, the business situation displays signs of improvement. [illegible] better weather for the growing crops, and this is an important gain.

EVENTS AT THE SAVOY WHICH HAVE MARKED THE PROGRESS OF AVIATION.

M. Blériot Entertained at Luncheon by Lord Northcliffe at the Savoy in Celebration of His Famous Flight Across the English Channel in July, 1909.

Louis Paulhan, Victor

When Paulhan, like some modern Eri King, strode
His rushing steed through cold grey skies sad dim
And swept triumphant o'er that airy road,
All England in amaze looked up to him,
Nor in our calmer moments shall there fade
The glory of the splendid charge he made!

We greet him master of the fickle air,
King of the breezes wheresoe'er they blow,
Who hath done "all that mortal man may dare,"
To whom, as incense rising from below,
Goes up the chorus of our glad acclaim
While all the world re-echoes with his name!

But four brief years ago the timid feared
That such a prize as this no man might win,
Yet obstacles exist but to be cleared;
And now the loud exhaust, with cheerful din,
Laughs at all peril, thundering a strong
Deep obbligato to the helmsman's song.

Columbus of the trackless realms of sky,
Victor in this most strange, most glorious race,
Paulhan, thy loftiest flight was not so high
As thine immortal fame's abiding place,
And with a mother's pride our England hears

M. PAULHAN FETED AT THE SAVOY HOTEL ON SATURDAY, APRIL 30th, 1910.

M. Paulhan was crowned on Saturday with the golden laurels of his victory—the £10,000 offered by The Daily Mail for the flight between London and Manchester—at a luncheon given by The Daily Mail at THE SAVOY HOTEL. This historic ceremony was graced by the presence of representative men, and gained further distinction from the fact that M. Paulhan received the prize at the hands of the French Ambassador, M. Cambon.—From The Daily Mail, London, May 2d, 1910.

SAY EXPRESS RATES ARE DISCRIMINATORY

Merchants' Association Leads Appeal to Interstate Commerce Board for Lower Express Rates.

COUNTRY WIDE MOVEMENT

Support of All Commercial Bodies Is Being Sought in Favor of Demand for Express Rate Readjustment.

Under the leadership of the Merchants' Association of New York commercial bodies in many cities of the country have joined in an effort to bring about a readjustment of the rates charged by the express companies. A meeting was held last week at which it was decided to present the matter to the Inter-State Commerce Commission, and a committee was appointed for the purpose of formulating a petition to the commission to review the charges of the express companies and correct the alleged unreasonable rates and the discriminations which it is claimed are shown by the express companies.

The organizations directly represented in last week's conference in New York included the following: Merchants and Manufacturers' Association of Baltimore; Chamber of Commerce, Boston; Chamber of Commerce, Cleveland; Board of Trade, Grand Rapids; Merchants' Association, Indianapolis; Board of Trade, Manchester, N. H.; Board of Trade, Newark; Business Men's Association and the Chamber of Commerce, New Haven; Board of Trade, New Orleans; Merchants' Association of New York; Board of Trade, Portland, Me.; Board of Trade, Paterson; Chamber of Commerce, Philadelphia; Merchants and Manufacturers' Association, Philadelphia; Chamber of Commerce, Pittsburg; Board of Trade, Providence; Chamber of Commerce, Richmond; Chamber of Commerce, Rochester; Chamber of Commerce, Syracuse; Syracuse Traffic Bureau; Chamber of Commerce, Watertown, N. Y.; Board of Trade, Worcester; Business Men's Association, Pawtucket, R. I.; Chamber of Commerce, Spokane; Board of Trade, Bridgeport, and Eastern Millinery Association.

In addition to these the following bodies placed themselves on record by letter in favor of the presentation to the Inter-State Commerce Commission of a petition for a full investigation of the express rates and practices: Chicago Association of Commerce; Chamber of Commerce, Dayton, Ohio; Iowa State Manufacturers' Association, Des Moines; Merchants and Manufacturers' Association, Milwaukee; Commercial Club, Minneapolis; Chamber of Commerce, El Paso; Board of Trade, Indianapolis; Commercial Club, Louisville; Board of Trade, Springfield, Mass.; Chamber of Commerce, Mercharts' Exchange, and Merchants' Association, San Francisco; Chamber of Commerce, South Bend, Ind.; Board of Trade, Savannah, and Chamber of Commerce, Baltimore.

The grounds of complaint on which the committee of commercial bodies will move against the express companies before the Inter-State Commerce Commission are indicated in a report on the methods and charges of the express companies which was presented at the conference last week. Describing the general conditions affecting the operation of the express companies, this report says that, unlike a mercantile or manufacturing business, the express business does not require, nor even admit, a large amount of ready cash for its operations, inasmuch as it does not require the purchase of large stocks of material or merchandise or the granting of large lines of credit. The services are, as a rule, paid for in advance, and such advance cash receipts at all times supply an ample fund from which to pay current expenses.

The cash balances held by the several express companies June 30, 1909, after deducting the amount of all current liabilities, were as follows: Adams Express Company, $1,410,889; American Express Company, $1,16,004, and Wells Fargo Express Company, $2,448,902. The statements of previous years show that the free cash balances are at occasional intervals converted into investments, and that they are not to any considerable [illegible] in the nature of working capital necessarily required for carrying on the business, but are rather accrued profits awaiting investment in stocks, bonds, and other securities.

The express service, it is pointed out, is composed of three elements: Terminal service, care in transit, and transportation. The latter service is performed by the railroads and the two first directly by the express companies.

For transportation the railroads in 1909 received slightly more than 47.7 per cent. of the aggregate charges collected upon all express parcels passing over the respective lines. The remaining 52.3 per cent. represents the service which is directly performed by the express companies.

It is self-evident, the report says, that the cost of transportation by rail increases in proportion to distance, and that the element of distance does not enter into the cost of terminal service. It is equally evident, therefore, that while the charge for transportation should increase with the distance, the charge for terminal service should remain unchanged, irrespective of distance by rail, inasmuch as the terminal service performed is the same, whether the rail transportation is long or short.

It is nevertheless the practice of the express companies, continues the report, to increase in proportion to distance the charges exacted for purely terminal services; whereby a much higher charge is imposed at one point than is imposed at another for an identical service.

The following comparison of rates is presented by way of illustration of the assertion that terminal rates for delivery at distant points are increased out of all proportion to the charges for terminal service at other points:

FOR PACKAGES WEIGHING 100 POUNDS, FROM NEW YORK.

	Total Charge.	Railroad Gets for Transportation.	Express Company for Collection and Delivery.
To Yonkers	$ .50	$0.2385	$0.2615
Albany	.60	0.2862	0.3138
Buffalo	1.25	0.5963	0.6537
Cleveland	1.75	0.8348	0.9152
Fort Wayne	2.25	1.0933	1.1567
Danville, Ill.	2.75	1.3114	1.4386
Jacksonville, Ill.	3.25	1.5503	1.6997
Galesburg, Ill.	3.50	1.6696	1.8305
Quincy, Ill	3.75	1.7888	1.9612
St. Joseph, Mo.	4.50	2.1465	2.3535
Lincoln	5.00	2.3850	2.6150
Denver, Col	8.50	4.0545	4.4455
Salt Lake City, Utah	10.00	5.0065	5.4915
Sacramento, Cal.	14.50	6.9165	7.5835
San Francisco, Cal.	14.50	6.9165	7.5835

Commenting on these figures the report says:

It is doubtless true that in some of the cases cited above rehandling en route imposes additional cost upon the companies, and a fair charge for this in addition to terminal charges should be allowed. In the cases of Buffalo and Yonkers, however, is identical, while the difference in the charges for purely terminal service is 150 per cent.

In the case of Pacific Slope points, and other points far distant from New York, the disparity is staggering. While the terminal service rendered is nearly identical, the service which in the case of Yonkers is performed for about 26 cents, costs in the case of San Francisco more than $7.58.

It is obvious that a system of charges which involves a difference of 2838 per cent. for an almost identical service, rests upon a false [illegible] is irrational and unjust.

The basis of compensation for the service of the express companies which is advocated in the report is thus summarized:

A transportation charges based on distance and graduated in proportion to weight, size, [illegible] classes.)

[illegible] upon wagon [illegible] to all ship- [illegible] ance between [illegible] cost of such [illegible] points and re-

The amount of capital actually employed in the express business as distinguished from the investment business of the express companies is figured out in the report, and this compilation made of the percentage earned by the several companies on the amount of capital employed by them in the express business:

	Net Capital, Incl. Value of Real Estate.	Net Earnings from Operation. Amount.	P.C.
Adams	$7,580,813.48	$1,704,379.25	22 2-10
American	9,058,377.62	2,176,872.99	24
United States	3,948,399.52	570,710.94	14 4-10
Wells-Fargo	6,227,987.02	3,262,478.88	52 3-10

The commercial bodies which have joined in this movement are urging all other similar bodies to join in the petition to the Inter-State Commerce Commission to investigate the charges made for express service and to bring about a general readjustment of these charges.

Yachts and Yachtsmen.

At the meeting of the Waterways League of Greater New York and Long Island, held last week in Brooklyn, a plan was adopted for holding a series of yacht races by the league during the coming season. The membership of the organization is still mounting steadily, and is now well past the 1,000 mark.

Harry Payne Whitney has chartered the three-masted auxiliary schooner Atlantic, which won the Emperor's Cup in the great transatlantic race, and the yacht is to be fitted out immediately for Mr. Whitney's needs. The Atlantic is owned by Wilson Marshall, who will probably spend the Summer abroad.

The old Pilgrim, once a candidate for cup-defending honors and later a steam yacht, will once again go into commission after having been laid up at Chelsea, Boston, for some time, where her engines have been removed. The Pilgrim will be towed to Marblehead at an early date, and will be used there as a floating hospital for commercial purposes.

The San Francisco Yacht Club has a novel and interesting method of starting its handicap sailing races. The limit boat is sent off first, and the scratch boat last. Each yacht entered for the race has a separate gun denoting her particular starting time. The time of start and the gun of each yacht are posted in the clubhouse before the day of the race, and it is then incumbent on the skipper to see that he gets away in good fashion.

Kilpatrick Injures Leg.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., May 22.—"Johnny Kilpatrick will never jump for Yale again," said John Mack, the Yale track team coach, to-night. Kilpatrick injured his leg in the dual track meet with Harvard last week, and an examination showed that it would not be safe for him to jump any more. How the injury will affect his football playing is uncertain. He will put the shot as usual in the intercollegiates this week. Coach Mack said to-day that he believed that Canfield, the Yale high jumper, would score two or three points in the intercollegiates.

HARLEM'S BIG ENTRY.

One Rowing Club to Have Oarsmen in Ten Events Memorial Day.

The amateur oarsmen on the Harlem put in their hardest day yesterday getting in trim for the regatta Monday. The Regatta Committee will meet at the West End Café to-morrow evening to open the entries for the event, and it is expected that the affair will be one of the best aquatic meets that has ever taken place on the Harlem. Several of the clubs have put off their entries until the last minute, and this evening there will be several time trials by club crews, and these performances will determine whether they will row on Memorial Day. If to-night's performances of some of the crews do not come up to the coaches' expectation of speed their entries will not be sent in to-morrow evening.

The Harlem Boat Club is out this year in an effort to sweep the river, and will have more oarsmen entered on Monday than have ever been entered by one club in any regatta. The Harlems have already decided on entries in ten of the events, and may put in one or two more before to-morrow night. The events in which they have already entered are junior singles, intermediate singles, association singles, quarter-mile dash, handicap senior singles, senior singles, senior doubles, intermediate doubles, junior centipede, and junior octipede. The Harlems look for winners in the senior singles and doubles with Shepheard and Puessel.

The Metropolitans will enter the association singles, the intermediate eight, and the junior centipede, while the Nassau Boat Club will have entries in the junior eight, intermediate singles, and junior centipede. The New York Athletic Club will have a crew in the junior eight, also the Unions, Wahnetah Boat Club of Flushing, and possibly one or two Philadelphia crews. The Dunham Boat Club of New Haven will be represented in the intermediate singles. The Areli and the Arundel Rowing Clubs of Baltimore will send entries, and the Malta and West Side Boat Clubs of Philadelphia have also sent in entries to some of the events. The Nonpareil and Bohemian Clubs will also send in entries to-morrow night.

The Harlem River was alive with racing craft of every description, both yesterday morning and afternoon. The time is drawing near for the men who have been training for several weeks to show their best form, and they were all given a hard workout.

WOMAN WINS BRUSH ON THE SPEEDWAY

Miss Pearsall Drives Belle W. to Victory Over George C.—Who Knows Beats Coast Marie.

In spite of Saturday being the annual Speedway parade day, a large number of fast steppers turned out yesterday morning on the drive and furnished closely contested brushes.

Since Ulrich ran away with Miss Karpf of Yonkers a few weeks since no woman driver had been seen on the Speedway until yesterday, when Miss Pearsall appeared behind a good going bay mare named Belle W., the only pacer in the Year Book by that name and color having a mark of 2:22¼. She showed ability in handling a fast stepper and won a brush from Jake Kohlman, driving a horse named George C., with two men in the wagon. Miss Pearsall's method of driving a fast stepper was hardly as good as that of Miss Karpf in the judgment of Mrs. Lincoln, the world's champion driver, who was an interested spectator.

Mrs. Ben Cohen drove her husband's other pacer, Red Bird, 2:06¼, but made no attempt in speeding, much to the disappointment of the spectators, who wished to see her start against Miss Pearsall. Hallock M., 2.09¾, driven by Ben Cohen, won a heat from Lillie Wilkes driven by Dr. J. H. Farster.

Instead of bringing out his Speedway champion pacer, Don Derby, 2:04¾, for a brush with Joseph F. Gibbons's Claro, as was expected, James A. Murphy came to the drive with Coast Marie, 2:11¾, for a set-to with C. Hackett's Who Knows, 2:11¾, in two very interesting heats. The pair of blacks had a close battle from start to finish of both heats, but the Hackett pacer proved the better of the two and won quite a decisive victory.

Thomas B. Leahy, with his new pacer, Princess Direct, 2:14½, and Dr. Threet, 2:14¼, driven by C. M. Reynolds, had two heats which proved as interesting as those between Coast Marie and Who Knows, and although Princess won both, yet Dr. Threet did not lose much of his credit for speed in the estimation of the large crowd. Dr. Threet fully redeemed himself later by winning two closely contested brushes from the Yonkers pacer Ulrich, 2:20¾, driven by George Gerringer.

E. J. McElmeel's Dandy C. O., 2:16¾, the pacer which has furnished more sport this Spring than any other driven on the Speedway, easily disposed of Ulrich in two close brushes. Dr. C. H. Martin's Dicker had an easy sailing against Gus Osburn's Trixie H., but when this pair entered into a three-cornered fight with William J. Farrell's black trotter Charles Hubbard, 2:12¼, both were left in the rear, Dicker finishing last.

Dr. Ives, 2:12¼, which Ed F. Geers trained two years ago as a candidate for Grand Circuit's big stakes, and which is now owned and driven by F. A. Campbell, had a tilt with A. B. Clarke's big trotter Joe Jap, 2:17¼, and the result proved very exciting. Joe Jap won the first heat in a close finish, and in the second the spectators declared a dead heat, but those standing at the finish could plainly see the neck of Clarke's big trotter in the lead on the outside.

Robert Kenefie, driving Mr. Murphy's Fandango, 2:17¼, started him in a brush against the pacer Ulrich, and won handily, showing much improvement over his last season's form. Andrew Crawford's Walnut Hall Farm-bred Moko stallion The Spoiler had two heats with J. F. Russell's young trotter Luke, and won both with a short margin. In another brush the pair came down with George C., a pacer, in the lead, and as Luke was far in the rear Mr. Crawford tried to beat the sidewheeler near the finsh, but failed by a short length.

James A. Murphy's trotter Kim, 2:13¾, had one brush with the world's champion dead-heat winning trotter Aristo, 2:08¼, and was declared the winner. The latter, driven by F. W. Gross, looked distressed after the heat, and further contests were abandoned for the day.

After beating Aristo Mr. Murphy raced a heat against Gus Osburn's Trixie H. and again won. Thomas Lawson, driving Jap, did not enter in the brushes, but was satisfied in breezing him with his stable mate, Cy Shelton, 2:14¼, the pacer, driven by R. C. Lawson. Horn brothers, who owned Dr. Eddie, a quite well-known Speedway horse, had out another one named Baby H., racing the pair together, with Dr. Eddie as the winner in all events.

COUNTER CHARGES IN PALLADINO TEST

CAN'T AGREE ON TERMS

Mr. Rinn Now Doubles His Offer of $1,000 if the Medium Will Do One Simple Phenomenon.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The recent exposure of Eusapia Palladino by Davis, Kellogg, Sargant, and myself, in conjunction with Warner C. Pyne and University of Columbia professors, as outlined in Collier's Weekly of May 12 and in Prof. Dickinson S. Miller's story in THE TIMES of the same date, has now additional evidence in its support, showing that Eusapia Palladino is a trickster, who cannot produce any so-called phenomena except under conditions that permit fraud.

She admitted she used fraud some times, but contended that she had powers that were supernormal, and were not dependent upon fraudulent conditions. To show our fairness and remove any lingering doubt in the public mind, I offered a reward of $1,000 if she would prove to the scientific word, under conditions making fraud impossible, that she possessed such powers.

I suggested that she be laced in a canvas sack, with neck and head exposed, but arms and body loosely confined inside the sack, so that she could not use them. She refused, but offered to permit herself to be tied so that everybody could be sure she produced her phenomena without the assistance of her hands and feet, as we had accused her of doing. I accepted her offer, as all we desired were conditions where we knew her hands and feet could not be used. Her representative, Hereward Carrington, agreed with my associates, Davis, Kellogg, and Sargant, and myself on these conditions of the test séance.

1. The seance must not begin until it is evident to J. F. Rinn and others that the fastenings are adequate safeguards against deception on the part of the medium.
2. Spirit raps are not to be considered evidential, since any one in the company may secretly produce them, and Eusapia Palladino would get the credit for them.
3. When the conditions are so poor (light conditions) that we cannot judge whether the medium herself is producing the phenomena, such phenomena are to be considered non-evidential.
4. Stout twine or tape shall be used for tying the medium, not rope.
5. The medium shall not dictate the nature of the method of fastening.
6. If at any time the nature of the control has been impaired Eusapia Palladino shall be requested to rectify it.
7. It is expected that any person present detecting fraud shall state the fact and make objection.
8. Since J. F. Rinn has been forced to abandon his original proposition (lacing the medium in a canvas sack with only head and neck exposed) and has been obliged to accept Eusapia Palladino's conditions, it is agreed that she shall produce at least four of the following seven phases of phenomena, which are customary with her at her seances, to be successful, table tipping and movement of cabinet curtain to be considered non-evidential:
(a) Complete levitation of the table without contact.
(b) Spirit hands shall appear out of the cabinet at her back while Eusapia Palladino's hands and feet are controlled.
(c) The small table thrown out of the cabinet and landed upon the seance table.
(d) Stool thrown out of the cabinet.
(e) Stool shall move along the floor from cabinet to J. F. Rinn.
(f) Strumming of musical instruments that were placed in the cabinet.
(g) Breeze from scar in Eusapia Palladino's forehead.

As nearly all of the above phenomena are produced at Mme. Palladino's seances we outlined them to have an agreement upon condition which would be called successful, but it was provided that the committee could, by two-thirds vote, classify any other phenomena she might produce without contact as supernormal, unless we could show how they were produced by normal means.

Mr. Carrington agreed to a committee of three to pass upon phenomena and decide if the medium was successful, that a two-thirds vote of the committee should decide. He requested that Mr. Thurston, who has expressed himself as believing in the supernormal powers of the medium, should be one of the committee, and I agreed. Mr. Carrington refused to agree that Prof. Dickinson S. Miller should be on the committee, and suggested Prof. Woods, who had expressed some belief in the medium. As a two-thirds vote decided the points at issue it would hardly be fair to me to permit two out of three of the committee to be persons who had expressed a belief in her powers. It was finally agreed that I should name two persons of prominence and good repute. I named Prof. Joseph Jastrow of Columbia University and the Rev. Henry Frank, pastor of the Berkeley Lyceum Church in Forty-fourth Street. Hereward Carrington, her friend, was agreed upon as master of ceremonies, and we tried in every way to make conditions favorable for the medium, being fairly treated, but with no chance for fraud.

The test was to take place in the Times Building on Sunday evening, May 22, but she absolutely refused to go on with it at that time under conditions agreed upon. She refused to accept Prof. Joseph Jastrow on the committee, she demanded that spirit raps count as phenomena; that any movement of curtains count as phenomena; that table tipping count as phenomena, and that instead of her feet and limbs tied securely she have at least one foot of slackness in the cords, and refused to have her ankles tied any other way, and in the face of these ridiculous demands she wanted the $1,000 reward if she produced even one of any of the so-called phenomena she is said to produce.

She demanded that there should be one foot of slack cord in tying each of her hands to the hands of those on each side of her at the table, and in every way demanded conditions that were absolutely absurd and fraudulent. She demanded that three strangers to us should sit at the table with two of us, and she demanded that even one phenomenon should win, such as raps. The whole thing shows she wanted no séance at all under conditions where fraud was impossible, and that all our claims as to her having no supernormal powers are substantiated.

To show this more clearly I shall explain some of her methods. The table she uses is a small thing such as a six-month-old baby could overturn. It weighs less than twelve pounds, is only 19¼ inches wide and 34½ inches long. She sits in between the legs of the table, and it is so narrow her limbs press closely against the table legs. With one hand on top of the table and feet tied one foot apart in a space 19¼ inches wide she could readily get an opportunity to use either her foot or knee in conjunction with her hand on top to get a levitation, and she demands that any kind of levitation shall win.

She causes raps with her foot on the lower end of the table leg, and with the slack tying she demands could readily cause raps.

She lies away over on her right side in cabinet manifestations, with her face toward the cabinet curtains, and by simply blowing on them would cause them to become agitated, and yet she demands if they swell, as if blown by a breeze, she shall win. In the face of all these facts, I again charge her with having no super-normal powers and of producing all her phenomena by trickery. It seems absurd that people of sense should have for years wasted time testing her levitation powers on a flimsy, light-built small table with which her body is in close contact. The mere pressure of a hand on its top will tilt it so it will stand on one leg. I deny absolutely that she has any power of levitation, and I will give her $2,000 if she will cause a small block of wood, placed on top of a large table, to float suspended in the air a few inches above the table for a few moments without contact. I will agree to make conditions so harmonious that she need only perform this feat before a committee of three and that no word of any kind need be said nor anything like an exhibition be created. If the committee unanimously agrees that she has performed the feat successfully, I agree to give her $2,000.

JOSEPH F. RINN.

CARRINGTON BLAMES RINN.

Says Palladino Is Willing to Comply with Most of the Conditions.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

If the much talked-of test séance of Palladino does not come off as originally planned, I wish the public to understand the reason, and to see that any "backing down" has come not from our side, but from Mr. Rinn's.

It would certainly seem that this gentleman is getting frightened, and thinks he runs a good chance of losing his $1,000, for I can see no other reason for his continual demand for more and still more precautions and "red tape."

At first, we must remember, Mr. Rinn said that Eusapia was a fraud, and nothing but a fraud; that she produced no genuine phenomena, and that he could explain everything she did or ever had done, by trickery. I took exception to this. The séance was arranged.

Now, when we come to details, what do we find?

First of all, raps are to be debarred, as "non-evidential." I agreed to this, though I was not really justified in doing so. Next, it was held that curtain phenomena [remarkable blowings out of the cabinet curtains which occur] should be debarred. And, lastly, it is demanded that table levitations shall not be counted as phenomena! Why—seeing that they have caused more interest than everything else put together?

If Messrs. Rinn, Davis, and company can explain them, let them do so. If not, they must be accepted as phenomena. It is absurd to debar three of the most frequent and certain of Eusapia's manifestations—the only three we ourselves obtained at our first sitting in Naples, I may add.

Mr. Rinn objects to Eusapia's demand that eight or ten inches of play be left between her feet and her hands. Again, why? When this question of tying first came up it was declared that it did not much matter anyway; the control was what counted. But Eusapia not only consented to be tied with cord, but herself suggested that her feet be fastened to a nail in the floor. Her plea is that she must have a few inches of play, during a two hours' séance, for her hands and feet.

I think this altogether rational. We must treat the medium as a human being as well as a medium. Give her this play, and see that the cords do not hurt her wrists and ankles; that is all she demands. The tying may then be as secure as you please, and the knots sealed.

I may joint out, here, that I can see no objection to allowing the medium ten feet of rope, provided the controllers both see, and hold her in such a manner that she cannot move her hands and feet, and with them produce phenomena. That is their duty, and if they cannot control her, so much the worse for them.

As to Prof. Jastrow for a referee, Eusapia justly says: "How can he be an 'unprejudiced person' when he has just published an article saying that everything I do is fraud?" Again, I think her contention quite sound. Mr. Rinn appoints Prof. Jastrow and Dr. Frank "referees" without my approval, and without consulting me in any way—two men I have never met—and one of whom is certainly prejudiced against her, and then calmly says that "a two-thirds vote of the committee shall settle the case." Certainly Mr. Rinn does not intend to lose his thousand dollars!

I may say that from our point of view—Mr. Thurston's and mine—this continual heaping objection upon objection, of condition upon condition, denotes nothing more than the fact that Mr. Rinn wishes to back out of a bad bargain. Eusapia does not wish to withdraw in any way; apparently Mr. Rinn does. If not, let him agree to hold the séance as originally agreed upon. His own friends con control; and if phenomena occur which they cannot explain, he has lost. That is but fair. If nothing but trickery is to be found, he need have no fear of losing his wager.

HEREWARD CARRINGTON.

A PITCHFORK ARGUMENT.

Words Failing Them, Two Grooms Use Stable Tools to Settle a Dispute.

Charles Matthews of 404 East 183d Street, and Dennis Whalen of 386 East 184th St were at work yesterday afternoon at 3 o'clock in a livery stable at 2,293 Webster Avenue, the Bronx. Matthews said that oats and corn were better for a young horse than any other feed. Whalen said that while corn and oats were fairly good as feed for a young and growing horse, the most perfect food was corn, oats, and bran.

The argument grew so hot that the debaters could not do justice to themselves in words, and so Matthews seized a shovel and Whalen grabbed a pitchfork. It was 3 o'clock when the fight began. The other stable workers did not feel like interfering where a shovel and a pitchfork were being used. At 4 o'clock both Matthews and Whalen, covered with blood and with their clothes almost torn off, sat down exhausted, glaring at each other.

Not counting a multitude of scratches and bruises, Matthews had a serious scalp wound, while Whalen's lower lip was almost bitten off. He asserted that Matthews had not done it, but said he had no idea who had.

With the two disputants exhausted, the other stable employes ventured to call in Policeman Reiser, who sent Matthews off to the Fordham Hospital, a prisoner, charged with felonious assault, and he took Whalen to the station under the same charge. Matthews left the stable even more convinced than he had been that corn and oats alone make the best feed for a young and growing horse, and Whalen said that bran must be added to make it a perfect food.

IN NEW JERSEY.

In Jersey City the police are investigating a fire in a flat at 468 Wayne Street Saturday night. Mrs. Boyle, a tenant, heard footsteps in the cellar, and later saw smoke coming up the elevator shaft. It was discovered that a barrel filled with refuse and paper had been set on fire. The house is occupied by six families.

In Jersey City Policeman Thomas Barry captured yesterday Alfred Richter of 68 Hopkins Avenue, Brooklyn, who is wanted for stabbing his wife. From a window of the Central Avenue Police Station Barry saw a man who answered a description of the fugitive on the opposite side of the street, and arrested him. Richter first denied his identity, but later confessed that he is the man wanted.

In Jersey City the golden jubilee of the Summit Avenue Dutch Reformed Church commenced yesterday. It will last for a week. The programme yesterday included addresses by Mayor H. O. Wittpenn, the Rev. Dr. Julius Geyer, Rev. Carl Girtanner, and the Rev. Dr. Cornelius Britt. The Rev. Dr. Geyer laid the corner stone of the new church and of the old church fifty years ago. To-night there will be Sunday School exercises, to-morrow night a women's societies' entertainment, Thursday night a choir musical, and Friday night a general recention.

The First and Third Regiments of the Junior O. U. A. M. will camp at Verona Lake before July 4, when they will participate in a parade in Montclair. The Junior O. U. A. M. of Poughkeepsie also will camp at Verona Lake.

Montclair's fifth annual Bach festival by the Bach Choir closed yesterday afternoon. The second part of the Passion music was given. The largest audience of the festival being present.

In Millburn the fact that no weapons were near the body of Andrew Connelly, which was found in the outskirts of this township, has led the authorities to believe he was murdered. The man, who had been dead since Thursday or Friday, had worked for Christopher Reilly as a hostler.

In Beverly, Emma Davis and Marion Force, who boarded a moving freight train in their endeavor to "see the world," are glad they are home again with their parents. They were found by a brakeman and turned over to the police of Dobbins's Siding. The girls, who are 17 and 14 years old, respectively, started from home on Friday night, but were caught before the train had gone ten miles. They said they wanted to "see the sights of New York."

At Fairview a monument to the memory of the late Rev. M. E. Kane of Redbank, the Rev. John J. O'Connor of New Monmouth, and the Rev. William O'Farrel of Atlantic Highlands was dedicated this afternoon in the Catholic Cemetery at Fairview. The Rev. James A. Reynolds, rector of St. James's Church, Redbank, conducted the ceremonies, assisted by the Rev. John J. Griffin of Trenton, secretary to Bishop McFaul; the Revs. M. C. O'Donnel, E. J. Egan, William P. Cantwell, and John E. Murray. More than 1,000 members of the Redbank parish marched to the cemetery, preceded by a brass band. The monument consists of four statues representing the Blessed Virgin group. It is of granite 25 feet high, and cost forty-two feet.

PERILS THAT TRAVEL IN PAPER CURRENCY

BACTERIA BY THE THOUSAND

Every Soiled Bill Found to Contain an Average of 142,000, Although Some Had Lost Their Virulence.

"Paper money, as an avenue by which disease can be transmitted, has been an object of suspicion for some time," says The Medical Record. "Indeed, this particular form of exchange has been shown, more or less conclusively, to be under favoring conditions an actual menace to the health of the community.

"Hilditch of the Sheffield Laboratory of Bacteriology and Hygiene, Yale University, and Park of the Research Laboratory of the Board of Health of New York have demonstrated that dirty paper money is similar to other paper and rags and capable of carrying living tubercle and diphtheria bacilli for some days or longer.

"Hilditch, however, does not regard the danger as very great. He obtained twenty-four bills, the very dirtiest he was able to procure, and subjected them to a minute examination, the outcome being that he found the average number of bacteria in each of twenty-one bills to be 142,000. Further, it was established by subsequent experiments that these organisms were not in possession of their full virulences. The publication of these results was apt to create a feeling of confidence in the comparative harmlessness of the dirtiest paper money, or, at least, to seem to demonstrate that as sources for spreading infection such was not greatly to be feared.

"In a recent issue of The Popular Science Monthly, A. Cressy Morrison writes to point out that the menace of paper money must not be wholly judged from the virulence or the nature of the germs discovered. He pertinently draws attention to the fact that the infection of drinking water with the germs of typhoid fever should not be estimated from the number of the bacilli typhosi found, for if that were the case water would be seldom condemned, and those bacilli are seldom discovered.

"In brief, Morrison contends, and it appears contends with justice, that it is not so much the question of virulence or even of the nature of the organisms found on paper money, but that experiments have established that money is a medium of bacterial communication from one individual to another. In order, therefore, to elucidate the matter, paper money known to have been exposed to contamination by highly infectious organisms should be examined by scientific experts. It has been ascertained that money can be infected by handling; it has also been shown that the germs of diphtheria and tuberculosis may live on infected bills for several days. Morrison says: 'It seems but a step, then, to the final demonstration of the actual transmission of these and similar diseases by money in circulation, and to the prevention of such spread of disease by the proper measures to eradicate such possibilities.'

"There is little doubt that disease is spread in ways that we know not, even in these times of advanced research. If paper money does spread disease, though but to an extremely small extent, this is reason sufficient to insist upon the more rapid withdrawal from circulation of soiled bills and the issuing of new and clean notes.

"The results of more minute and exhaustive investigations into the question of infected paper money as a means of spreading disease should be interesting and valuable."

$240,000 TROLLEY TERMINAL.

Public Service Corporation Opens Its New Station in Hoboken.

The Public Service Corporation of New Jersey opened its new $240,000 trolley terminal station at the foot of Ferry Street, Hoboken, yesterday. The first car, containing General Supt. Bolen, District Supt. Williams, and thirty-one reporters, left the terminal station at 6:12 o'clock yesterday morning, bound for Union Hill.

The new station, which is immediately above the Lackawanna terminal of the McAdoo tunnel, consists of two floors. The Washington, Grove, Willow, and Bergen trolleys leave from the ground floor. The Union Hill, Summit, Jackson, and Oakland trolleys leave from the second floor. Each floor has 700 electric lights, and the second floor commands a fine view of the bay and the North River.

The two loops can handle about 180 cars an hour, sixty passengers to each car. The stone platforms and spaces between the tracks are unusually wide, so as to avoid all accidents in the rush hours. One stairway leads to the Lackawanna station and three other stairways lead down to the tunnels.

Supt. Bolen, who has been working for the new terminal ever since he took charge seven years ago, said yesterday that it would save passengers a walk of 1,000 feet.

DEATH AVE. CLAIMS A VICTIM.

Jersey Commuter Tried to Cross in Front of an Engine.

"Death Avenue" claimed another victim yesterday morning when an unidentified man, believed to have been a commuter on his way home to New Jersey, was run over and killed by a New York Central locomotive at Eleventh Avenue and Forty-second Street. The man was about 32 years of age, had light hair and mustache, blue eyes, and wore good clothes. There were no papers found that might lead to his identification.

It was about 6:15 A. M. when Locomotive No. 532, in charge of Engineer J. H. Vanlansen of 69 West Ninety-first Street, came along. The engine was within fifty feet of Forty-second Street when the man started to run across the tracks. Flagmen employed by the railroad say the man slipped and his body fell directly in front of the engine, then only a few feet away.

Vanlansen applied the brakes, but the distance was too short and the man was killed. Dr. Arpold of the Flower Hospital, who was called, said that the man was killed instantly. Despite the fact that the killing was purely accidental, a crowd gathered and denounced the railroad in severe terms. No arrest was made.

SHOT LIKE GARFIELD, LIVED.

Soldier Who Got an Identical Wound Survived for Many Years.

Funeral services were held at East Orange yesterday afternoon for the only man known to have received a wound like that which killed President Garfield and yet survived. He was James B. Smith, formerly of Newburg, N. Y., who was shot at the storming of Fredericksburg in 1862, but recovered and lived to the ripe old age of 80.

When hope was raised for the recovery of President Garfield a newspaper seeking for an example on which to base its sanguine predictions found in the record of Smith the only one extant. Smith had been shot in the body just where Guiteau's bullet struck President Garfield. The ball pierced the right lung and the liver, and passed out of the back, taking a course precisely like that of the Guiteau bullet through Garfield's body.

Smith was left for dead on the field of battle, but was later found to be breathing and taken to Mount Pleasant Hospital. His vigor stood him in good stead, and eventually he recovered, though a siege of nervous prostration unfitted him for further military service during the civil war.

Smith was a private in the Sixty-sixth New York Volunteers when he received his wound. He enlisted from New York City. He will be buried to-day in Hillside Cemetery, Plainfield, N. J.

DEMANDED CHANGE, ARRESTED

Adams Insisted That Elevated Agent Break a $20 Bill.

Joseph M. Adams, a public accountant of 659 East 165th Street, went up to the ticket office of the Third Avenue elevated at Forty-second Street late on Saturday night and asked for one ticket, proffering a twenty-dollar bill.

"I can't change that," said the ticket agent.

"Hurry up; I want to get home. Give me change," ordered Adams.

He was again told it could not be changed. The line of purchasers was held up for fifteen minutes while he argued with the ticket seller. Patrolman Dagget of the East Fifty-first Street Station was called and Adams was arrested.

"Why didn't you go away and get your bill changed somewhere else?" asked the Magistrate.

"I didn't have to. I offered this bill, (waving a twenty-dollar bill in the air,) good legal tender, and he should have changed it according to law."

"But we'll change it for you," said the Magistrate. "Two dollars fine."

GET MEN WITH POLICY SLIPS.

Police Think Three Prisoners Are Agents for an Organization.

Detective Archiapoli of the East 104th Street Station was sitting in a café at 311 East 114th Street yesterday morning when he saw Antonio Caselli of 307 East 114th Street, drawing out his handkerchief, drop a pink slip on the floor.

Concluding that it was a policy slip, he went back to the station and recruited Detectives Naughton and Howard. They followed Caselli to 301½ East 115th Street, which seemed to be a sort of Italian clubhouse. The detectives forced their way in and arrested, besides Caselli, Michael Pacelli of 2,247 First Avenue and Enrico Calissia of 301 East 105th Street. On Pacelli they found thirty-seven pink policy balloting sheets and on Calissia ten pink and thirty-five green policy slips.

The three men were locked up, charged with violatink the policy law. Capt. Corcoran said he had received many complaints about agents who were running a policy game among the Italians. The police say they have reason to believe that the three men arrested are members of a small army of agents employed by the Italian policy organization backed by an Italian banker.

Workmen Must Tell Their Ages.

Delegates to the convention of the Workmen's Sick and Death Benefit Association, which has been in session at the Labor Temple for a week, reported yesterday that it has passed a rule by which all applicants for membership must state their ages. There was a hard fight against the passage of this rule.

CAT, DOG, AND LOBSTER.

When Tabby's Tail Got Caught, the Bulldog Forgot His Table Manners.

This story really begins when Miss Rose Leland of 516 West 179th Street walked into Fay's restaurant at 255 West 125th Street, last night at 7 o'clock, and sat down to dinner. She brought with her Gus, her brindle bulldog. She is a friend of the proprietor, Gus also has extremely good table manners, so he was taken behind the cashier's desk, where he was served on a plate.

Out on the sidewalk, in front of the resturant, there is an ice box in which live lobsters and the like are exhibited. When a waiter gets an order for a lobster he takes several out of the box, lets the diner take his choice and then returns the others to the ice box.

One of the resturant cats, Mattie by name, spends much of her time out on the sidewalk looking in at the lobsters, which now and then show signs of sluggish life. Mattie was there last night when a waiter went out to get some lobsters. One of them fell on the sidewalk. Mattie jumped at it, and the lobster clamped her firmly by the tail. Filled with terror as well as pain, Mattie shot through the restaurant door. The temptation of chasing a cat was stronger than Gus's table manners, and he leaped at her.

The mixture of dog, cat, and lobster on the floor, together with the indignant screams of Miss Leland, so worked on the restaurant patrons that in a minute, as the poet says, all was pandemonium.

The waiters separated the constituent elements of the fight on the floor, restoring Gus to his place behind the cashier's desk. He was so peevish that he refused to eat any more, and Mattie was led back to the kitchen and locked in. To clear away all the characters, after the manner of fiction, it may be said that the lobster received the proper burial.

D., L. & W. WAGE HITCH.

The Railroad Holding Out for Concessions on the Yard Rates.

While the Delaware, Lackawanna & Western Railroad agreed with the trainmen and conductors to be bound by the decision of the arbitrators in the wage dispute of the New York Central men, as reached recently, it was learned yesterday that there is still a hitch with the D., L. & W. over the yard rates.

In the case of the New York Central some exceptions were allowed by the men to these rates, owing to local conditions, but trainmen and conductors do not think any exceptions should apply to the D., L. & W.

"It would not be fair to the other roads," said President Garretson of the conductors yesterday, "if we allowed the same exceptions in the case of the D., L. & W. in the yards that we allowed to the New York Central. The Lackawanna will have to pay the regular yard rates. It is, perhaps, the richest of all the Eastern roads, and the conditions which entitled the New York Central to the exceptions do not apply to the Lackawanna in any way."

ROBBERS ATTACKED HIM.

New Rochelle Man Badly Beaten on His Way to City Island.

Henry Musgrave of New Rochelle, a salesman, dragged himself into the Bayview Hotel, on City Island, early yesterday morning, his head badly cut and bruised. C. C. Greisel, the manager, summoned Dr. S. C. Lawrence, the hotel physician, who attended the wounded man's injuries.

Mr. Musgrave said that between 11 and 11:30 o'clock on Saturday night, while he was going along Pelham Avenue, just before reaching the bridge that reaches from the end of the avenue to City Island, two men attacked him, beat him down, and robbed him of a gold watch, a stickpin, and $45.

He lay unconscious for a while, and then on recovering consciousness dragged himself with great pain across the half-mile bridge and finally into the hotel. The police were notified of the robbery.

BOY DESPERADOES LIKED PEAS

Detective Found Trio Munching Canned Vegetables in Grocer's Cellar.

Some one telephoned to the West Sixty-eighth Street Station last night that there were burglars in the grocery store of Frederick Hettlinger at 2,114 Broadway.

When Detective Joseph Leonard got there he found the basement door had been forced. He opened the door cautiously and prepared for an encounter with desperadoes, but found three small boys eating canned peas. Around them, he says, were many empty cans.

At the West Sixty-eighth Street Station the boys said they were Joseph Fossey, 11, of 145 Amsterdam Avenue; George Townsend, 10, and John Townsend, 12, both of 231 West Sixty-sixth Street.
